Negotiations Fail, 2,500 Drivers Walk Off

STRIKE HALTS ALL MTA BUSES

Some 2,500 bus drivers of the Metropolitan Transit Authority went on strike at one minute after midnight this morning, idling MTA buses in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties.

The strike, which cuts off public transportation for 750,000 daily riders, was called after a final meeting Saturday afternoon between negotiators of the MTA and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen failed to reach agreement.

A last-minute plea by Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty to delay the action 10 days was ignored.

Full impact of the walkout was expected to be felt with resumption of weekday commuting Monday morning. MTA buses were last idled four years ago in a strike by bus mechanics that lasted five days.

At issue is a difference of 9 cents an hour in wages, as well as vacation pay and a sick leave rule. Union negotiators are asking a 25-cent an hour increase. A spokesman for the MTA said it had offered a 16-cent hike but could go no further without a fare increase.

Don H. Sheets, union general chairman in the Los Angeles area, denied that a 25-cent pay boost would make a fare increase necessary. Sheets accused the MTA of "deliberately forcing a strike so it could raise fares again and blame it on the union."

Bus drivers currently receive $2.77 an hour.

Cone T. Bass, general manager of MTA, pointed out that agreement was reached earlier Saturday between MTA and the Amalgamated Transportation Union in a contract which covers maintenance employes. A spokesman for the bus drivers said this would not influence negotiations between MTA and BRT.

The mayor's futile plea was made through USC Prof. Spencer Pollard, member of the municipal executive's labor - management committee. Yorty also ordered a probe of all the transit issues before a Taft-Hartley - type fact - finding panel starting Monday.

"The mayor feels the public has a right to know about the issues in this dispute," Pollard said.

Yorty's plea for delay had stressed the fact that a strike would "cause great inconvenience and loss to our city."

The union claims that 93 percent of its membership favored the strike. A vote was taken Friday when negotiations foundered over the 9-cent difference.

Formation of car pools and expanded service by independent bus companies was expected to fill a portion of the transit gap created by the strike.

42 More Eggs in Barry's Basket; Scranton Bags 13

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Barry Goldwater won 42 more Republican National Convention votes Saturday and Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton picked up 13.

The New Mexico state GOP convention gave its 14 votes to Goldwater Saturday night to move him within striking distance of the presidential nomination. Goldwater also won Idaho's 14 convention votes, 10 in Virginia and four in Connecticut.

Scranton took over one of Goldwater's 19 other Virginia delegates who were selected previously, and, after a personal appeal to the GOP convention in his native Connecticut, he won 12 of their 16 delegates.

Despite the one-delegate loss in Virginia, Goldwater still has 28 there. The delegate, E. Summers Sheffey of Abingdon, said he would vote for Scranton unless Goldwater makes his position "a more rational one and takes a moderate viewpoint in the next 30 days."

With Saturday's victories, Goldwater's present first-ballot strength was boosted to 594 — only 61 shy of the magic number to win nomination.

Only 70 delegates remain to be elected next week in Texas and Montana. All of them are expected to board the Goldwater bandwagon.

If all delegates now saying they will vote for Goldwater keep their promises, the senator will go to the convention with enough pledges to become the GOP standard bearer on the first ballot.

Scranton Terms Barry 'Mere Echo of Despair'

Peppery Start for Vote Bid

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Gov. William W. Scranton, opening his last-ditch campaign for the Republican presidential nomination with a blistering attack on Sen. Barry Goldwater, Saturday won 12 of Connecticut's 16 national convention votes.

In a whirlwind of activity, the Pennsylvania governor flew into his native state to address the GOP state convention and announced he will begin a week-long cross-country plane tour Monday in his effort to stop the Arizona senator's nomination drive.

* * * *

SCRANTON admitted he should have entered the race sooner, saying he felt he should have announced his candidacy last week at the national Governors Conference. He threw his hat into the ring Friday in Baltimore.

By the time he left Connecticut for Pennsylvania late Saturday, he had picked up 12 delegates to the July 13 convention in San Francisco. The other four delegates will back Goldwater.

In his prepared speech, the governor referred to some of Goldwater's policies as "outlandish." He deleted the remark when he made the address.

Scranton told the convention that Republicans must repudiate Goldwater if the GOP is to escape defeat in the November elections.

"It is a fact that we have reached the ludicrous point where every responsible leader in our party knows that to stave off defeat in November, a make-believe coating of moderation must be shellacked over the views that have been uttered by the present front-runner," he declared.

"A small but vocal minority too often has made our party sound naive, irresponsible, reactionary and heartless . . . The proposals that have come from the camp of the present front-runner — particularly in the field of foreign affairs — are not real alternatives to the Johnson administration. They are mere echoes of despair."

A crowd of about 300 Goldwater supporters waited in front of the auditorium for Scranton and his wife to arrive. They carried placards and shouted, "We want Barry, we want Barry."

Once inside, the Scrantons' appearance was greeted by cheers which interrupted a speech by former Gov. John Davis

Mansell Submits $5.7-Million Plan for Park Growth

By GEORGE WEEKS

A $5,775,000 proposal for improving and expanding Long Beach parks and playgrounds, financed from a new property-tax levy over an eight-to-15-year period, was filed Saturday with Long Beach city councilmen by City Manager John R. Mansell.

Approval would require a majority vote of the electorate for a charter amendment, presumably to be submitted in the Nov. 3 general election.

Mansell offered the council alternates of a 5-cent levy raising $375,000 annually for 15 years or a 10-cent, eight-year tax of $750,000 a year.

* * * *

EITHER plan would pay the $3,507,556 for ultimate development of El Dorado Park East, plus $2,267,500 for land acquisition and improvement of nine widely-scattered neighborhood parks and playgrounds, the city manager said.

His proposal will go before the council officially Tuesday. Councilmen had asked him to report on plans both for El Dorado East and expanded neighborhood play centers.

* * * *

THE ADDED taxes would not become effective until the 1965-66 fiscal year, for which bills will be mailed late next year. Thus the program will not affect the 1964-65 budget, to be submitted Tuesday to the council by the manager. This budget reportedly holds the tax line at the current rate of $1.4219 per $100 assessed valuation.

Mansell suggested that pending the vote on the charter amendment and ratification by the legislature, the council allot $250,000 from the '64-65 budget for grading and irrigation in El Dorado East.

* * * *

CITING the great number of letters pouring into city hall urging the El Dorado development, Mansell commented:

"If these are representative of community thinking, there should be strong support of a special tax levy of 5 cents or 10 cents to implement the program. . . . Such a levy could be terminated upon completion of the capital - improvement phase of the program or reduced thereafter to an amount to defray operating and maintenance expenses

U.S. Wary of Chinese Air Sorties

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is keeping a wary watch for possible Red Chinese interference with U.S. jets operating over Laos.

The potential danger is physically close. At least one Chinese Communist airdrome is within 30 minutes' flying time of the Plain of Jars where U.S. reconnaissance jets, with fighter escort, are making sweeps.

* * * *

RADAR and other surveillance of the approaches from the north presumably are maintained to warn of suspicious, fast-flying aircraft coming in from the north.

The flights of the U.S. planes so far have been made from the carrier Kitty Hawk, off Viet Nam in the South China Sea, to scout out build-up of Pathet Lao forces by North Vietnamese units.

However, the U.S. Air Force has several types of jet reconnaissance aircraft based on South Vietnamese airfields which also are used for photo reconnaissance.

THE ASSUMPTION in Washington is that the Red Chinese air force will refrain from flying into Laos

The two fire companies found a burning plastic toilet seat in the church's recreation hall — and two youngsters who had been sneaking cigarettes.

V.P. JOB IS OUT, TOO

Not in Running, Nixon Declares

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Former Vice President Richard Nixon said Saturday he has excluded himself from the Republican presidential contest, and would not accept a call to the vice presidential nomination.

Nixon, speaking at a $100-a-plate Wisconsin Republican dinner said the GOP presidential sweepstakes is a "two-man race" between Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania.

Nixon said he didn't believe his "best service to the party" could be achieved as a vice presidential candidate.

* * * *

HE SAID he is not trying to pick a candidate to oppose Goldwater, and that he told Gov. George Romney of Michigan only that a contest would be good for the party. He denied urging Romney to run.

He said the communications difficulties between Scranton and former President Eisenhower over the governor's candidacy were "apparently due to a misunderstanding" on the governor's part.

Nixon said it's possible Eisenhower's political activities of the past few weeks might be misunderstood, but that the net result will be in the best interests of the party.

* * * *

EARLIER, in New York, Nixon said Scranton has a "fighting chance" to win the nomination from Goldwater, but he criticized the governor for "vacillating" about entering the race.

Scranton, he said, "must now be his own man. He must make his own decisions and not appear to be a puppet maneuvered by someone else."

"I see no chance of a deadlock at the convention because we now have our two clear-cut choices," Nixon said. "One of these men will get the nomination."

He also said:

Candidate's Cruise Crash Shakes 200

KENNEWICK, Wash. (UPI) — An old steamship recommissioned as a river pleasure cruiser smashed into a bridge piling Saturday night with 200 persons aboard, including Richard G. Christensen, Republican candidate for governor.

Christensen was not hurt, but two other persons aboard were taken to hospitals, one of them possibly in serious condition.

The boat, the Columbia Queen, had just left her berth at Clover Island in the Columbia River when it struck the old Pasco-Kennewick Bridge just below the island. Dale Metz, owner of the marina where the ship docks, said a gaping hole was torn in the side.

The boat returned to its berth under its own power but Metz said it took on considerable water and was being kept afloat only by pumping.

The boat had been chartered for a fund-raising cruise by Christensen backers. It had been scheduled to travel about 20 miles down the Columbia, then return.

D-DAY PLUS 20 YEARS

Portsmouth Harbor Invasion Buildup

Twenty years after D-Day, General Dwight D. Eisenhower returned to the scene of the events that radically altered the course of World War II to record his reminiscences for a CBS REPORTS: "D-Day Plus 20 Years: Eisenhower Returns to Normandy," which was broadcast over the CBS Network on the anniversary of D-Day. In this exclusive conversation with Walter Cronkite, General Eisenhower recounted the historic moments of the Normandy invasion. This is the seventh of a series of sixteen installments of the entire conversation, including many portions not broadcast, prepared by the New York Herald Tribune. Here the former President is back at Portsmouth Harbor on the southeast coast of Britain, where part of the fleet of 9,000 vessels and 175,000 troops embarked for the coast of France on June 6, 1944, telling Mr. Cronkite of the naval problems connected with the invasion.

Copyright 1964, Dwight D. Eisenhower
Edited by Martin Blumenson

MR. CRONKITE: General Eisenhower, this harbor of Portsmouth must have been absolutely crammed with ships on the morning of D-Day.

GEN. EISENHOWER. Oh, it was. I came down here on June 5th and again on the 6th. Some of the follow-up people were still here on the 6th, but on the 5th the place was jammed. The men were loaded on the ships that would take them across the Channel, and they were all crowded. I talked with them and told them it would be all right. That was all you could say.

MR. CRONKITE: General, how far inland were the troops backed up in the countryside before the invasion?

GEN. EISENHOWER: As I remember, about 12 to 15 miles, maybe 20 miles back of the English coast. Talk about censorship. That whole area was fenced in. No news allowed out. The soldiers were behind barbed wire for security reasons, so the secret of the invasion wouldn't get out.

MR. CRONKITE: There must have been a lot of men, I suppose, who wished they weren't here that morning. But there must have been an awful lot of men who wished they were aboard, who wanted to be aboard for the first day of the invasion.

GEN. EISENHOWER: They had all been trained and they knew their duty. Of course, no one likes to be shot at, but I must say that more people wanted in than wanted out.

MR. CRONKITE: One who wanted in but was left behind was the Prime Minister, Winston Churchill himself, wasn't he?

L.A.C. Says:

What Was Wrong Is Now Right?

In many years of political observation I have never seen a more cynical example of expediency than the announced Cranston-Salinger agreement. Cranston has admitted that a few days before the election he and Salinger had agreed that the winner would pay the loser up to $150,000 to meet the loser's campaign deficits. It is said this was to assure the loser giving his support to the winner in the November election.

It is one of the most blatant examples of political immorality we have ever heard. It is evidence of the the candidates' opinion of the morals of the voting public. They may be right in this assumption. But it is a good time for the voter to assess his own morals and how they react to this kind of political shenanigans. Gov. Brown is reported to have negotiated the agreement.

There is every reason to believe Cranston was defeated by the Salinger forces' charges that Cranston had been shaking down inheritance tax appraisers—whom he appointed—for his campaign. He even sued Salinger for libel and claimed less than half his campaign was financed from this shakedown. It had a devastating effect on his campaign and was responsible for Salinger's victory.

Now we find both of these men apparently agreed to help finance the other after the June 2 election. It is apparent what Salinger used as an immoral act in his opposition to Cranston is now considered moral and it was all done just as ordinary campaigning. It is a cynical attitude that persists in many campaigns. But if it is to be accepted by the general public it is evident it has certainly lost its capacity for indignation. Men may disagree on issues such as civil rights, foreign aid, government spending, and find justification for compromise. But how can they do so where political corruption has been charged by one against the other?

Another issue used to defeat Cranston by Salinger forces was the attacks on Cranston because of his long association with the left-wing CDC. It was shown how the CDC demanded abolition of the loyalty oath and the Un-American Activities Committee. It was an aggressive attack on the organization and was effective. But now we find Salinger embracing Cranston and all the support he can bring to him—along with the $150,000 payoff to Cranston for this service.

This political cynicism comes right down from the President himself. The Bobby Baker scandal involving the President—when he was leader of the Democratic Senate majority—the President's disregard of ethics when his family continues ownership of TV and radio monopolies dependent on government agencies—whose members are appointed by the President—and with whom Senator Johnson worked closely during the years his monopoly was created. Placing these interests in the hands of friendly trustees in no way changes ownership of them.

Where is the indignation that caused the instant removal of Sherman Adams as the Eisenhower assistant after it was shown Adams had accepted gifts from Bernard Goldfine? Do the people now believe it was not necessary for Charles Wilson to sell his General Motors stock when he became Secretary of Defense because his office would deal with contracts that might involve General Motors? I have questioned the usefulness of such actions because I have felt the right kind of man would never take advantage of his position. If he did it was time to remove him from office. But the record is clear that Mr. Johnson has profited from his official position. But like the Salinger-Cranston deal, it is shrugged off. The question is, Have the people lost their capacity for indignation? Is political synicism now to be rewarded?—L.A.C.

COUNCIL HEARS FINANCIAL REPORT

IBC in Black and Future's Rosy

By BOB SANDERS

Not only is the International Beauty Congress operating in the black, but it intends to continue to do so while expanding its operation until it completely outdistances all other similar contests, IBC President James Crooker reported last week.

In a speech delivered to the City Council and the IBC Board Tuesday night and scheduled for delivery to the Board of Harbor Commissioners June 23, the aggressive young IBC head reported on the present status of his organization and outlined the more-than-rosy future.

* * * *

"FAR FROM being just a beauty contest," he told councilmen, "the IBC is professional entertainment that is setting the standards for beauty pageant production all over the world."

His speech marked the first time in the history of beauty pageants that a full and complete report on the finances of the operation has been given directly to the public.

In addition to the financial report, which is printed in the accompanying table, Crooker analyzed in refreshing detail what the IBC expects of the city, what the city, harbor and county can expect from the IBC and the benefits that accrue to all from the presentation of the 13th annual spectacular.

* * * *

BEGINNING WITH the original $85,000 which the city, harbor and county contribute, Crooker said the pageant itself then raises $186,295, or "three dollars for every one appropriated."

"I ask you to compare that fiscal return . . . to any other activity you have ever been asked to sponsor," he told the council.

He listed what he called "tangible intangible" benefits accruing to Long Beach from the IBC last year:

1) The 2-minute, 45-second "commercial" for the city that was shown on nationwide television the night of the finals, which if valued at the standard $35,000 per minute, totaled $96,000.

2) Fifty hours of radio and television time in addition to the nationwide network time.

3) Professional and amateur newsreels, film and slides shown all over the world.

4) Newspaper clippings in cities throughout the United States, which, if valued at the American Newspaper Publishers' Association average estimated advertising cost of $4.22 an inch, would amount to more than $500,000.

5) Additional clips from magazines and newspapers and time on radio and television in countries all over the world.

All this publicity for the city and harbor was returned, Crooker said, for an actual publicity outlay of $12,500, which he termed a "far inadequate amount . . . but all we could afford. He broke this figure down into $2,400 from the IBC budget and "only $6,000" from the Long Beach News and Promotion Bureau.

To illustrate that the IBC pageant is improving every year, Crooker cited the increase in fee from NBC for television rights to the finals from $45,000 last year to $74,500 this year and the movement of the program from early evening last year to the "prime time" spot of 8:30 p.m. this year.

He concluded by emphasizing that the IBC is:

"The Number One beauty pageant in the world.

"The only one in America showing the return of investment that we do, the only civic sponsored one and the only one improving its position each year.

"The pageant with the soundest organizational structure of any in the world.

"And the only one providing professional entertainment in the Flo Ziegfeld tradition and thereby leading the beauty contest into a brand new era."

"The IBC is a profitable venture," he concluded, "and we expect it to increase in value year after year."

Rafferty Urges Turf School Aid

Easiest way to get more money for California's schools would be to extend the horse-racing season and increase the state's pari-mutuel take, Dr. Max Rafferty told Sigma Delta Chi members at a Santa Ana dinner.

The extended racing season should be coupled with night racing and it could yield up to $100 million annually, he declared.

Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, said such additional financing means should be explored before taxpayers bond themselves for more state funds.

* * * *

HE TOLD the Orange County SDX chapter that an added five-cent tax per pack of cigarettes also should be considered.

"This would be rough," Rafferty admitted. "You might even quit smoking and save yourself lung cancer."

Merit pay for school teachers was advocated by Rafferty, who said the present system of advancing pay scales on length of service and on college degrees earned "is patently unfair." He said it is "no incentive (for a teacher) to excel."

Faced with a similar situation, New York extended the racing season and allowed night racing, increased the state's pari-mutuel take and is raising $100 million annually, he said.

Park Bonds Suggested by Bonelli

L. A.-T Los Angeles Bureau

A bond issue or use of state and federal funds to finance regional and local parks has been proposed by Supervisor Frank G. Bonelli as a substatute for dollars from the county's general fund.

Bonelli specifically cited El Dorado Park in northeast Long Beach, La Mirada Park, Santa Fe Dam near Azusa and Otterbein Regional Park near La Puente as "undeveloped, designated, strategically located" regional parks which should be completed.

"The dim possibilities of obtaining general fund monies under the present stringent county budget conditions make it imperative that a new source of financing be procured," Bonelli asserted.

In addition to the four regional parks, there are six undeveloped local parks in his sprawling First District which also should be improved, he said.

Scandinavia Awaiting Visit by Khrushchev

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev leaves today for a tour of Scandinavia which was postponed five years ago.

The visit is Khrushchev's first to Sweden, Norway and Denmark. Unlike his recent visits to the United Arab Republic and Hungary, it is expected to have little political significance.

Diplomatic observers here said the tour appears essentially as a goodwill, family junket.

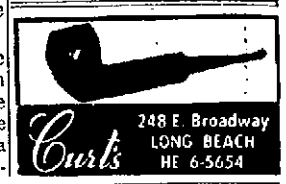

Khrushchev's Scandinavian tour has hung fire for five years since it was canceled by the Soviets in 1959 over what they termed unfavorable press publicity in the three countries.

(Anti-Soviet feelings were stirred up again in Sweden where a Swedish Air Force colonel was sentenced to life imprisonment last week as a confessed spy for the Russians. But Swedish authorities are hopeful that these will have subsided by the time Khrushchev arrives.)

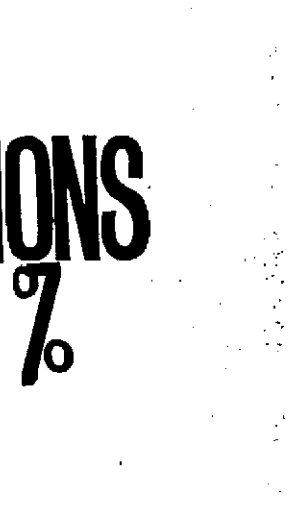

In the meantime prime ministers from the three Scandinavian countries have paid visits to the Soviet Union.

The 70-year-old Soviet premier will be seen off by the entire diplomatic corps at the Byelorussian railway station where he is scheduled to entrain for Kaliningrad on the Baltic Sea.

From Kaliningrad the premier and his party will sail Monday aboard the passenger ship Bashkiria for Copenhagen and the first lap of his three weeks Scandinavian journey.

see you at the POPS CONCERT in bixby park....

JUNE 30 • JULY 28 • SEPTEMBER 1

Metropolitan Opera tenor Brian Sullivan who last season made Bixby Park ring with the cheers of thousands attending the opening of the Summer Pop Concerts again this season will be featured at the opening Starlight Serenade at 8 p.m., June 30, in the park.

Co-star on the first of three free concerts to be presented here by the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Lauris Jones, will be Grace-Lynne Martin, soprano.

Miss Martin and Sullivan will be featured in solos and duets.

* * * *

SULLIVAN'S voice brings such tributes from critics as "Brian Sullivan pealed tenor top tones that smote the tympanum like a Caruso clarion call" . . . "a naturally ebullient and engaging personality and his voice is big and has a most pleasant timbre." He captivates his audiences with his charm of delivery with his "real honest to goodness tenor with a smooth and ample range."

In addition to opera roles at the Metropolitan, Chicago Lyric Opera, San Francisco Opera and New Orleans Opera in this country, he has been starred on television and the concert stage.

* * * *

MISS MARTIN has appeared on radio, television, concert and opera stage and is a solo recording artist for Columbia records. She has appeared as soloist with the Ojai Festival, Monday Evening Concerts, the Guild Opera and in May appeared as soloist with the Long Beach Symphony.

Last spring she represented the west coast at the first international Webern Festival at Seattle, Wash., and last year sang at the Strafford Festival in Canada. Her most recent operatic role was in the Guild Opera Company's production of Mozart's "Magic Flute" at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles.

* * * *

THE LONG BEACH Symphony Association's free Summer Pop Concerts, under a committee headed by Mrs. Herman Ridder, have in past seasons been fantastically popular, with thousands of people bringing picnic suppers to the park and staying for the evening concerts. Crowds begin arriving hours before the concerts begin.

Originally two free concerts were given in the season, but because of the success of the popular programs the number was increased to three.

This season three concrts again will be given. In addition to the June 30 concert, free concerts will be given July 28 and Sept. 1. In addition, the Long Beach Symphony Sept. 12 will travel to Catalina Island for a repeat of one of the concerts at Avalon.

Acoustical quality of the concert this year will be enhanced by use of a fibreglass acoustical shell purchased by the City Council for use in the Bixby Park concerts, as well as other events.

L.B. AIRPORT TAKEOFF

2 Light Airplanes in Economy Flight

By LEE CRAIG
I, P-T Aerospace Editor

Two light airplanes will take off at 6 a.m. Monday from Long Beach Municipal Airport on a 2,800-mile transcontinental flight in an attempt to prove you can get there faster and cheaper by flying.

The planes, single-engine Mooney Super 21s, will follow approximately the route of the Mobil Economy Run which annually tests mileage performances of the latest automobiles.

Overnight stops of the cars will be touchdown and refueling points for the airplanes. Landings will be at Phoenix, El Paso, Fort Worth, Memphis, Indianapolis, Harrisburg and, finally, Kennedy International Airport, New York.

The flight is sanctioned by the National Aeronautic Association and will be conducted under rules of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale. It will be made under average conditions, all daylight, all visual flight rules, as the business pilot, family or fun-flyer would make it. Aviation fuel and oil will be supplied by Mobil.

The two pilots, Alan Stensvold of Encino and TV actor Roger Smith, expect to complete the trip in less than 20 flying hours, averaging more than 20 miles per gallon of fuel.

In the latest Mobil Economy Run, automobiles averaged 21.77 miles per gallon at 46.27 miles per hour.

Riding with Smith will be Kathy Nolan, who starred in the "Real McCoys" television program. Smith is best known for his role in "77 Sunset Strip." Stensvold's passenger will be Charlie Dugdale, Hollywood.

The aircraft and flight participants will be on display today at 2:30 p.m. north of the airport administration building.

Air Medicine Test Ended

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Two airmen recently ended 33 days of lying flat on their backs to simulate weightlessness at the School of Aerospace Medicine, Brooks AFB.

A/3C Roger L. Tate of Tarzan, Tex., and A/3C Austin T. Mantooth of New Paris, Ohio, volunteered for experimental testing while in basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

The study was conducted to investigate why calcium is lost during weightlessness and immobilization. Radioactive calcium was used for the first time in bed rest with these subjects.

Mom Can't Believe 'Son Against U.S.'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mother of Charles Berrard refuses to believe he wants to destroy the United States government.

Mrs. Fannie M. Berrard's 24-year-old son was president of his senior class and a popular high school athlete.

He left his classes at Los Angeles City College last Tuesday, flew to Prague, Czechoslovakia, and then on to Havana, Cuba, with 72 other Americans, mostly students.

* * * *

HE IS one of four Negroes in the group who reportedly issued a statement denouncing the United States as a "racist government — a government which is the biggest farce in history and must be destroyed."

"I refuse to accept that he signed such a statement," Mrs. Berrard said Saturday. "It's the last thing I could imagine Charles doing. He has been raised as a loyal American."

Even if he did sign it, she said, he wasn't aware how damaging it could be to his future.

Mrs. Berrard searched her mind for an explanation. She said her son had been active in the Congress of Racial Equality and the Student non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee, "But he always has been a good American."

* * * *

BERRARD, 24, was president of the winter 1958 graduating class at Belmont High School, his mother said. He lettered three times in football as an end and a halfback, and twice as a hurdler in track.

He had been working in a Burbank, Calif., metal plant while he attended college part-time.

He sent a wire Tuesday to his girl friend, who was not identified, in which he said he was confused.

Reserve Unit's Chief Promoted to Colonel

Lt. Wilbur L. Clingan commander of the 9624th Air Force Reserve Recovery Squadron at Long Beach Municipal Airport, has been promoted to the rank of a full colonel.

Announcement of the promotion was made Saturday by Colonel Claude J. Norton, commander of the 8646th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group, parent organization of the 9624th Squadron.

Colonel Clingan, a resident of Downey, in private life is a polygraph expert with the Los Angeles Police Department.

The local recovery organization was recently named the outstanding Air Force Reserve unit in the United States by the Continental Air Command.

Defiant 75 Resting in Cuba Hotel

By RICHARD DAW

HAVANA (AP)—The 75 Americans who defied a U.S. State Department ban on travel to Castro Cuba spent their second day here resting.

As they lounged around the plush Riviera Hotel, one of them said: "All we heard about the Cuban revolution might be garbage. But I don't think so. We are here to find out."

The group got around the travel ban by getting passports to Europe, flying to Paris and then to Czechoslovakia before coming on to Havana.

* * * *

IT IS the second group to defy the State Department ban. Last year 59 Americans came to Cuba. When that group returned to the United States, their passports were lifted or invalidated.

"I'm not a Communist," said Richard Epstein, 22, a student at San Jose State College in California. "But I think we should be allowed to come here to see what's going on if we want to."

"Of course the Cubans will try to impress us with their revolution," Epstein added. "Why else would they bring us here? But we will be able to judge for ourselves."

* * * *

DAN CHVAL, 24, of New York, said he was convinced the majority of Cubans support Prime Minister Fidel Castro's revolutionary government.

A girl studying ballet in Boston, Mary Maher, 19, of Houston, Tex., declared, "I knew the revolution was a wonderful thing before I came here, and now that I'm here I see evidence of it."

Chval and Miss Maher said they had no politics, "We're not Communists or anything else."

to aid the Pathet Lao.

It was reported Saturday that a knock-out blow at Pathet Lao anti-aircraft gun positions was made last week by U.S. jets.

The strike was reported to have been flown Tuesday, following the downing of two U.S. Navy planes over the weekend by Communist guerrillas. There was no official acknowledgement of the accuracy of the reports.

* * * *

IF THE attack took place as depicted, there would have been two apparent purposes—to clear the way for resumption of photo reconnaissance flights which had been suspended after the loss of the two carrier-based planes, and to demonstrate American determination in assisting in the defense of Communist-menaced areas of Southeast Asia.

The Communists have described the attack as directed at a Laotian village, with civilians killed and injured.

Reports current here said Air Force F100 jet attack planes blasted Communist antiaircraft gun positions with tactical size conventional bombs, rockets and machine guns.

* * * *

COMMUNIST China officially protested to the British and Soviets that the jets bombed and strafed the Communist headquarters north of Vientiane, Laos, killing one Chinese Red and wounding five. Britain and Russia are co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference machinery on Laos.

Meanwhile, there were reports of stepped-up Red troop movements in the Plain of Jars, but dispatches from the fighting front said the morale of neutralist troops was bolstered by reports that U.S. jets were again active.

Scranton Rips Barry as 'Echo of Despair'

Lodge, brother of the ambassador to Saigon.

* * * *

SCRANTON quieted his supporters and Lodge finished his speech, accepting the nomination as GOP candidate for the U.S. Senate.

Scranton referred to Goldwater only once by name.

"Somebody asked me yesterday whether my candidacy was the beginning of a stop-Goldwater movement," he said. "My answer is this is a movement to win in November."

A crowd of about 200 persons waited in a light rain at the airport to greet Scranton. A middle-aged Girl Scout leader grasped his hand and said, "I've got something to vote for now, governor."

* * * *

"I AM OUT to tell the voters of the United States that we must have a separate choice," Scranton declared at an airport news conference. "I consider my candidacy for the Republican nomination an uphill fight."

In his convention speech, Scranton said the Johnson administration is "only marking time . . . It is not moving America forward. It should and can be turned out of office if the Republican Party first gets its own house in order."

He urged Republicans to change from a "whipped and sullen minority" to a "strong and vibrant majority." In another reference to Goldwater, he added:

"Because of the havoc that has been spread across the national landscape, the Republican Party wonders how it will make clear to the American people that it does not oppose Social Security, the United Nations, human rights and a sane nuclear policy."

* * * *

SCRANTON said at the airport that Goldwater's vote against cloture on the civil rights bill this week "had a lot to do" with his announcement that he was seeking the GOP presidential nomination.

The Connecticut convention opened Friday night, Rhode Island Gov. John H. Chafee, the keynoter, endorsed Scranton's candidacy.

Criticizing the administration's policies at home and abroad, Scranton declared that "the federal government has become paternalistic enough to interfere with private initiative, but not imaginative enough to propose truly new solutions."

He said the government is not honest enough to admit that it has been unable to live up to its own slogans."

* * * *

TURNING to the GOP, Scranton said:

"It is a fact that too many of those in the highest councils of the present front-running candidate have made it a rather poorly kept secret that they plan, if successful at the convention, to write off the very states our party must carry to win.

"It is a fact that in too many instances candidates who must run with our presidential standard-bearer this fall have already begun, as a matter of survival, to plan campaigns for themselves independent of the national ticket."

Barry's 61 Short of Victory

this goal, Scranton supporters are trying to woo Goldwater backers into the governor's camp.

As expected, the Idaho GOP convention voted unanimously to commit its 14 delegates to Goldwater. There wasn't an inkling of Scranton support.

But in Virginia, Scranton had support from suburban Washington backers who attempted to win 10 uncommitted delegates. They were overpowered, however, by Goldwater forces.

* * * *

IN NEW Mexico, Scranton's announcement Friday was called a "last gasp" by GOP chairman Joe Skeen.

Scranton's comparatively meager 94 convention votes could be increased if he can unite behind him the supporters of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Ambassador to Viet Nam Henry Cabot Lodge. An indication o fwhat could happen occurred Friday when Alaska switched from Rockefeller to give Scranton 10 of its 12 convention votes.

* * * *

A UNITED Press International survey shows Rockefeller with 121 first ballot convention votes, Lodge with 43 and former Vice President Richard Nixon with 10. Favorite sons hold 164 votes and 199 delegates are uncommitted.

Tuesday, Texas Republicans will select 56 delegates, and Thursday, the Montana GOP will name its 14.

Thousands Visit Beach; Tide Strong

Warming water and high surf attracted thousands to Southland beaches Saturday, but strong tiderips kept lifeguards busy.

Long Beach lifeguards, who reported the water temperature at about 60 degrees, said approximately 45,000 persons braved overcast skies to throng to the seashore. They reported "40-50 first aid calls and 17 rescues."

In Seal Beach, guards reported 43 rescues, nine first aid calls and a crowd estimated at 8,000.

Lifeguards there said they effected one "mass rescue," when 12 persons were caught in the same tiderip.

LIFEGUARD TIMES start of 200-yard race Saturday at foot of Alamitos Avenue. Youths were trying out for jobs as lifeguards.

Beachgoers' Foibles Keep 'em Jumping

'TIS A HECTIC LIFE, GUARDS

By CHUCK CHEATHAM

Summertime is relaxing and vacation time for almost everyone.

Everyone but lifeguards, that is.

For the lazy, hazy summer days bring weekday beach crowds of over 25,000 and weekend crowds of more than 200,000.

While these multitudes swarm the beaches, additional thousands are going to sea in every-kind of boat imaginable.

Captain Roy "Dutch" Miller, veteran lifeguard head, and his crew will be waiting to give them a hand when things go wrong.

DOWN TO a mere handful of 26 men in January, the lifeguards will have 115 manning 29 stations by July 1.

Five of the stations will be patrol boats, whose jobs will be to assist boaters on Long Beach's five miles of inland waterways or off the city's five and a half miles of beach.

The boats, manned by a skipper and deckhand, also rescue swimmers who venture too far out.

The guards will be on duty from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. on the beaches, from 8 to 8 at Alamitos Bay and from 8 to 11 at Colorado Lagoon.

In addition to rescuing swimmers, reuniting parents and lost kids and treating minor injuries, the lifeguards will be traffic officers on the inland waterways.

SPEED LIMITS—by land standards—are very low.

In the Naples canals the limit is three miles an hour.

In the other inland waters it zooms up to a fast five miles an hour.

Violators will find themselves cited to Municipal Court—same as land speed demons. Fines are the same, too—up to $500 and/or six months in jail.

The motorized lifeguards also arrest drunken boat drivers and litterbugs. Another job is to arrest persons who dive from piers and bridges, including those over the Naples canals.

"These laws are for the protection of swimmers who may suffer broken necks or other critical injuries from diving in shallow water or hitting a passing boat," Miller said.

IN THE MARINE Stadium, boats towing water skiers may travel 35 miles an hour, but if the towline is more than 75 feet that also brings a citation to appear in court.

In 1963, lifeguards rescued 1,588 persons from drowning and gave first aid to 1,555 injured. Most injuries were minor cuts, bruises and sting ray lashes.

Sting rays abound in warm coastal waters and in the Colorado Lagoon. Fortunately, they are cowards.

"They leave when people enter the water and you will never be stung if you shuffle your feet instead of jumping in when you go in the water at a quiet section of the ocean," Miller declared.

He said the worst case he ever saw was a water skier who was stung 15 times when he zipped through a school of sting rays.

MILLER'S CREW also, in conjunction with the police department, maintains a summertime jeep patrol on the beaches from 6 p.m. to 2 a.m.

During the winter, water safety films are shown to all Long Beach school children from the fourth grade up.

"We feel these films have paid off in fewer drownings and other water accidents," Miller said.

Some of Miller's tips on avoiding trouble:

Most persons get into trouble in still waters. "Apparently the breakers keep them close to shore in the ocean."

Don't swim near the piers where tide surges can throw you into the pilings.

Keep children off the rocks. "We have treated many for nasty cuts."

"It is a good idea for families to stay near the lifeguard stations and to tell their youngsters to go the station if lost or hurt.

"If you are boating and it capsizes, hang onto it. We will soon be there.

"Records show that more swimmers drown than non-swimmers. The swimmers overestimate their abilities and go out too far.

"Most of the non-swimmers that drown are those who go out on inner tubes and air mattresses.

"Every year thousands of people spoil their beach stays and some end up in hospitals with third-degree sunburn. An hour at most at the beginning of the season is enough."

While all the seasonal guards have been hired, Miller Saturday supervised yearly tryouts for an eligible list.

At the foot of Alamitos Avenue, 65 candidates swam 1,000 yards, ran 200 yards on the beach, swam 200 yards out to a marker, swam back and then ran another 200 yards.

$5.7-Million Proposal Submitted for Parks

of the augmented program."

He added that the plans encompass beautification of entrances to the city and landscaping of center dividing islands on major streets throughout the city.

* * * *

THE RELATED expansion and development of other play deemed most urgent in a $9-million master list compiled by Park, Recreation and Plannings Departments, Mansell said.

Recommended on the priority list are land acquisitions totaling 18.74 acres and improvements valued at $475,000. Annual operating and maintenance costs were estimated at $89,405 for the neighborhood centers and $160,000 for El Dorado East.

The priority list includes these estimates for combined acquisitions and improvements:

Wrigley district, 3.5 acres in an area between the Los Angeles River and Long Beach Boulevard, north of Pacific Coast Highway, $643,300.

MacArthur Park area, 3.5 acres between Temple and Orange avenues and between Seventh and Anaheim streets, $633,300.

Bixby Knolls, 3.2 acres between South and Market streets and between the Long Beach Freeway and Atlantic Avenue, $440,700.

North of downtown district, 3.1-acre expansion of Drake Park, $271,450.

Expansion of 18th Street and Cerritos Avenue Playground, 1.47 acres, $132,050.

Expansion of California Avenue Playground, .7 acre, $80,500.

Six-tenths of an acre addition to El Dorado Park by purchase of land adjacent to Newcomb School, south of Wardlow Road and west of Val Verde Avenue, $45,800.

Other projects not involving acquisitions are improvement of 1.85 acres of city-owned land at Jackson Street and Rose Avenue, 13,400, and .82 acre in the vicinity of Bouton Creek along Atherton Street, $7,000.

Commenting on the El Dorado East proposal, Mansell analyzed other possible financing methods but viewed them with disfavor as compared with the pay-as-you-go plan.

He conceded that Supervisor Frank J. Bonelli's offer that the county purchase and maintain a portion of the park for a golf course has some advantages, particularly in the saving of city funds.

* * * *

BUT HE pointed out that the county purchase would reduce the park site from 473 to about 330 acres, would represent a departure from the 1957 master plan and would entail loss of local control.

A bond issue would expedite the whole park program, he said, but would result in an additional outlay of $3,208,750 over a 20-year period for interest and related charges. It would also require a two-thirds majority vote of the electorate.

Not Seeking Either Spot on Ticket, Nixon Declares

fore the convention starts in San Francisco in mid-July, but "I assume Gov. Scranton counted the delegates, too, before he decided to get into the race."

He will maintain strict neutrality between now and the convention.

Press reports indicate Scranton had made a "strong statement" of his candidacy in Maryland Friday to counteract "bad publicity" that had emanated from the recent Governor's Conference where he seemed "to vacillate." Scranton's Maryland performance had "a good effect" on his candidacy.

He is not a "dark horse" in the race for the Republican nomination despite the views of some political observers that neither Scranton nor Goldwater will get the nomination if the convention gets past the first ballot.

Brains Dwell With Beauty

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

Beauty queens, these days, have an added dimension. . . .

They're well-rounded in fact as well as figure.

If recent contestants in the Miss Long Beach contest are criteria, the new generation is out to upgrade the quality of American life—as well as improve its outlook.

Take Karen Washburn, whose many-sided attributes won her the crown, a trip to Japan and the honor of acting as official hostess to contestants in Long Beach's upcoming IBC pageant.

A saucy blond whose eyes flash green with every smile, the new Miss Long Beach currently is pride of the local Chamber of Commerce, where she adds to the scenery as office receptionist.

IT'S HER VOICE, in fact, that flashes off and on at the switchboard, routing calls and answering queries on how many oil dericks there on Signal Hill (she doesn't know, does anyone?) or where the closest laudromat is.

Calls may come from a Long Beach information-seeker, a New York stockbroker or an Iowa farmer. One thing all callers have in common: they're impatient.

None will take "I don't know" for an answer.

As Karen puts it: "If I don't know how many shoe repair shops there are in town or how many sailboats are in the marina, I have to know where to find out."

Result: Miss Long Beach of 1964 knows more about the city she represents than any 18-year-old from Here to Anywhere.

But Karen's quest for knowledge doesn't stop there. Currently she's taking a 12-week industrial and professional manager's course and plans, this fall, to enroll at LBCC. Later she'll major in physical education at San Jose State.

This unspoiled beauty (who has a chance to get spoiled in a family of nine?") says her most urgent goal, at the moment, is to finish college. "Every girl should," says she.

MOST OTHER contestants echo the same theory.

First runner-up Penny Pemberton, who owns the biggest, brightest, busiest smile this side of a toothpaste add, hopes someday to use her hypnotic charm on courtroom judges.

She's studying to be a criminal lawyer!

At 19, she's already won a number of decisions. The latest: she'll be Long Beach's entry in the Miss California IBC contest.

KAREN MASHBURN—C of C oriented and college bound.

A talented dancer with 14 first-place trophies to her credit, she's taught ballroom dancing (also the hula!), has filled modeling assignments at Marshall Fields in Chicago and for national magazines, has done TV commercials and is one of the most sought-after mannequins at the William Adrian Agency in Pasadena.

An honor grad of Millikan High, she'll attend Long Beach City next year and plans, later to take her law at Northwestern.

MOST SCHOOLED of the Long Beach beauty contestants is third runner-up Helen Minton, a third-grade teacher at Tincher Elementary School.

A WILLOWY BLOND—who probably harvests more apples than the state of Washington—she's taught in the local school system four years, is a talented violinist (13 years of study), is a graduate of Iowa State University, took Spanish at Mexico City College, psychology at Harvard summer school. . . .

And this summer she'll work on her master's degree at California State College at Long Beach.

She practices her theory that women should take an active part in civic affairs, is interested in politics and often directs the activities of high school volunteers at Memorial Hospital.

When not otherwise engaged, she's busy answering such questions as "How come I didn't have a teacher like you when I was in school?"

ANOTHER FINALIST, Donna Nell Ewing, a blue-eyed blond with a cute flip-top hairdo, is hitching her wagon to starring roles in musical comedy.

PENNY PEMBERTON — Professional model, plans to become criminal lawyer.

She can sing. She can act. She can play the piano.

Since moving here from Colorado four years ago, Donna Nell has appeared in some 12 musical comedies produced by Civic Light Opera (most recently "Song of Norway" and "The Unsinkable Molly Brown"), Community Music Theater and Magnolia Theater.

Off-stage she's a clerk-typist at the U.S. National Bank in Los Altos.

Brown-haired Marilyn Rosenblatt, also a finalist, studies at State with public relations work her goal. Her current claim to fame: several public speaking awards.

Also: Sociology college major Janet Marie Cooney hopes to be personnel manager for a large corporation. . . . IBC sophomore Judy Lynn Meissen (studying to be a high school teacher) swims, skis, surfs, flies a plane and is an avid skin diver. . . . Suzy Bateman has her sights set on becoming an airline stewardess, a nurse and a policewoman, in that order.

And so go the goals and ambitions of the 1964 crop of Miss Long Beach beauty contestants. . . .

DONNA NELL EWING—Secretary on way to musical comedy.

HELEN MINTON—Teacher, with students Charles Cassingham, Carla Schroeder.

How a Loser Can Win House Seat

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Charles A. Buckley, the beaten Democratic boss of the Bronx, may not have been counted out of Congress after all, Capitol Hill sources hinted Friday.

The 73-year-old New York legislator is rumored to have devised a strategy that would enable him to remain in Congress even though he was upset in a primary for his House seat last week. Buckley has denied such an intention but the rumors persisted both in Washington and New York.

If the reported plan worked, the veteran of 29 years in Congress could return in January to start his 16th House term without any loss of seniority. This would permit him to retain one of the most influential of Congressional posts — chairmanship of the House Public Works Committee.

* * * *

THE PURPORTED maneuver would hinge on Buckley obtaining a judgeship for a fellow Bronx Congressman, and then running for his colleague's seat.

Buckley's career as a Congressman was believed to have come to an end on June 2 when Jonathan B. Bingham, a reform Democrat, defeated him in the primary for the party nomination.

Buckley had been accused by Bingham of using Congressional committee jobs to secure his control of the Bronx County Democratic Committee.

The New York Herald-Tribune earlier this week described the possible Buckley plan this way:

* * * *

BUCKLEY would prevail on Rep. Jacob Gilbert, D-N.Y., a close ally who represents a neighboring district, to accept a nomination for the state supreme court. The Bronx boss will have a great deal to say about who is the Democratic candidate for that post.

Buckley would, then seek the Democratic nomination for the vacant Gilbert seat, and would presumably have little trouble winning it. Since the district is strongly Democratic, he would also stand an excellent chance of winning in November.

There is nothing barring Buckley from running in a district in which he does not live. The U.S. Constitution merely states that a member of Congress must reside in the state which he represents.

If Buckley followed the strategy to a successful conclusion, it would appear that he could still retain his committee chairmanship, even though he is now representing another district. Traditionally, committee chairmen acquire their positions through seniority.

The House theoretically could refuse to rename Buckley to the chairmanship, but it is almost inconceivable that it would violate the cherished seniority tradition.

Heat Wave Kills 38 in East India

NEW DELHI (UPI)—Thirty-eight persons died of sunstroke in Bihar state in eastern India in a heat wave which began early this month, the Press Trust of India reported Saturday.

Temperatures of 112 degrees had brought intense suffering and that a number of thatched huts had burned during the drought.

Sutton (Neb.) Picnic

Former residents of Sutton, Neb., have planned a picnic in Houghton Park at 1 p.m. June 28. Coffee and cold drinks will be furnished.

Beverly Hills Mayor Received by Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI received in a special audience Saturday the mayor of Beverly Hills, Calif., Leonard Horwin.

The mayor, who was accompanied by his wife, Ulla, and their 22-year-old son, Noel talked briefly with the Pope in Spanish.

Code Retires as Edison District Manager

A. L. Code, Long Beach district manager for Southern California Edison Co., Saturday announced his retirement—for reasons of health—after 40 years of service with the utility.

Succeeding Code will be H. G. Hanawalt, who will transfer from his present post as Edison district manager in Fullerton.

Code's career with Edison began in Long Beach in 1924, and included many positions of administrative and managerial responsibility—the last nine years as district manager here.

DURING his tenure in Long Beach, Code served as president and director of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce and vice president of the Harbor District Chambers of Commerce. His service to the city also has included membership on the Urban Renewal Advisory Committee, the Mayor and Council's Advisory and Public Improvements Committee, and the Long Beach Committee for the California World's Fair.

Code's local business affiliates include directorships in the Downtown Long Beach Associates, Long Beach Convention & Visitors' Bureau, and International Beauty Congress. He also served as chairman of the board of the Better Business Bureau, and as a director of the Dominguez Water Corp. In addition, the Edison executive participated in Red Cross, Community Chest and Boy Scout activities, and recently acted as general chairman of the Long Beach Diamond Jubilee.

His organizational affiliations include, also, membership in the Pacific Coast Electrical Association and the Wilshire Lodge No. 445, F. & A. M.

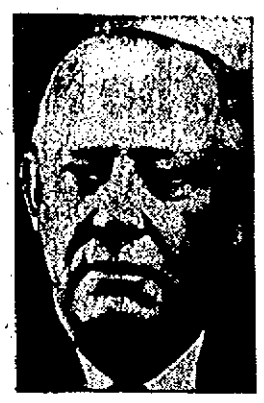

* * * *

HANAWALT previously served the Edison company as assistant district manager in this city. In announcing his appointment to the new position, Edison Division Manager C. M. Campbell commented:

"Mr. Hanawalt's education and extensive company experience ideally suit him for his position as manager of the company's largest district."

The Long Beach district includes Long Beach, Lakewood, Signal Hill, Hawaiian Gardens, and Dominguez-Carson areas.

Hanawalt joined the Edison company in 1946 and was assigned to the Industrial Relations department in the General Office in Los Angeles. Since leaving Long Beach, he has represented Edison as district manager in San Fernando, and then in Fullerton. Hanawalt has been active in civic affairs throughout his career with Edison and, prior to his transfer, was president-elect of the Fullerton Chamber of Commerce.

D-DAY PLUS 20 YEARS

Troops, Ships Jam the Harbor

GEN. EISENHOWER: Yes, he wanted to come and he told me of his intention to come along, and I told him he couldn't do it. I was commander-in-chief of this operation, and I wasn't going to risk losing him. He was worth too much to the Allied cause.

He thought a moment and said, "You have the operational command of all the forces."

I said, "Yes, that's right."

He said, "But you are not responsible administratively for the make-up of the crews."

And I said, "No, that's right."

He said, "Well, then I can sign on as a member of the crew of one of His Majesty's ships, and there's nothing you could do about it."

I said, "That's correct. But, Winston, you will make my burden a lot heavier if you do it."

So we left it at that.

Luckily, the King (George VI) learned of this somehow, and the King sent word to me and said, "Well, as long as the Prime Minister feels that it is desirable for him to go along on the operation, I think it would be my duty to go along with you, too."

So the King sent word to the Prime Minister that he would also be there.

Well, of course, the Prime Minister didn't want to take a chance on exposing the King to that kind of danger. So he didn't go either.

That was the way we stopped him.

MR. CRONKITE: Did the Prime Minister see you often?

GEN. EISENHOWER: Oh, yes. I remember particularly discussing with him the desirability of the ANVIL operation, the invasion of southern France. He thought it would be very nice to abandon that invasion. And I didn't. We had quite a few talks about that. (Gen. Eisenhower eventually had his way. The Allies invaded southern France on Aug. 15, 1944.)

The Prime Minister came down to see me just before D-Day to give me some instructions, or at least advice, about dealing with Gen. de Gaulle. (Charles de Gaulle was then leader of the Free French in exile.) Churchill was a staunch old fighter, that fellow.

MR. CRONKITE: He was opposed to this operation for a while, wasn't he?

GEN. EISENHOWER: For a long time. You know, in the last briefing we had—I think it was about May 15th — he used an expression that Americans thought rather odd. He said, "I'm hardening towards this enterprise." To us this meant that he was beginning to become more confident of its success. But like the British, he had bad memories of World War I and those terrible battles where you lost several hundred thousand men and gained nothing. So I think it was only natural that he should be cautious about giving his blessing to an operation where World War I might happen all over again. I told him we were coming ashore equipped to make this a war of movement.

Now, of course, it takes a long time to get that equipment ashore. That's why you need a beachhead. Later, we had newspaper reporters and commentators telling us that we were stymied over there in Normandy, and that we were going to have another Anzio (where Allied forces stalled for four months after establishing a beachhead early in 1943.) Because we made very little progress on the Continent up to about July 20th. That was for our build-up—because if we had broken out before, we couldn't go any place without the stocks of ammunition and, above all, gasoline that we needed to keep moving.

MR. CRONKITE: In Portsmouth, we saw a map marked with highways across the Channel. Did the ships have to stay right in those lanes?

GEN. EISENHOWER: They stayed very close to them. We put our minesweepers ahead of them to make sure we weren't going to be hurt by mines.

In that connection, we had another fine thing going. When you get within several miles of the coast, you can easily get lost in the darkness. You have very few landmarks you can see. So we put in tiny submarines that had to lie on the bottom of the Channel during that day when we postponed. They came up during the night and showed lights out to sea to guide our boats in to the beaches, to keep the landing craft going in where they were supposed to land.

You must realize, Walter, how hard it is for small boats to find their way to a particular beach. There were some bad currents, to say nothing of enemy fire and confusion and everything else. We had a great deal of trouble getting into the right places. As a matter of fact, we didn't get into the right places often. But the naval support was absolutely superb.

MR. CRONKITE: What about the German Navy?

GEN. EISENHOWER: They had a mosquito fleet in Le Havre, and they tried to come out and damage us. But nothing much happened. There were some in Cherbourg, too. But nothing really bothered us. They were absolutely helpless, and their submarines couldn't get in at all. Our shields were too good.

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL strolls with Gen. Eisenhower around countryside in England shortly before invasion armada departed. Sir Winston wanted to go along.

MR. CRONKITE: Do you think you could have made this landing without air superiority?

GEN. EISENHOWER: Oh no. We had not only knocked off the Luftwaffe, but as far back from the coast as two or three hundred miles, we had pockmarked every German airfield by our bombing and made them unusable. And then, of course, we had the bad weather. The Germans didn't believe we could possibly land then. So we had a day relatively free of enemy interference, except what we met on the beaches.

NEXT: Gen Eisenhower takes the invasion route across the English Channel, and then pays a visit to Pointe du Hoc, where a group of American Rangers showed great personal courage on that June day in 1944.

Long-Life A-Plant for Ships Revealed

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP)—Nuclear scientists have come up with an atomic power plant for ships which will double the power and life of present plants, Cyrus R. Vance, deputy secretary of defense, said Saturday night.

In a speech prepared for the 50th anniversary of the naval air station here, Vance noted that the world's first nuclear-powered ship, the submarine Nautilus, was launched 10 years ago.

Now Navy submarines can steam under water faster than most merchant ships can move on the surface, and the atomic-powered carrier Enterprise has maneuverability exceeding that of destroyers, Vance commented. He added:

"We can note with pride that in the past several months, those working on the development program for reactor cores to be used in ships have produced a design which will be twice as powerful and run more than twice as long without refueling as the units of the Enterprise."

Although Vance made no mention of it in his prepared text, the Navy this year has been seeking approval to increase its fleet of nuclear-powered surface ships because of the huge improvement in atomic reactor design and core life.

Vance said that during the last three years general ship construction for the Navy has increased 100 percent and the Navy now has an all-nuclear-powered task force—the Enterprise, the cruiser Long Beach and the Bainbridge (a destroyer-type) — deployed with the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

These Women Tell How They Reduced Successfully

Believe me when I say I'm proud to say I go to Pat Walker's Salon when my friends ask me what I've been doing to slim down so much and look and feel so good. It has given me a wholly new outlook on life where before I felt so depressed most of the time. I used to look at women in sheath dresses and slacks with envy and now I find myself thinking each time I see a lady with a weight problem, "you need to go to Pat Walker's."

—Mrs. Derelle O'Brien.

My unattractive figure almost wrecked a good marriage. Well, with kindness and understanding Pat Walker showed me how I could go down to the size 12.

Well this is one patron who will praise you everywhere. You have given me back my happy marriage.

Now I again have pride in my appearance and enjoy buying the pretty dresses I had to pass up in the past.

You did this for me and forever and always I will be grateful to you and your company.

—Irma Binder.

I wish I had a photo of how I looked before I went to reduce with her system. I don't have one because I looked so awful for so many years that any time anyone took a picture of me, I made a point of hiding behind my husband and anyone else who was near me because I was ashamed of how I looked. I love to garden. Now when I stoop over to cut my flowers I don't huff and puff getting up. That alone is worth a lot. Besides my husband and children are pretty proud of me because somehow my whole personality has changed.

—Mrs. Lillian Polak.

I never thought I'd reduce to 120 again. Well, I'm now down to 111 and have lost 35 or more inches overall and will continue until I am down to bone structure. I can't and will not give it up till then because I feel so light and different and was highly complimented recently by a sales clerk. It's a wonderful feeling after reducing at Pat Walker's. Recently a friend remarked, "Bea, you look wonderful what ever you're doing keep it up."

—Bea Symonds.

For many years, it seems like forever, I was hiding my figure under a boxy suit or coat, huge handbags and full skirts. My problems were all from the waist down. I had given up slacks and told everyone I didn't like the beach when the real truth was I was ashamed to wear a bathing suit. I'm proud to say I'm finished with my treatments. Now I wear a size 10 dress. Before I wore a 16. I had to because by hips and thighs were so bulgy. I lost 7 inches in my hips and 5 inches on\each thigh and my legs look decent again.

—Mrs. Jackie Stevens.

Just a few days ago, I met an acquaintance I hadn't seen for ten years. Her first words, "I see you've still kept your slender figure." Little did she know, Pat, about those "hidden" fat years. And now with your help, having lost all those pounds and inches—thanks to you and your system, Miss Walker, I feel breathlessly young as I walk once more confident of myself as a wife; my husband's young middle-aged wife.

—Kay Cougle.

Having once been a size 12 I became a bulging size 16. Being overweight caused a change in my life. I was no longer active mentally or physically. I became moody and generally unhappy. I began to eat more, both out of habit and boredom. Now that I am a size 12 again, my friends and acquaintances compliment me noticing the dramatic changes in my figure, appearance and outlook.

I'm proud of myself and you, too. Most important I believe the best part of my life is now starting.

—Kay Breaux.

I am a very happy patron of Pat Walker and rightfully so. I had figure problems and Pat Walker did something about them. I'm 29 years old and for the first time in 13 years I can't wait for summer to come because I'm going to spend time at the beach as I promised by children and will feel at at ease in a bathing suit.

—Jean Hudgins.

I'm married and have a grown daughter. For years I thought being overweight and uncomfortable was something I would have to live with because nothing in the past had worked to help me reduce effectively. Worst of all was the flabby tissue I had accumulated. I have reduced from 170 pounds to 136 pounds and I'm still losing. I'm losing weight where I wanted to and my face and neck hasn't become haggard looking as it had before.

—Mary Chester.

I was feeling miserable because I had 40-inch hips, my thighs were over 25½ inches each, I had "over the bra" bulges, not to mention other figure faults. I've lost 4 inches from my waist, 5½ inches from my tummy, 5½ inches from my hips and 4 inches each on my thighs, and 2½ inches from each arm.

—Frances Robertson.

Reduces from Size 18 to Size 12 and Still Going Down

Here you see Doris George as a size 12. She reduced 9 inches from her waist, 8 inches from her hips, 5 inches from each thigh, 8 ½inches from her abdomen and 2 inches from each arm and is still going down. Now that she is a size 12 she has started a completely new life of happiness. She soon will be down to her normal size 10.

as told by
Mrs. Doris George
Bellflower

My husband and I own Bissburger Restaurant, 8411 Rosecrans, Paramount. We are opening another one in Norwalk soon.

Since I have taken the Pat Walker treatments I have become a new person, I feel better, the pains in my legs have left me as I am on my feet all day when working. I am so proud of the new me.

I get nothing but compliments from my customers. My husband takes me out more and we now attend restaurant conventions.

My husband always wanted me to buy new clothes, but I did not have any enthusiasm for buying the large sizes I had to wear. When a woman has to buy a size 18, she has to buy what they have to offer, not what she wants.

I have now started a complete new life. My boys are always hugging me, and they are so proud of their new mother. Children like to be as proud of their parents as the parents are of their children.

I have carried this weight for eight long years since my last baby was born. I am so proud too that I can now work around food and have no desire to pick at it. My will power has increased 1000%. My customers tell me that I look so wonderful and want to know what has happened. I tell them all that they should go to a Pat Walker Salon.

Since my children are in school, and I have so much free time I can now take an active part in my husband's business, and we have a closeness that we never had before.

We are forming a new corporation for a new restaurant, and he is so proud of me he is making me Vice President of the corporation.

I am looking forward to the happiest and most active summer of my life with my children and my husband.

I now know that everything I have read about Pat Walker, and the results that you get by going to her Salons are all true and even more so. All her patrons feel the same. It is just deciding it's time to do something about it. Once you make a decision, your problem is already half solved. I thought about it for months before calling Pat Walker. I just wish I had done it long before.—Doris George.

Nationally Recognized Figure Authority Tell About How You Can Reduce

Pat Walker,
Nationally Recognized
Figure Authority

I have just returned from Hawaii where we have opened another salon.

I always enjoy visiting in the salons and of course it is always pleasant to visit with the patrons and discuss their summer, vacation and fall plans.

Now that summer is here, it suddenly makes a woman realize that her figure is so important to her because she knows that warm weather means figure-revealing clothes and summer brings bathing suits, shorts, capris and vacation clothes out of storage.

All too often, a woman will tell us how her vacation was ruined because she tried on her previous summer's clothes and found the added inches and weight made it impossible for her to wear them. And after shopping for new clothes, she became demoralized and disheartened because nothing looked the way it should. This resulted in a minimum wardrobe "just to get by" and the excuse of why she didn't want to be seen at a pool or the beach.

It is a shame that all too many women experience this because in truth it need not happen. Today, it is best to invest money in a new figure than try to buy clothes to disguise it. You can buy your figure back just as you would purchase clothes, furniture, automobiles, or anything else.

The only thing is that it is a service and you have to come to the salon to get it. But, it is nice to know that we make reducing most pleasant and therefore a woman enjoys the time spent with us.

I visit with so many, many women of every age, walk of life and nationality, and each woman thinks her figure problems are so very different from another woman's that it will work for that other woman but not for her.

After a figure analysis, she realizes her figure problem is really not so different and that thousands of others have experienced the same problems that she is and suddenly, she regains hope and faith that something can be done for her and her own figure problems. When she has had her figure analysis, she knows where she needs to lose, what it will cost her, and how long it will take.

It is a very proud, secure, happy woman who has the figure to wear new slim summer dresses and play clothes. As a result she receives compliments and attention of those closest to her because she becomes a new person both in appearance and personality. This has not been luck on her part, she made her own luck when she recognized she had figure problems and came to use for help.

Miss Pat Walker, the nationally recognized figure authority, talks to many women of every age, walk of life, and nationality, and each woman thinks her figure problems are so very different from another woman's that it will work for that other woman but not for her. Pasadena Woman Reduces And Now Enjoys A Newly Found Happiness

Gladys Compton
Pasadena

When I went to Pat Walker's with a friend of mine, I really wondered if it would work. I was a grocery checker in a super market. I have two children, 12 and 13, and am divorced.

Standing on my feet at work all day long and then going home in the evening and doing housework was a routine I dreaded because I was tired and disgusted with the way I looked and the way I felt.

It seems that now things have changed. My 12 and 13 year old children see me as a new mother, full of pep and ready to go. I have a different outlook on everything and actually look forward to a new day and new social activities that I now feel like joining in.

I'm so glad that I made up my mind to try once more to better myself because someone said to me if you don't care enough to care about yourself no one else is going to and they were right.

I really have had wonderful results with Pat Walker and everyone is so pleasant and cheerful that reducing has been fun. I fully recommend Pat Walker as a place to slim down and lose weight.

—Mrs. Gladys Compton.

Here you see Gladys Compton when she was a size 16. She was tired and disgusted with the way she looked. At the right you'll see her as a perfect size 10.

Here you see Gladys Compton as a size 10 she is today. She reduced 6 inches from her hips, 3 inches from each thigh, 5 inches from her abdomen, 4 inches from her waist and 5 inches from each arm.

Reduces 87 Pounds in Only 14½ Weeks and Still Going Down

as told by
Mrs. Shirley Avery
Honolulu

The reason that I started taking treatments at the Pat Walker salon was because my husband Don, was always trying to get me to buy clothes that would improve the appearance of my size 22½. He was also constantly trying to get me to exercise.

Then I saw a Pat Walker ad in the paper so we both decided why not give it a try. I have always hated trying on clothes because to me they all looked the same when you wear a 22½ dress.

I have been going to Pat Walker's only 14½ weeks and can now wear a size 12 dress. There is nothing I enjoy more than just going into the stores trying on dresses now that I am down to a size 12, even when I have no intention of buying them.

I first came to Hawaii in 1957 and I met my husband in 1958 when he was in the Navy. We were married in 1962. I was born in Beckley, West Virginia and I was always so fat and this is the smallest that I can ever remember being.

Thanks to the people at the Pat Walker salon, when I go back home this year, I will be able to greet my family and meet my in-laws for the first time looking like a person instead of just a great big blob.

Sincerely Your,
Mrs. Shirley P. Avery.

Here you see Mrs. Shirley Avery 14½ weeks ago when she was a size 22½. Her husband was constantly trying to get her to buy clothes that would improve her appearance and she hated trying to buy dresses because none of the size 22½ dresses made her look any different. At the right you'll see her wearing a size 12 dress.

Here you see Mrs. Avery with Pat Walker, the nationally recognized figure authority. After only 14½ weeks she is down to wearing a size 14 dress. She has reduced 87 pounds, lost 5½ inches of "over-the-bra-roll," 6 inches from her waist, 10½ inches from her abdomen, 9 inches from her hips, 5 inches from each thigh, 3 inches from each arm, and is still going down. Since this picture Mrs. Avery is now down to a size 12.

San Fernando Valley Woman Reduces From A Size 16 to A Perfect Size 10

Mrs. John Holmes, Jr.
Woodland Hills

For the past four years I had avoided getting on the scales completely. I knew that I had put on a "little weight" but even rationalized to the point that with the new "A" line look, a larger size dress was necessary.

My emotional insecurity increased with each pound and I had no interest in nice clothes or having any kind of social life that would necessitate putting me in the lime-light, so to speak.

Fatigue was my most constant companion and it seemed as if I could never get adequate sleep which I now realize was probably due to my self-imposed unhappiness.

When I suddenly thought of Pat Walker and started attending regularly and faithfully each week. Not only did I like having an objective of bettering myself but Pat Walker's program made me feel like a new person after each treatment.

Now a short time later I wear a size 10 instead of a size 16 and it is actually a pleasure to buy clothes.

I have ten times the energy as compared to when I was dragging around all those extra pounds daily. I even wear a size smaller shoe as my body has lost the tendency to maintain fluid which your treatments were so marvelous at getting rid of.

My husband, the owner of the Holmes & Klein Accounting Co., is so very proud of me and so are my 4 children.

I feel that these treatments work completely for the woman who is willing to be honest with herself. "One does not get something for nothing" and cooperating fully with what little of what is expected of you it is a sure thing for anyone to reduce with Pat Walker.—Sherlee Holmes.

Questions and Answers By Miss Pat Walker

QUESTION: Is there still time to reduce before the hot summer playtime is here?

ANSWER: Yes. Fortunately, there is still time if you will make the effort of calling to set up an appointment to see what we need to do for you.

QUESTION: I have tried so many methods to reduce and still am a mess! Do you really help people as your ads say you do?

ANSWER: Our ads are written around real patrons, many just like you who felt nothing could be done for them. So don't feel so discouraged. Come to see us. Reducing is our business.

QUESTION: I am a teacher. Do you think I could get down a couple of dress sizes by the time school starts this fall?

ANSWER: You are not asking for much. The best way to find out exactly what can be done is to come in and let us see you in person.

QUESTION: What do you do about a husband who nags you all the time because you are bulgy and fat and at the same time does not want you to spend the money to do anything about it when he knows you have tried every home method in the book?

ANSWER: Surprise him by doing something about it on your own. You are grown up and should take the initiative. After all, you and you alone live with this problem every minute of every day and experience has shown us that after he sees results he will be most proud of you for doing something about your problem.

QUESTION: I am a 76 year old grandmother with 12 grandchildren and 40 lbs. overweight. Do you think you can help me?

ANSWER: Congratulations on having 12 wonderful grandchildren but that really has nothing to do with your overweight problem. Come and see us. If it helps to know we have many women in their 70's. It is a smart woman who recognizes she has a problem regardless of age and does something about it.

Teen-Age Misses Reduce and Have Summer Fun with The Pat Walker Program

We have had so many calls in the last few weeks from parents who are concerned about their teenage daughters who are faced with summer activities and ashamed to wear play clothes and bathing suits. I would like personally to invite you to come in and discuss your daughter's problems. They are at an age that many emotional problems occur only because they feel inferior to other girls who have attractive figures. This should not be the case. We can help them, and, of course, when we see them in person, we can determine just what we can do for them individually and just how long it will take and the exact cost of correction.

Regain Youthful Figure Without Rigid Diet

"Under a rigid diet program women will lose weight," says Miss Walker. "But they won't lose it in all the places they should.

"Perhaps the waistline may shrink from hunger but the bulging hips, large thighs, thick ankles and sway back remain after dieting.

"Under our system we accept each individual as a separate figure problem. We chart the course necessary and go to work."

2 GOP Candidates Accept TV Discussion Invitation

NEW YORK (AP)—Governors Nelson A. Rockefeller and William W. Scranton Saturday accepted an invitation by the Columbia Broadcasting System for a two-hour face-to-face discussion on radio and television next Sunday night for the three leading candidates for the Republican presidential nomination.

There was no immediate word from Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Frank Stanton, president of CBS, sent telegrams to Goldwater, Scranton of Pennsylvania and Rockefeller of New York.

"We hope that you agree that such a discussion among the three major Republican candidate to be moderated by CBS news correspondent Walter Cronkite will be of great significance, and that your participation will be an important public service in setting out your viewpoints on the issues," Stanton said in identical telegrams to the thre candidates.

In Albany, N.Y., a spokesman for Rockefeller said the governor accepted the CBS invitation.

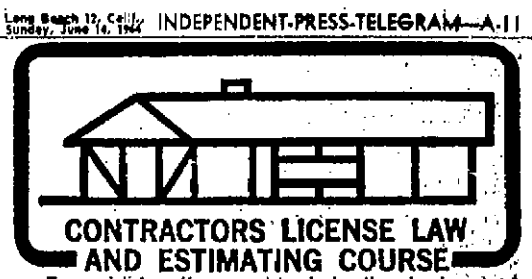

In Dalton, Pa., William Keisling, an aide to Sranton, disclosed he had sent Stanton the following return telegram.

"Gov. Scranton accepts your kind invitation to participate in a two hours face-to-face discussion from 9 to 11 p.m. (EDT) on June 21 with Sen. Goldwater and Gov. Rockefeller."

LBJ, Turk Leader Slate Cyprus Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson undertook a new effort to calm down the explosive crisis over Cyprus Saturday by scheduling talks here June 22 with Turkish Prime Minister Ismet Inonu.

INONU

Informed sources said that now that Inonu has accepted Johnson's invitation to come to Washington, a similar visit by Greek Premier George Papandreou can be expected.

After the White House announced Inonu's visit, administration sources said they would "neither anticipatn nor foreclose" a visit by the Greek leader.

The threat of a Greek - Turkish war over the Mediterranean island of Cyprus has hung in the air for several months. The United States has tried, without actually getting into the dispute, to urge restraint on both sides.

Rev. Dubay Pickets Protest to Cardinal

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pickets pressed close to the car of James Francis Cardinal McIntyre Saturday and shouted, "We agree with Father Dubay," as the cardinal left commencement exercises for 38 nurses.

The pickets referred to the Rev. William H. Dubay, who has asked Pope Paul VI to remove the cardinal for alleged inaction on civil rights.

Cardinal McIntyre had entered St. Vincent Catholic Church by a side door and there was no initial confrontation with the pickets. He presented diplomas to the St. Vincent's College of Nursing graduating class. The newsmen questioned him about the pickets and Father Dubay. "No comment whatsoever," Cardinal McIntyre said. The priest has been relieved of administrative duties at St. Albert the Great Church.

St. Augustine Segregationists March

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla. (UPI)—About 250 sign-bearing segregationists marched grimly into the Negro neighborhood Saturday and the Negroes sang "we love everybody" as they trooped by.

There was no violence and the whites' march produced considerably less tension than a similar one Friday.

The Negroes apparently planned no march Saturday. Their top leader, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was bailed out of jail Saturday and flew north.

Led by arch-segregationist J. B. Stoner of Atlanta, the whites began their march at dusk, only a few hours after a federal judge refused to let the city ban nighttime demonstrations.

About 200 state and local policemen, stationed three feet apart, walked along on either side of the whites, who marched two abreast.

Castro Says He's 'Ready' for U.S. Talks

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro said Saturday Cuba is ready to hold talks with the United States though not in an atmosphere of threats and aggression. But he said Cuba had never sought such talks.

Castro, in a rambling talk with newsmen at the British Embassy on the occasion of Queen Elizabeth's birthday, said some gestures had been made by persons interested in improving relations between the two countries.

There have been recent reports that Cuba has asked Spain to act as a go-between to get talks started between the two countries but Castro said "Cuba, as an offended country, will never seek conversation because of our dignity."

Germans Reply to Note by Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (UPI)—West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard Saturday sent a note to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev on current political issues.

Karl-Guenther Von Hase, West German undersecretary for information, announced in Washington that Ambassador Hoerst Groepper delivered the note in answer to a Soviet note to Erhard last March.

Utah GOP Halts J. Bracken Lee Comeback

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The Utah Republican Convention halted the comeback bid of former Gov. J. Bracken Lee Saturday, eliminating him from contention for the gubernatorial nomination.

Lee, now mayor of Salt Lake City, ran third in a five-man field as the convention pared the candidates to two contenders in the Aug. 11 primary.

Named to the primary were Mitchell Melich, former GOP national committeeman, and D. James Cannon, state tourist publicity director.

School's Out and Right In Again for Many

By BOB WILCOX
I. P-T Education Editor

If you're skipping a vacation this year, don't tell your troubles to one out of every five Long Beach high school students.

They'll be hitting the books as hard in summer school as they did all winter long.

What in the world's happened to summer school?

Only seven years ago, the Long Beach system proudly announced a total enrollment of 9,000. This year it will top 15,000 for the first time.

* * * *

IN 1957, eight schools were open; this year there will be 18. Courses through high school have increased to nearly 100.

"Year-round" education has arrived from a simple fact. Requirements have tightened to a point where even the best students can't get all the education they want or need in nine months.

So they just take a two-week breather until July 1, then plunge into six-week sessions at the grade schools and seven-week terms at the high schools.

* * * *

ABOUT 2,500 pupils already have signed up for sessions at nine elementary schools—Addams, Gant, Garfield, Lowell, Monroe, Stevenson, Twain, Bixby and Longfellow.

Nearly 4,000 are expected at the five junior highs—Bancroft, Jefferson, Lindberg, Stanford and Washington. The three high schools — Jordan, Poly and Wilson—will enroll about 3,500. Long Beach City College, which will start six- and eight-week terms June 22, will welcome about 5,000.

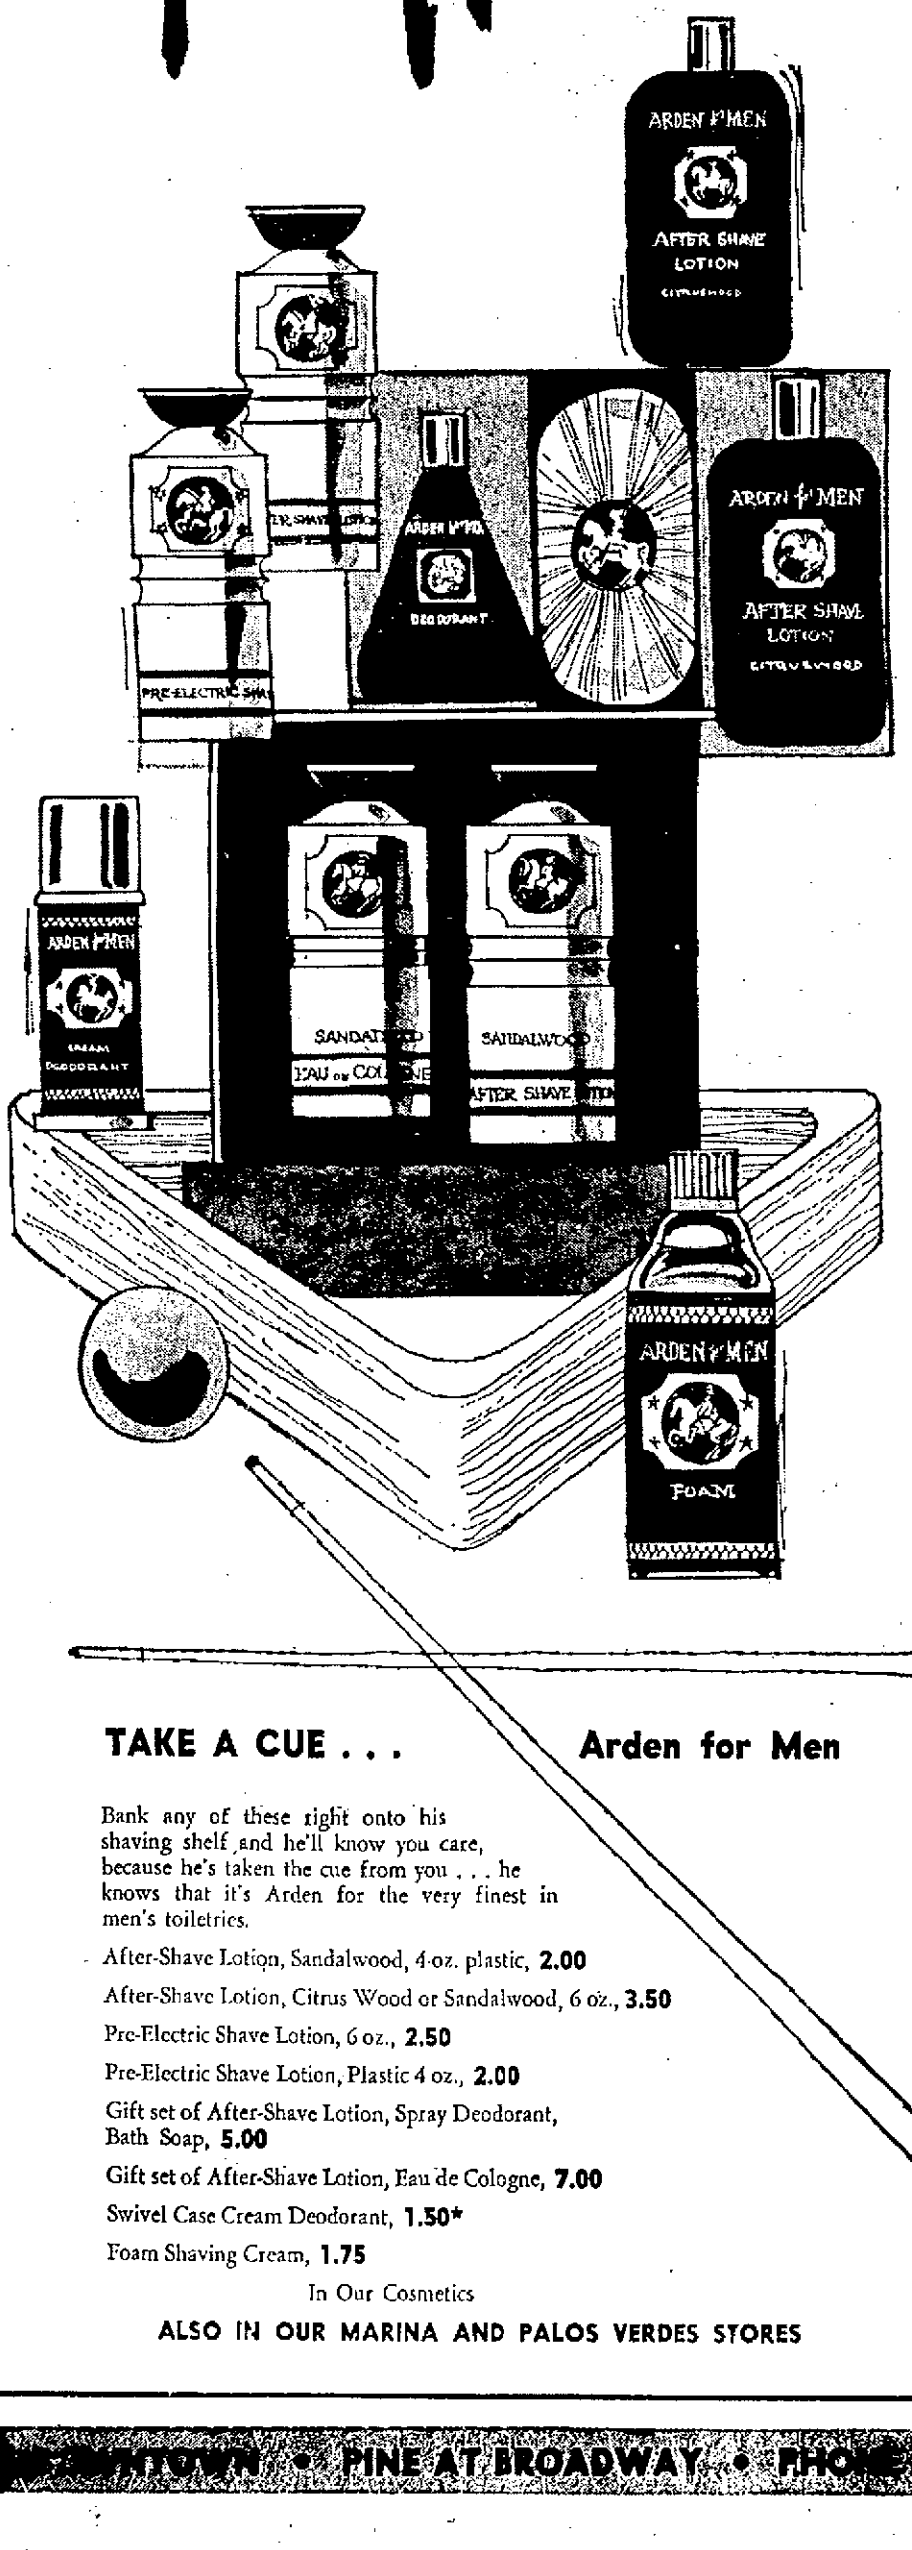

Although the grade school and junior and senior high school sessions are half-day (8:10 a.m. to 12:10 p.m. and 8 a.m. to 12:40 p.m., respectively), each course is a full semester's work. Some four-hour, full-year classes are offered.

Weather-Ravaged China Calls for Unity

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Assailed by outside foes and by new caprices of the weather, Red China's most prevalent slogans today are "support the people's republic! Support the communes!"

These were the exhortations most frequently seen by a recent non-Asian traveler to the Chinese mainland. He would like to name another visit sometime and consequently asked that he remain nameless.

He recognized that massive ideological and personal attacks from the Soviet bloc may have brought out the unusual call for popular support to the Communist regime. He was puzzled by the plea for unity behind the agricultural communes.

The answer has been supplied by recent news reports, one of them in the Tokyo economic newspaper Nihon Keizai, that the mainland was hit by unusually cold weather and a long spell of rain this spring.

The rain and cold have contributed to flooding and rotting of rice paddy plants and the destruction of winter wheat by disease.

* * * *

RAIN IN April was almost continuous in some areas, creating wheat rust in Hopeh, Nonan, Shantung and Kiangsu Provinces.

All this has been a blow to Chinese planners who looked forward to further agricultural improvements.

The government has met this new crisis by emphasis on help for the 26,000 communes which, though much decentralized since the failures of three years ago, have an effective organization structure.

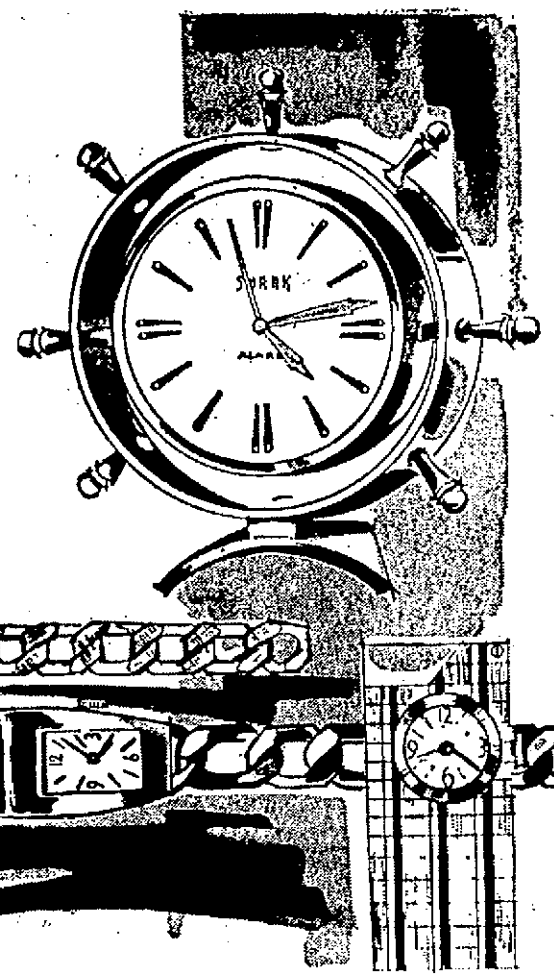

A conference of agricultural technical experts has been called to study countermeasures.

The full impact of the weather has yet to be felt in big cities and the leadership apparently believes a concerted effort through the communes can lighten the blow.

The traveler saw evidence in flooding in the big industrial Wuhan area where many bridges were down or in the process of repair and large areas were under water.

HEROISM AT SEA: RESCUER, PAL TELL THE STORY

'...But I Figured I Had to Last It Out...'

By L[illegible]ODNEY

Henry [illegible] Bouchate, a Buena Park truck driver who is in a hospital bed today with a severe case of exposure, dehydration, sunburn and fish bites, is not one of the breed who doesn't like to "involve himself" with his fellow men.

This, as [illegible] three buddies who probably owe their life to him will eventually testify, is a MAN, all 6 feet, 2 inches, 185 pounds of him.

Make that 169 pounds, which is what Van Bouchate weighs after 19 hours and 10 minutes in the waters of the Gulf of California in Mexico last week.

* * * *

"VAN," WHO live at 8169 Los Altos Ave. in Buena Park with his wife, Elaine, and children, Donna, 8, Donald, 7, and Gary, 6, was stranded in an 18-foot inboard fishing boat with three fellow Southern Californians around noon Tuesday. Unable to start the motor after the ignition starter burned out, they had been without food or water since 5 a.m. Monday, when they had taken off for a bit of fishing from the little Mexican town of Bahia Kino, on the mainland side of the Gulf about 550 miles south of the border. Fighting a powerful current, they had rowed in to within about five miles of the lonely shore, and could get no further.

And then?

* * * *

"I FIGURED someone better jump in and swim to shore for help," Van Bouchate said with a shrug at the Garden Park Hospital in Anaheim. He was on his back, immobile, being fed fluids intravenously, his sunburned and fishbitten legs under the sheet, arm scarred angrily by fish bites, face deeply brown, creased and peeling for all the world like that of Lawrence of Arabia after his desert rescue trip.

Why him?

Van shrugged again. "I thought I was the most eligible."

Was he an experienced long distance swimmer?

* * * *

THIS BROUGHT a snort of laughter from Ralph DePhillips, 36, of 7782 E. Orchard Drive, Buena Park, one of the four fishing buddies, who was visiting his rescuer. The other two are Archie R. King, 44, of 12747 S. Leibacher Ave., Norwalk, and John H. Elkins, 28, of Los Angeles.

"He's swum in someone's backyard pool about twice in the last year," he said..

So Van, who will be 40 in a few months, said "so long," in the drifting boat and slid overboard into reputedly shark-infested waters. In fact, DePhillips put in, they had been told the nearby island of Tiburon means shark in Spanish.

VAN THOUGHT he could make shore in four or five hours, but found the current running seaward too strongly and headed north.

After seven fruitless hours of trying, with darkness descending, the parboiled and exhausted swimmer decided he'd better get back to the boat and try again the next morning.

"I yelled out for the boat, but they coudn't hear me."

The boat, DePhillips interjected had drifted farther out as the anchor failed to hold against the current.

* * * *

WITH NIGHTFALL came the fish, whole schools of them nipping at Van's arms and legs whenever he moved.

"They hit me pretty good there for a couple of hours. I guess they were mullet and trigger fish—they'd nip real fast." He grinned faintly. "I got my two hands around one of those fish. He won't bite anyone else."

Much more frightening was a moment when he thought he saw a shark. "One of the toughest things I ever did was to stay still," he said. "It finally went away."

* * * *

IT GOT real rough in the middle of the night, he acknowledged, with the cumulative effect of thirst, exhaustion, chilly air, attacking fish and swallowing of salt water.

What went through his mind? Did he ever think he wouldn't make it?

Van considered the question. "Ah, I don't know—I was pretty down, I guess, but I figured I had to last it out. . ."

"Tell him what you told me before," De Phillips said.

Van demurred, "It's kind of silly," he said, then upon urging told of seeming to hear a voice tell him to keep going . . . he was on the right path . . . help wasn't too far off. . .

* * * *

"IT'S HARD to remember—like a dream—I thought I saw a big dock just ahead with boats lined up and people—" He grinned sheepishly. "You know, a mirage, like someone in the desert."

Sometime after dawn, he related, the offshore current slackened a bit and he managed to make shore, about four miles north of Kino.

"I roused some camper, and he took me into town. . ."

* * * *

THIS WAS too much for De Phillips. "Listen to him," he exploded, "Like it was nothing. Let me tell this part. This guy dragged himself out of the water and couldn't even stand, so he started crawling, worried about getting help for us. He crawled for more than a half hour and kept trying to stand up. Now remember, he had no food or water since 5 a.m. Monday when we took off, and this was 7 a.m. Wednesday. Instead of just lying there, he kept crawling, kept trying to stand, till he finally made it up. And then he started to RUN!"

"Easier than walking," mumbled Van.

Adoptions Unit Picks New Head

A new [illegible]inistrator to succeed the[illegible]e Harry Holt who arranged for the adoption of more than 3,000 Korean orphans was announced June 12 by Mrs. Bertha Holt, widow of the founder of the Harry Holt Adoption Program at Creswell, Oregon.

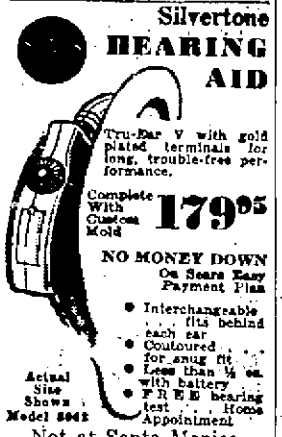

Holt, a former millionaire, died April 28 on the grounds of the 800-bed orphanage he founded outside the small village of Il San in South Korea.

Named as his successor was Louis O'Conner, a Baptist minister of Nashville, Tenn. Rev. O'Conner, plans to move his wife and five children, one of whom is an adopted Korean orphan, to the orphanage in August, Mrs. Holt announced.

The new administrator spent five years as a missionary in Korea where he started his own adoption agency placing abandoned Korean babies into Korean homes.

Holt died of a heart attack at the age of 59 while arranging for the adoption of 11 orphans by eight Southland parents during a visit of the prospective parents at the hilltop orphanage in late April. He was buried in the children's plot adjacent to the orphanage's chapel.

Marshall 'Plan' Sends U. S. Players to Japan

AMERICAN INFLUENCE FELT?
Scoreboard in Tokyo's Korakeun Stadium with fountain and flashing lights looks like something Bill Veeck or Charles Finley might have exported.

By JACK MUHLENBECK
Special to the I, P-T

NAGOYA, Japan — Upon returning to Rio a Brazilian businessman wanted to catch up on soccer in his home state. On the way into town from the airport he asked the cab driver, a member of the large Japanese community in Brazil, how his favorite team was doing. Without turning around the cab driver replied that he didn't know. He didn't follow soccer; his favorite sport was a Japanese game called baseball.

Maybe baseball wasn't invented in Japan as the cab driver thinks but there is little question the game, played professionally for less than thirty years, is Japan's favorite sport and has grown to such proportions that this summer no less than two dozen American players, half of them former major leaguers, draw their salaries in yen instead of dollars.

Among the Americans playing in Japan's two major circuits, the Central and Pacific Leagues, is former Giant, Cub and Pirate first baseman Jim Marshall, the first American to move directly from a U.S. major league roster to a Japanese team.

Marshall, from Long Beach, Calif., is playing his second full season for the Chunichi Dragons of Nagoya, 1963 Central League runners-up.

What would make a man like Marshall, at age 30 with many years left in American baseball, want to play in Japan?

"I was beginning to play utility my last two years in the majors," Marshall explained in the dugout one night early this season in Nagoya. "Here I can play regularly and still go back to being a second-liner in the U.S. someday, if I want to."

Describing baseball in Japan, Marshall says the Dragons, a team owned by one of Japan's biggest newspapers, have treated him "big-league" in every way. "We play five times a week with every Monday and Friday off. Baseball here is a little different but the thing to remember is that I am in their country and it is up to me to adjust to the game they play here. And it isn't that hard."

Marshall and his family make their home in Tokyo where three of the six Central League games are home-based. He usually flies to the games played in Osaka, Hiroshima and his team's home games in Nagoya, some 250 miles from Tokyo.

They're Playing U.S.-Style Ball

The image most Americans have of the Japanese game is a contest of pitch and catch between fellows five feet tall. This is not quite true.

While it is correct to say that the pitchers in Japan do steal most of the headlines, the Islands are not without their hitters.

For example in 1963 the Japan Series champion Yomiuri Giants of Tokyo, playing 140 regular season games, collected 143 home runs, just a dozen less than the Mets and Colts combined!

Individually too the Japanese have long ball hitters.

Playing in 149 games Nankai Hawk catcher Katsuya Monura swatted 52 round trippers to set a new Japanese professional record. Can you name one American who hit as many in 1963?

Though the hitters do get a share of the spotlight in Japan it is still the pitchers who, by American standards, turn in the outstanding performances.

But by far the most consistent pitcher, and probably the best in Japan, is lefthander Masaichi Kaneda of the Kokutetsu Swallows of Tokyo, a year-in-year-out tailender.

Kaneda, a strapping six foot-two, has pitched 13 seasons for the Swallows and has won 20 or more games each year. In 1963 he won 30 times, almost half his team's victories. In 1955 he fanned 350 hitters in 400 innings and has a career total of more than 3,800 strikeouts, more than the immortal Walter Johnson.

The 'Warren Spahn of Japan'

In his career Kaneda, only 32 now, has won 326 games, and if the "Warren Spahn" of Japan, as he is called, can pitch as long as his American counterpart, he has a good shot at the Cy Young 511 lifetime victory record.

It is ironic to note that the Milwaukee Braves tried to sign Kaneda to go with the real Spahn a few years back but Kaneda turned down the offer saying he was "too old."

How would the best Japanese players stack up in the U.S.?

According to Marshall, left-hander Kaneda would be a winner in the U.S., and Giant star third baseman Shigeo

A YANK IN NAGOYA
Friendship between teammates Jim Marshall (right) of Long Beach and pitcher Eiji Bando of Nagoya's Chunichi Dragons is typical of the manner in which Japanese have accepted American players into ranks of their national pasttime.

The quick, foxy Dodgers jumped over two lazy dogs backs Saturday.

Typing students will recognize the paraphrasing of an elementary exercise. Baseball students may regard it as the end of the Dodgers' hunt and peck offense.

Wes Parker, Tommy Davis, Bob Miller and Ron Perranoski were the key men as the blue ribbon winners of 1963 completed a three-game sweep of the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-2.

The victory elevated the Dodgers two notches into a tie for fifth with the Braves, who come to Dodger Stadium for a doubleheader this afternoon. The Dodgers are 4½ games behind the front-running Phils and Giants.

* * * *

THE DODGERS reached the .500 level (28-28) for the first time since the second game of the season and the Cardinals, the NL's latest hit-less wonders, ran into a minus pool for the first time since opening day.

St. Louis was restricted to 13 hits in the series, while the Dodgers had 31 in registering their sixth three-game winning string of the year. Ken Boyer, the Cardinals'

U.S. Captures Wightman Cup

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Carole Caldwell and Nancy Richey scored singles tennis victories over their British opponents between rainfalls Saturday and clinched the Wightman Cup for the United States for the fourth straight year.

Miss Caldwell, of Santa Monica, Calif., defeated Elizabeth Starkie, the British team captain, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3 and then Miss Richey, from San Angelo, Tex., dealt the winning blow by downing Ann Haydon Jones 7-5, 11-9.

The triumphs gave the United States a 4-1 lead in the series and made formalities of the final two matches—a singles and a doubles.

The remaining matches will be played Sunday. Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., will go against Deidre Catt in singles and Miss Richey will team with Donna Floyd Fales of New York, U.S. captain, in doubles against Miss Starkie and Angela Mortimer, the British captain.

Miss Caldwell's match, a baseline duel, was interrupted briefly by rain. The Richey-Jones match was halted for 2½ hours by a shower that hit Wimbledon's center court with the American girl leading 3-1 in the second set.

The Americans have now won the trophy 30 times to Britain's six. The cup was presented in 1923 for competition between women amateurs of the two countries.

DRESSEN NOT GUESSIN'?

Angels Lose, Claim Spy in Scoreboard

By ROSS NEWHAN
I, P-T Staff Writer

DETROIT—America has its spy in the sky and Charlie Dressen has I spy in the scoreboard.

This story would best be written by Ian Fleming, for the I, P-T learned that the Angels suspected Dressen of having a spy in the centerfield scoreboard Saturday as the Tigers ripped 14 hits, their season high, and thumped the Cherubs, 8-5, snapping a four-game victory streak.

The clandestine maneuver was first detected by bullpen coach Jack Paepke and Albie Pearson in the second inning. They spotted a set of binoculars peering out of a portal in the huge scoreboard which rests atop the centerfield bleachers.

* * * *

PEARSON notified manager Bill Rigney, who brought the case before first base magistrate Ed Hurley.

"We can't say for sure that they were stealing our signs," said Rigney, "and there is no action the umpire may take. It's like the spitball. It's done all the time without any penalty. You just have to combat it yourself."

Had not Detroit hired Dressen, the CIA might have, for he is famed in international spy circles.

"This doesn't surprise me," said traveling secretary Tommie Ferguson, who was Dressen's equipment manager at Milwaukee. "In 1960 Chicago caught Charlie planting a player in the centerfield bleachers who would tip off the pitches by flashing a beer can."

Catcher Buck Rodgers told the I, P-T how the Angels attempted to "combat" the villian.

"We used five different sets of signals," revealed Rodgers, who handled four different Angel pitchers. "We used three sets with Willie Smith alone.

"With such a big scoreboard it's impossible to tell if they're being tipped. One little light may mean something and we'd never know it. I told Haller (plate umpire Bill) about it but there was nothing he could do.

"I really don't think they were getting our signs. The pitch that (Dick) McAuliffe hit for a homer (in the seventh) was a bad one inside while Newman (starter Fred) just didn't have good stuff and they would have hit him with or without help."

* * * *

DANNY OSINSKI had kept a close eye on the scoreboard until coming to the mound in the seventh.

"The guy wasn't there when Kaline, Cash or Dem-

Track Special!

The history of Long Beach track and field—that is the sports special on Page C-5 of today's big Independent, Press-Telegram sports section.

Written and edited by John Dixon, the full page of stories and pictures follows the Long Beach cinder trail from its infancy and features the selection of a track and field "hall of fame."

DIXON

No one is more qualified as an L.B. track historian than Dixon, who wrote his first story for these papers in 1942 and who continues today as a peerless reporter of the swift set.

A Long Beach native and graduate of Wilson High and City College, Dixon attended the Olympics in Rome in 1960 and will make the journey to Tokyo for this year's international sports extravaganza. He is a past president of the Southern California Track and Field Writers' Association.

Will-ie Sign Rams or Chargers?

By JERRY WYNN

This is the week of decision for Willie Brown.

The USC football and baseball star from Long Beach is expected to sign a professional contract at the conclusion of the College World Series in Omaha, Neb., probably Monday or Tuesday.

But will that contract read Rams? . . . or Chargers? . . . or Kansas City Athletics? . . . or . . .

Brown has expressed a preference for the Rams and the Rams have courted their flashy split end prospects arduously. But the Chargers are expected to make a last-ditch, Scranton-type bid to block the marriage.

A Charger official told this writer that his club "will sign Willie."

The Rams make no such avowal, but nevertheless are extremely optimistic. "We've made him a good offer," said a high official, "and we feel his future lies with our club."

The Ram offer, the I, P-T estimates, is a $10,000 bonus and a $15,000 contract. It would make him the highest paid third-round draft choice in history.

But until Brown puts his signature on the line, one thing is certain. Both Rams and Chargers are having the willies.

The Sunday Sermon

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . Mickey Thompson, still shrouded in grief over the death of his driver, Dave MacDonald, in the Memorial Day race, has established a "Dave MacDonald Scholarship Fund" for the late rookie's two children. The initial contribution was $2,000—from Thompson. Additional contributions can be made payable to the above account and sent to Mickey at 1419 Santa Fe Ave., L.B. 13.

. . . A real fighter from the mold not easy to duplicate, Mickey himself will get behind the wheel of a car again in a few weeks. He'll take the twin to MacDonald's car (the vehicle Masten Gregory failed to qualify) to Utah's Bonneville Salt Flats in July. Mickey will attempt to drive 500 miles at an average speed of better than 200 mph. He'll drive in a complete 10-mile circle—no straightaways. (Thompson had planned the Bonneville speed run even before the Indianapolis accident.)

. . . Hollywood Park will name a race in honor of Long Beach's International Beauty Congress delegate from Australia (Jan Taylor) Saturday, July 25, and the beauty from Down-Under will present prizes to the winning owner, trainer and jockey. In addition, Australian products will be distributed to other racing personalities throughout the day. (No, Clyde, a kangaroo will not be presented to Kelso's owner.)

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . Miss Australia knows her way around race tracks, too. She is featured in a film being made showing her attending Royal Ascot in England, Longchamps in Paris, the Melbourne Cup in Australia and Hollypark. The color film will be released in 47 countries and dubbed in 21 languages! (When those Aussies do something, they go all the way.)

. . . When Steve Davis flew here from New York this week to outline the Youth Bowl (see Dave Taylor's story on Page C-3) to Long Beach area bowling officials, he stressed a particular point: That the participating youngsters be ENCOURAGED every step of the tournament. "In viewing the Little League program, we've learned that many youngsters are DISCOURAGED from playing further baseball because the win-at-any-cost competition they're subjected to," commented Davis. "We don't want that to happen in the Youth Bowl." (No comment from this part of the balcony.)

LOOKS FROM HERE that the Angels got the best of that three-club American League swap by 10 miles. They did lose a bulldog in Billy Moran, but they gained a tiger in Vic Power and an acceptable outfielder in Lennie Green. Power long has been considered a "bad apple" by former managers, but he does boast a nifty .287 lifetime average and a flashy glove. Anyway, sometimes a change of scenery changes a player's attitude. (And isn't Bill Rigney used to handling slightly reluctant young men?)

. . . Did you know that Houston's infielder-outfielder Mike White, who is ripping the ball at a hefty .300-plus clip, was drafted from the Angel organization for a paltry $2,000? The Angels let Jo Jo White's son slip away and now Mike's in solid contention for rookie-of-the-year laurels.

. . . The Colts, who have spent $2,000,000 in bonus money, got another bargain in catcher John Bateman. Bateman's signing price was $77—the tab of a sweatshirt, a catcher's glove, bus fare for him and his father from Killeen, Tex., to a tryout camp, and two nights' lodging. (The bonus fight indeed seems ironically futile sometimes, doesn't it?)

. . . Strangely, no scouts are hovering around Long Beach State's graduating first base slugger, Don Anderson. "He can't do anything but hit the ball a mile," commented one distinterested scout. (Well, that's more achievement than some chaps now prancing in major league clothe.)

BOTH FRED SCHAUS and John Wooden are worried about the current U.S. Olympic basketball team, which hasn't lost a single game in previous Games' competition. They both have identical reasons: No outside shooting guards. "I know that Russian team will be tough and big," declared Schaus, "so we have to have those good guards popping from the outside." (Schaus and Wooden both have identical, biting comments on the U.S. team's crazy selection, too.)

. . . Some golf pro's wife almost was faced with an impossible job, but also the dream of a lifetime. Anyone who shot a hole-in-one in the recent Memphis Open would have received 1,000,000 trading stamps. (How would you like that pasting job? The fears or dreams went for naught. Nobody fired an ace.)

. . . Good, old Jack Barron, the L.A. cosmic swing inventor, has the answer to the Frank Howard problem. "My solution will give Frank his true balance," writes the Barron. "Howard does not get proper use of his bodily functions. Within two hours, the Barron Method Laboratory would have Frank on his way to hitting, running, throwing and fielding naturally. But, of course, the Dodgers wouldn't ever let ME help this mistreated, troubled, honest giant." (If the Dodgers had their way they wouldn't let the mistreated, troubled Barron even buy a ticket. Such is the rocky route of genius.)

Ram-Charger Dodge Sets Hot Rod Mark

SKINNER TRADED

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds Saturday traded outfielder Bob Skinner to the St. Louis Cardinals for catcher Jim Saul and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Saul, who was catching for the Jacksonville Suns of the International League, will be sent by the Reds to San Diego.

USC Loses to Gophers, 6-5

OMAHA (AP) — Dave Hoffman's two-out single climaxed a three-run Minnesota rally in the last of the ninth for a 6-5 victory over Southern California in a third round battle of unbeatens at the College World Series Saturday night.

Unheralded Maine stunned Arizona State, 4-2, eliminating the nation's No. 2 team, and top-ranked Missouri eliminated Seton Hall, 3-1, behind lefty Jack Stroud in other third round games.

• • • •

USC HAD a 3-0 lead and pitcher Larry Fisher had a no-hitter going into the Minnesota seventh but the Big Ten champs tied it on Hoffman's single, a double by Bill Davis, Jerry Cawley's sacrifice fly and a wild pitch.

A two-out two run double by Daryl Wilkins put USC in front, 5-3, in the eighth.

The defeat ended a 16-game USC winning streak.

Maine 4, Arizona St. 2 (Arizona State eliminated).
Missouri 3, Seton Hall 1 (Seton Hall eliminated).
Minnesota 6, USC 5.

Cepeda's Hit Wins for S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Orlando Cepeda's two-run double in the seventh inning powered San Francisco past Milwaukee 6-4 Saturday, snapping the Giants' three-game losing streak.

Cepeda doubled off reliever Jack Smith after Willie Mays and Willie McCovey singled with two out.

The Giants had taken a 4-2 lead in the sixth on McCovey's single and Jim Hart's homer off starter Hank Fischer over the leftfield fence.

Milwaukee came back with two in the seventh on singles by pinch-hitter Ty Cline and Hank Aaron sandwiched around Felipe Alou's second triple. The triple knocked starter Juan Marichal from the game.

Bailey's Bat Wrecks Cubs

CHICAGO (AP)—Smoky Burgess slammed a three-run homer and Bob Bailey spanked two doubles and a triple in leading the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Chicago Cubs 10-7 Saturday.

Burgess' first homer of the season came in a five-run fifth which chased Lew Burdett.

Pinch-hitter Leo Burke's three-run homer in the sixth sent Vern Law to the showers.

Mets to Old Tricks, Lose

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Bobby Wine scored a run when New York left home plate unguarded and winning pitcher Jim Bunting gave up only five hits as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Mets 8-2 Saturday.

Wine was on third in the second inning after walking and coming around on Bunting's single. Cookie Rojas then popped up in foul territory between first and home and first baseman Kranepool and catcher Jesse Gonder went for the ball. Kranepool grabbed it and when he turned to throw home, the only one there was Wine scoring.

Mick Hot, Yanks Top Chisox Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Mickey Mantle hit his 11th home run and drove in two runs Saturday as the New York Yankees took the third straight game of their series with the American League leading Chicago White Sox 6-3.

Mantle, batting .571 righthanded and .216 lefthanded for a combined average of .331, singled in the first, hit a homer into the right field bleachers in the fourth, walked intentionally in the fifth and singled in the seventh.

The Yankees broke the 3-3 tie in the fifth on Tony Kubek's single, Bobby Richardson's sacrifice and Tom Tresh's single off Wilhelm.

Now only two games out of first place, the Yankees face the White Sox in a doubleheader today.

DODGERS--

leading hitter, was hitless in 10 chances and Julian Javier was 0-for-9 in the series.

A home run by Catcher Tim McCarver, his only hit in eight trips, provided the Cardinals with their two runs against winner Joe Moeller (4-5).

It was a cheap win for Moeller, who worked only 5⅓ innings, but it made up for some of his back-breaking losses (2-1 twice and 3-2).

• • • •

MANAGER Walter Alston pulled his Moeller after consecutive hits by Bill White, McCarver and Dick Groat and a walk to Boyer with one out in the sixth. Miller and Perranoski filled in beautifully and didn't let the Cardinals find the plate.

Miller ran his scoreless streak to 20⅓ innings in eight relief appearances and Perranoski was credited with his third save on two hitless innings.

Parker and T. Davis provided the offensive push with back-to-back hits in the fourth and fifth innings against loser Ray Sadecki (6-5). Parker ran for two doubles and took the club batting lead from the idle John Roseboro, .306 to .304. Davis singled and doubled, picking up four points to .262.

The Dodgers scored twice in the fourth on Parker's double, singles by T. Davis and Frank Howard and a sacrifice fly by Doug Camilli. Howard's run-producing hit was his third in the last 41 times up.

• • • •

PARKER doubled again with two out in the fifth and T. Davis furnished the deciding run with his double to the identical spot in left-center.

Maury Wills also had two of the Dodgers' 10 hits, was deprived of a third by White's diving stop at first base and stole two bases for a season total of 22.

McCarver's fifth homer, after White's single in the sixth, ended the Cardinals' run drought at 25 innings. St. Louis has scored only five times in the last 55 innings and has lost 15 of its 21 games.

Ron Fairly, hitless in 24 tries since May 29, joined Howard as a slump breaker with a double in the eighth inning. Or, perhaps, Curt Flood began a fielding slump by misjudging Fairly's drive on the warning track in center.

• • • •

FAIRLY still was in a fog when he went to first base as part of the defensive platoon in the top of the eighth. He allowed McCarver to escape from a rundown and McCarver came back to catch Fairly in the Dodger half.

Fairly was almost picked off second by Ron Taylor, but for the third time of the afternoon the Cardinals failed to cover second base. Fairly, after stumbling trying to get back to second, made it to third on the error, then was out as McCarver called for a pitchout with Perranoski attempting to squeeze.

This just hasn't been Fairly's year. He wanted to soak his glove before the game and tossed it into the whirlpool only to find the pool had been drained.

Nick Willhite (2-3) and rookie Howie Reed will pitch against Milwaukee's Tony Cloninger (4-5) and Dan Schneider (0-1) today. Reed, brought up Thursday from Spokane, will be making his NL debut.

ANGELS SIGN EL RANCHO'S STAR EGAN

The Angels announced Saturday that high school baseball star Tom Egan has signed a bonus contract and will report next week to the club's Idaho Falls farm team.

A spokesman said Egan signed for a bonus of $100,000.

Egan, 18, graduated from El Rancho High in Pico Rivera. He hats and throws righthanded, weighs 218 pounds and stands 6-4.

At El Rancho he lettered in baseball all four years, and as a senior batted .520 with 10 homers as his team won the league championship.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —Manager Bobby Bragan of the Milwaukee Braves said Saturday that there are "one or two spitballers on every club in the National League," and called for legalizing the delivery.

Asked if he meant that members of his own pitching staff were throwing spitballs, the fiery pilot only repeated: "There are one or two on every club."

WYNN

NBC-TV

By JERRY WYNN

The eyes of the sports world will focus on Washington, D.C., this week for the U.S. Open golf championship. And manipulating those eyes for millions of home spectators will be the NBC television network.

Under the direction of Carl Lindemann, vice-president in charge of sports, and with the impetus of a $60 million commitment, NBC has jumped from last to first in sports TV among the three major networks.

Included on the NBC calendar are weekly major league baseball games, World Series and All-Star Game, NCAA college football, Rose, Sugar and Orange bowl games, Olympics from Tokyo, U.S. tennis championship, the Crosby, Las Vegas and U.S. Open golf tournaments and Pro Bowl.

In 1965, NBC will open its $36 million, five-year package of American Football League telecasts.

Lindemann and other NBC executives visited Southern California last week and answered these questions, Man-to-Man:

How do you rate the U.S. Open as a national sports attraction?

"Excellent but limited. Golf has a loyal, high-income, well-educated audience but it isn't a mass audience as in baseball or football. I believe the Masters went into six million homes this year and our Las Vegas show three million. The Open will have the greatest golf audience."

What is the major problem in a golf telecast?

"Golf is the most difficult of all sports to televise because you can't predict the time of finish. We passed bidding on the Buick and Thunderbird tournaments this year because they would run into the College Bowl. However, we will show the finish of the U.S. Open regardless of time. I'm pledged to that."

How do you rate Arnold Palmer as an attraction among sports personalities?

"The best. The ultimate."

What are your plans for the Olympics?

"NBC has the exclusive rights throughout the world, and they even will be shown in Africa. We will use the Japanese facilities, and our primary job will be tape editing. We are taking 50 people over there and will have eight tape centers.

"The difference in time zones is the major problem. Wherever we turn, we are trapped by the clock. We could present a live show over the space satellite, but that would reach New York at 4 a.m. So we fly the tape back each day and have shows from 7.30-8:30 and 10-11 most every night in all time zones. There will be 14½ hours of tape coverage."

Will the Olympics coincide with the other NBC sports shows?

"Yes. The Olympics are Oct. 10-24. The World Series and NCAA football also fall in those dates. In fact, the NCAA game on Oct. 17 is USC at Ohio State."

Can anything be done to improve the caliber of college football games shown on television?

"We have very strong feelings about that. But even though we bid $13 million for two years, the NCAA still has control and we follow their policy. The present pattern is all too restrictive. It forces us to schedule far in advance and then there are two pages of specifications and restrictions. Making a schedule becomes a mathematical exercise rather than an appeal for the best game."

How do you intend to show three bowl games on New Year's Day?

"The Orange Bowl will be played at night and follow the Sugar and Rose bowls. All three will be in color and amount to nine straight hours of football."

In this column two weeks ago, a CBS official charged that NBC made a "grandstand play" when it proposed a charity game between the National and American pro football leagues. How do you answer that?

"We felt then, and we do now, that such a game would be in the public interest. We spent seven weeks discussing the charity aspect with the Kennedy Memorial Library group. It was not a rash offer or a grandstand play."

Do you really believe that the AFL can compete successfully against the NFL?

"As far as our contract is concerned, we have no illusion of breaking even the first year. But we feel that with the help of television money, the AFL will continue to grow and will be stabilized within five years. We'll be happy to get 36½ million back on our $36 million investment."

A salute to NBC sports. How high the boom?

An Open-Mouthed Look at Himself

By ARNOLD PALMER

"I don't remember any of this. I wonder what happened."

"I yawn a lot when waiting for someone on the course. It's become a habit."

"I've obviously missed a putt here. It must have been a tough one."

"This is my expression for holing a long putt or winning a tournament."

Pressure Pops 'Open' Corks, & Champagne Tony Loves It

The 1964 U.S. Open golf tournament will be played starting Thursday at the Congressional Country Club near Washington, D.C., with Champagne Tony Lema a prime contender.

By TONY LEMA
as told to Murray Olderman

WASHINGTON, D.C. — (NEA)—I could feel it as we started the last nine at Brookline last year. The pressure. It grabbed my arms and squeezed, like a guy tying a tourniquet.

This was the U.S. Open, the tournament you dream about winning when you're a kid. For a golfer, it's the World Series or a heavyweight championship fight; one of the most important titles of all. It puts your name firmly into golf forever.

After starting the last round one stroke behind Jackie Cupit, at 219, I went out in 36. I was in good position, still one shot behind. Nervous? Sure, but you couldn't tell it looking at me. It only shows in the score. I shot a 40 to finish in a tie for fifth because I was bold at the wrong times.

I finished just two strokes back, and it has given me confidence. It's like the first Masters I ever played in. I did surprisingly well, so I said to myself, "Well, you jerk, now you can win this thing."

I'm a young 30. Have I reached my peak? Jeez, I hope not. The Open is a test of endurance like you don't get any place else. The courses they pick are generally hilly. They're like Augusta in that respect. But in the Masters, the 72 holes are spread over four days. Here you have to go 36 the last day, and that's when it's good to be young.

I must say right here that I don't go along with the theory of the Open—that is, how they work up their courses. They trick it up too much; they take a certain amount of talent out of the tournament. In the Open, the chip shot is removed from the game. Hit the ball over the green a few feet and you're in four or five inches of rough and serious trouble.

Because the Open is such a big one (I'd say it and the Masters dominate golf), you're conscious of the competition. The men to beat this week are the usual contenders—Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player. Add Julius Boros, the defending champion. He can win any tournament, no matter when or where it's played.

Among the younger fellows, Tommy Jacobs has been playing exceptionally fine golf. And you'd have to give an outside chance to Chi Chi Rodriguez.

Just in case Mrs. Lema's little boy Tony gets lucky, there'll be a man from Moet hanging around Congressional, where the Open will be played Friday, Saturday and Sunday. That's the champagne I'm signed with, and they always have a man near me at every tournament.

I'll be glad to pop every cork myself.

Clark Wins British Am From Lunt on 39th Hole

GANTON, England (AP) — Gordon Clark, a 29-year-old English merchant, sank a six-foot birdie putt on the 39th hole Saturday and defeated defending champion Michael Lunt of England in the final of the British Amateur golf championship.

It was the longest final in the history of the championship. The previous record was in 1912 when John Ball defeated Abe Mitchell, both of England, at the 38th hole.

Lunt, a Walker Cup player, was two up after 33 holes of the 36-hole final.

Then he dropped the 34th when he hooked into the gorse and the match became squared on the 36th green, where Lunt three-putted.

Clark and Lunt halved the 37th and 38th holes. At the 285-yard 39th Clark was short in two and in front of the green. Lunt was to the left of the green and also short in two.

Lunt chipped short—about 20 feet from the hole—and Clark chipped six feet past the hole. Lunt missed his putt and Clark sank a six-footer for a birdie and the match.

4,000 gave up hope of play being resumed and drifted home. Only a few hundred were left when the rain stopped.

In the murky light and with light rain falling again, the two girls played out the final act of the drama.

Miss Richey dropped her service twice to trail 5-6. But she kept pounding away and finally got the winning break through with a series of tremendous service returns in the 20th game.

It was a day of jittery tennis, with players of both teams making numerous errors.

Lema, attracting an estimated 90 per cent of the more than 17,000 fans, did not find the 7,280-yard course as easy as he did in Friday's second round when he shot a 66.

Lema complained that the heat, humidity and wind bothered him. His round took five hours and 22 minutes to complete.

On No. 17 he three-putted from about 20 feet out. He was trapped on the 18th, made a poor third shot out of the trap and two-putted.

Phil Rodgers, who held the first round lead with a 67, blew to an 84 and missed making the cut by three strokes.

Honors, World's Fair Trip to Champion Junior Bowlers

By DAVE TAYLOR

A massive, area-wide "All America Youth Bowl" program sponsored by the Independent-Press Telegram in association with AMF Pinspotters Corp. is scheduled to begin in bowling centers throughout the Long Beach-Orange County area July 1.

The program will involve three major local tournaments and two national tournaments during the summer months, and is expected to attract more than 2,000 area junior bowlers through age 18.

Four boys and girls competition classes are provided in the "All America Youth Bowl" program including Prep — through 12 years of age; Junior—13 through 18; and Varsity—high school grads and college students throught 18 years of age.

Honors and awards include participation patches, plaques, national trophies, bowling shirts, and trips to the World's Fair in New York.

All bowlers under the age of 18 who are not members of the Women's International Bowling Congress or the American Bowling Congress, and who have not accepted cash awards for any bowling competition are eligible to enter the "All America Youth Bowl" program which is sanctioned by Youth Bowling Assn. and American Junior Bowling Congress.

The first "Youth Bowl" competition, a 12-game house qualifying round in open play, is slated to begin in all participating local bowling centers on July 1. Bowlers must qualify with a specified number of pins in each competition class.

Qualifiers in each class then bowl a house rolloff in each participating center on August 1. The house rolloff will produce one high scorer for every 10 qualifiers who are then eligible to compete in the area-wide Independent, Press-Telegram tournament August 8.

The area-wide tournament, at a location yet to be announced, will produce five leading bowlers in the Prep, Junior and Major divisions who will constitute official Independent-Press Telegram teams in a National Telephonic Finals Tournament August 14.

The Telephonic Finals will pit the local champion teams in these classes against other leading teams bowling at the same time throughout the United States in a simultaneous Telephonic Tournament to determine national champion girls' and boys' teams in each division.

In the Varsity division, winning Independent-Press Telegram team from the area-wide tournament will be flown to New York City to compete with teams from other areas in a head-and-head National Final round August 24-28. Varsity finalists will be treated to a full schedule of World's Fair entertainment supervised by adult chaperones during their stay in New York.

Finalists in all divisions, and runners up, will be honored at a special "All America Youth Bowl" awards banquet August 17.

All "Youth Bowl" program competition scoring is on a scratch basis.

One Stroke Worth $50,000 on Golf Tour

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: With the big one coming up, the U.S. Open, the question again came up . . . what is it that separates the guys like Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, etc., and the fellows who follow the golf tour just barely making expenses?

They are all able to hit the ball well, yet some never seem able to win . . . although at times they'll pop up and lead an event for a round or two, or possibly finish high up.

Consistency and the ability to stand up under the pressure week in and week out is perhaps the only real difference.

SANDY KOUFAX

For instance, if a man shot par golf for every one of the 43 PGA-sanctioned tournaments last year, he would have won $62,000 and finished as the fifth highest money-winner.

But if he went just one stroke over par in every tournament, he would have won less than $10,000.

That's how much a stroke means in professional golf.

The man who shot closest to par a year ago was Tony Lema and he was fourth on the money lost with $67,112 after averaging 70.89 strokes per tournament.

Palmer, who won a record $128,000, had a 70.6 average.

Yet, Jack Fleck, one-time U.S. Open champion, had a 72.1 average . . . and won only $17,000.

Insiders insist that it is all cut and dried for American League president Joe Cronin to succeed Ford Frick as commissioner . . .

Even though the Giants are in first place, there is still much talk around San Francisco—and in allegedly informed circles—that Alvin Dark won't last out the season as manager . . .

It's not the first time these seemingly strange rumors have circulated . . .

Joe Torre of the Milwaukee Braves suffered one of the most freak accidents of the year recently. He was munching on a throat lozenge before a game when it cut him around the tonsil area. He began spitting up blood and it took them several hours to stop the bleeding . . .

He was out of the lineup for four days!

PRESENT PLANS CALL FOR Subscription TV to kick off July 17 with a Dodger-Chicago game while the first attraction in San Francisco will be the Giants against the Braves on Aug. 14 . . .

Frank Robinson played the early part of the season with a fractured left index finger and a strained left wrist, yet he kept it quiet until after the injuries were almost healed . . .

WHERE'S THE FIRE? . . . IT'S A BALL
Margie Edmunston, 9, is in the driver's seat for Fire Clowns of Long Beach Fire Station No. 1 who will meet KLAC Stars in softball game at Park Ave. Field Saturday at 7:30. They'll be clowning on the square, because proceeds go to Tichenor Clinic for crippled children, where Margie is a patient.

Hayes Streaks to 20.5, Rambo, Crowley Win as 49ers Second

FRESNO (UPI) — Rapid Robert Hayes of Florida A&M coasted to a fast 20.5 clocking in the 220-yard dash of the NCAA college division track and field meet Saturday night as his competition failed to push him to what could have been a world record.

Hayes, who said he hopes to better the 20.2 pending and 20.3 recognized world marks of Henry Carr of Arizona State, was in front all the way as he won with an eased-up finish.

John Rambo, one of the world's finest high jumpers from Long Bach State, won his specialty at 6-10¾. He failed at 7 feet 1¾ inches in three tries. Then, after being eliminated, he took two more jumps and cleared the bar easily each time.

* * * *

LONG BEACH State wound up with nine college all-Americas, a title given to any boy who finishes in the top three. The nine included Rambo, mile winner Bill Crowley, Gerry Luman, George Lacy and George Frenn, plus relay members Ralph Lee, Jeff Clements, Kerry Wright and Bill Glass.

The top six finishers in each event qualified for next week's overall NCAA championships if they also have bettered that meet's rigid entry standards.

Darel Newman, Fresno State, also made a cake-walk out of the 100-yard dash as he won with ease in a 9.3—although half of the four official timers had him in 9.2.

There was less than a two-mile-an-hour wind for both races on the fast crushed brick, Ratcliffe Stadium track.

One of the few dead heats of the track season occurred when Joe LeBlanc, Lamar Tech, and Kenneth Noel, Texas Southern, broke the tape together in the 880 in the slow time of 1:54.3.

* * * *

THERE were two double-winners as the second night of the meet drew to a close. Sid Nickolas, Fresno State, won the high hurdles in a wind-aided 13.9, and the broad jump at 26 feet.

Fresno State won the team title with 85 points, followed by Long Beach State with 57, Cal Poly (SLO) with 40 and Redlands with 37.

Siebert Runs Swift 1:47.5

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Fred Hansen of Rice Institute, who shattered the world pole vault record at 17-1 last week, upped the mark again Saturday night with a vault of 17-2 at the San Diego Pre-Olympic invitational

Hansen cleared the bar on his second attempt, grazing it with his shirt as he came down. He and official record holder John Pennel both cleared 16-8½, the first time two vaulters had ever accomplished this in any track meet.

Pennel missed his first two tries at 17-2, barely escaping serious injury on his second attempt when he landed halfway off the mat.

* * * *

PENNEL holds the listed world record of 16-1 and has a vault of 17-0¾ pending.

Jerry Seibert ran the best half mile of the season — 1:47.5 — and Bernie Rivers won both dash events in a meet riddled with upsets.

Parry O'Brien upset Dallas Long in the shotput, Ken Roche of Australia beat America's top 440 hurdlers, Ed Caruthers of Santa Ana (Junior) College scored his second straight high jump win over John Thomas and Blaine Lindgren easily scored over Hayes Jones in the 120-hurdles in upset victories.

Bob Schul of Miami (Ohio) University, who set an American 5,000-meter record at Compton last week, won the mile in 3:59.1—his first sub-four-minute mile run.

Carruthers won the high jump with a leap of seven feet even to best Thomas' best of 6-10. Lindgren, of the Utah Track Club, was clocked in 13.6 in his 120-hurdles win over Jones, who was timed in 13.9.

* * * *

SIEBERT of Santa Clara Valley Youth Village outdistanced a tought field by 15 yards to win the half mile. Ted Nelson of the Army was second in a photo finish with Greg Pilster.

California high school champion Bob Hose of San Diego was fourth in 1:49.2—the fastest 880 ever by a high school athlete.

Favored Henry Carr pulled up after a bad start in the 100 and Rivers, the New Mexico freshman sensation, took advantage to win easily ahead of Gerald Ashworth and Mel Pender. His time of 9.3 was into a three-mile-an-hour headwind.

Trojans Capture Crown

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) —The Southern California Trojans, preparing to defend their national collegiate title next weekend at Eugene, Ore., captured the U. S. Track and Field Federation team crown Saturday with only one individual championship.

The Trojans scored 64 points. San Jose State, which is expected to give USC a battle for the college title, was second with 59 1/5.

Southern Cal's only individual winner was high jumper Lew Hoyt, who cleared 6 feet 10 inches Friday for the first time this season. He has been bothered with a hamstring injury.

Two meet records fell on the final day.

Arizona's Gayle Hopkins became a double winner by capturing the triple jump at 50-6¼, breaking the mark of 49-2½ set by Bill Miller of McMurry in the Federation's inaugural meet last year. Hopkins won the board jump Friday.

Jay Silvester, formerly of Utah State, broke the discus mark with a throw of 185-10 using borrowed equipment.

Ben Tucker of San Jose State won the 1,500 meters in 3:42.9, beating former NCAA half-mile champion Norm Hoffman of the Striders Track and Field Club.

The field in that event fell apart earlier this week with the withdrawal of Oregon's Archie San Romani Jr., Wichita Kansas High schooler Bill Ryun and John Camien of Emporia State.

By BRUCE YOUNG

Shua Post retained its Harbor League lead Saturday, scoring twice in the ninth inning to whip San Pedro, 4-3. It was the third successive game that Shua rallied to win in the last inning.

Buster Scholl's bases-loaded single provided the tying and winning markers that ran Shua's record to 5-0.

Lakewood and Peterson ran their records to 4-1 with wins Saturday. Lakewood defeated Samuel Thomas, 6-2, and Peterson topped Alamitos Bay, 9-7.

Larry Killingsworth fanned 14 and was the victim of four unearned runs for Samuel Thomas. Doug Stodgel paced Lakewood with two hits.

Ken Becker and Larry Lauriha had two hits for Peterson, while Spud O'Neil singled twice for Alamitos Bay.

Nippon's Grip On Baseball

(Golden Boy) Nagashima could play for any major league team. All the American players in Japan can tick off four of five local players who would be major league material.

Why then aren't they playing with the Cubs, Mets and Colts?

Money. Kaneda drew more than $60,000 in 1963 in a country where wages average less than $100 per month. Counting bonuses, Tokyo Orion pitcher Masaaki Koyama netted almost $100,000.

Where in the pattern do the American players fit?

The American players offer something missing in the local athletes, spark. Just by having a former big leaguer on a team instills this hustle. The best example would be the Hankyu Braves of the Pacific League.

The Braves have been also-rans since 1936. This year they have two former Dodgers, infielder Daryl Spencer and outfielder Gordon Windhorn, playing with them. With about a third of the season gone the Braves are in the thick of a tight pennant fight with, according to the Japanese papers, the difference being Spencer and his "fighting spirit."

The American players are well rewarded for their efforts. Spencer is reported to be drawing $30,000 this year while Marshall's salary is set by the papers at about $25,000. Most of the two dozen Americans are in the $12,000-plus category.

And this year enough Americans are playing in Japan to field a pretty fair All-American All-Star team.

Its first base could be Marshall or former Yankee Kent Hadley. Long-time Milwaukee Brave shortstop Johnny Logan is holding down second for the Nankai club while former Cub shortstop Ken Aspromonte fills that position with the Dragons. Two-time Pacific League batting champion Jack Bloomfield of Texas and Spencer could share third.

Outfield starters could be 1959 Dodger World Series hero Chuck Essegian of the Kintetsu Buffaloes, Stan Palys of the Reds and Phils and former Dodger Windhorn.

Pitching? Former Senator Pete Burnside, one-time Tiger farmhand Gene Bacque, former White Sox hurler Joe Stanka and Hawaiian-born Dick DeSa could handle the mound chores. Only a catcher would be missing.

Where do the teams get unusual names like Nankai, Kintetsu and Kokutetsu?

In Japan each team is owned by a large company which makes up losses if the club doesn't draw well at the gate. Nankai, Kintetsu and Kokutetsu are all railroad firms. Other teams, like Marshall's Chunichi Dragons, are sponsored by newspapers, movie companies and fishing concerns.

Crowds of 50,000 are not unusual. In 1963 more than 10 million fans paid to watch the 12 major teams play. And the baseball craze is not limited to the pros; this spring some 60,000 paid to watch a college championship game!

Though baseball in Japan is admittedly no better than American AAA ball, it has been played for only about 30 years. In another 20 years or so the World Series might be a real "World" affair with the best from the east playing the best from the U.S. Then the taxi driver could tell his fare the Japanese were going to the U.S. to teach the Americans a new game.

Long Beach Track: 1907-1964

★ ★ ★ Champions Hailed in 'Hall of Fame' ★ ★ ★

By JOHN DIXON

Some 1,000,000 years ago the caveman subsisted by running, jumping and throwing.

Running is the oldest form of competition, for ancient man had to run away from wild beasts, women and other natural enemies.

As the millenniums raced past, prehistoric man became history-making man in the Olympic Games, and running, jumping and throwing with efficiency could win a wreath of wild olive, a garland of twigs and a pension for life.

Finally, in the early 1900s, track and field, the international sport, reached Long Beach.

The population of the hamlet by the sea gradually grew, and so did the quantity of record holders—county, Southern California, state, Pacific Coast, national and world.

Nowadays the physiques are bigger and the tracks are better. Consider the records at Long Beach (Poly) High in the 1907 era and 1964:

	1907	1964
100	10.6	9.7
220	25.4	20.8
440	55.2	48.4
880	2:17.0	1:53.4
Mile	5:01.8	4:28.1
High hurdles	17.6	13.7
Low hurdles	26.2	18.1
Long jump	18-4	24-6¼
High jump	5-2	6-5⅛
Pole vault	10-4	13-10¼
Shotput	37-0	61-2⅜
880 relay	1:41.8	1:27.3

Long Beach has had many representatives in the world's greatest athletic spectacle, the Olympic Games, and 1964 may see the list multiply.

Contenders for a trip to Tokyo, with chances ranging from "longshot" to "probable," are Dee Andrews and Steve Cortright, high hurdles; Bob Humphreys, discus; Frank Covelli, javelin, and John Rambo, high jump.

They're bellwethers in Long Beach's "Track and Field Hall of Fame."

Slip into your easy chair, tune-up the calculator, break out the slide rule and check our mythical all all-time Long Beach team.

But before the rumblings commence, let us point out that the object is to win. There's only one gold medal, and a winning high jump of 6-6 in arduous competition may be a greater achievement than a 6-7 jump against also-rans.

Event by event, these men are on the pinnacle of Long Beach's ladder of greatness:

—VINCE REEL, 100-yard dash:

A consistent developer of champions at Wilson High and now coach at Claremont-Mudd, Reel flew to a 9.6 clocking once in 1934 and repeated it three times in later seasons.

Reel defeated world record holder Frank Wykoff in three of five meetings. He scored in at least three events in every meet while competing for Long Beach Junior College in 1933, culminating with a state championship in the 100.

—LES WARK, 220-yard dash:

Rated "the greatest sprinter this city ever produced" by Charley Paddock, Wark routed every challenger in 1915. The Long Beach (Poly) High whippet won the Southern California championship in 22.8, the county title in 22.4 and the state crown in 22.0 —a Pacific Coast record.

Even Paddock, first to wear the mantel of "World's Fastest Human," failed to surpass Wark's marks as a high school wonder in Pasadena.

—JOHN BARNES, 440-yard dash:

A slender, nervous, iron-man competitor whose accelerator was stuck at 100 per cent effort, Barnes seldom ran the 440, but when he did he was one of the best of his era. His quickest clocking was 47.4 at Occidental in 1950.

Barnes placed fifth in the national collegiate 440 hurdles at 53.0. Now as dominant as a coach as he was as a runner, Barnes' top time at Wilson High was 50.1.

—BARNES, 880-yard run:

Though he competed in every event from the sprints to the two-mile, Barnes' specialty was the 880. In 1951 he routed Olympic champion Mal Whitfield by 15 yards in the Compton Invitational in the time of 1:50.1—the second fastest half-mile ever run by an undergraduate.

Barnes won the national collegiate title in 1951 at 1:50.7 and repeated in the NCAA 800 meters the following year in 1:49.6, a new record. He was a member of the United States' Olympic team in 1952.

—BERT DODD, mile:

Scores of Long Beach milers have run faster, but none accomplished as much as Dodd. Way back in 1911 the Long Beach High product with the staying power of a Micronesian tortoise eradicated every Pacific Coast high school record with the then-phenomenal marks of 4:39.5 in the Southern California championship meet and 4:37.8 in the state finals.

—BILL CROWLEY, two-mile:

Even without the aid of eight cylinders and a tank of gas, Crowley, a junior at L.B. State College, raced to a 9:10.0 clocking this year, the fastest time ever by a Long Beach representative in the eight-lap bunion derby. He's also run the mile in 4:07.3.

—EARL THOMSON, high hurdles:

hurdles:

There may be rantings and reverberations over some tabulations, but there can be no controversy over selection of the captain of the Hall of Fame squad, Earl Thomson.

Thomson, for many years coach of the U.S. Naval Academy squad, won every honor open to a two-legged racer. He was so fast the track filberts were wagering on the length of his vapor trail.

At Long Beach High in 1915 he captured the state championship in 15.2—a world interscholastic record. At Dartmouth in 1920 he established a world record of 14.4, and in 1920 at Antwerp, Belgium Thomson set an Olympic record of 14.8 which withstood the challenge of the world's mightiest for 12 years.

In the 1915 Southland championships Thomson won the high hurdles, high jump and discus and placed third in the low hurdles.

—EARL McCULLOUGH, low hurdles:

Long Beach has produced a dozen state or national champions in the low hurdles, but no one had a better record than McCullough.

The Poly High senior was unbeaten and unpressed during the 1964 season in which he set league and Southern California records, won the state title and equaled the national record of 18.1. His accomplishments were similar in the high hurdles.

—DEE ANDREWS, intermediate hurdles:

In college competition the 330 hurdles has succeeded the low hurdles, and that fit Dee Andrews perfectly. In the lows in 1962 he had third best time in the U.S., but in 1963 his time of 36.5 in the intermediates won him No. 2 ranking in the country.

Few men in track annals have won so many events or set so many records as did Andrews in the jumps and hurdles at Poly, Long Beach City and State Colleges.

—BOB HUMPHREYS, discus:

Some 245 pounds of steely muscle and lightning reflexes, Humphreys is so tough you could bounce a two-by-four off him without achieving more than a shattered board.

His giant throw of 203 feet, 5 inches in 1962 has been surpassed by only four men since the Neanderthals took up rock throwing. Humphreys was fifth in the 1960 Olympic Trials, first in the 1963 Pan-American Games with a new record.

—HUMPHREYS, shotput:

Long Beach probably has sent more outstanding shotputters into the world than any other city, and Humphreys had the longest throw of them all at 59-1¼ last year although it's just his "second event." He was ranked sixth among all U.S. Atlases as far back as 1959.

—BOB PARKE, javelin:

One day at Poly High Parke threw the javelin "just for fun"—and it was even more fun than he expected, a school record of 168-4.

There were more important records to come for the former Jordan High football coach—a collegiate record of 220-11⅝ at Oregon U. in 1934, and an American record of 222-7¼ in 1936.

—MICKEY BYERS, pole vault:

At Long Beach City College in 1959 Byers spent only insignificant periods at sea level. He was catapulting through the air so high, so often that he almost had to be fitted with a pressure suit.

Long Beach's first consistent 14-footer reached a high of 14-2½ and rated No. 3 among all junior college high wire acts in the U.S.

—JOHN RAMBO, high jump:

In his Long Beach State uniform Rambo looks like one chopstick, but it's a good bet that the ambling Alp will be manipulating two of them at Tokyo in October for the Olympic Games.

At Long Beach City College in 1963 the neophyte sportswriter set a Southern Cal JC record of 7-feet, and this season at Long Beach State he kicked over 7-1¼, No. 2 mark in the world in 1964 and second on the all-time U.S. list.

—DICK BARBER, long jump:

One of the most talented of all Long Beach field event men, Barber, it's said, developed his great natural spring by leaping out of the path of street cars on Long Beach Blvd.

His laurels were many. At Poly in 1928 he won the state title at 23-5¼—longest in Pacific Coast high school history and a mark that stood as a school record for 28 years. At USC Barber achieved his greatest success in the Olympic Trials of 1932, which he led at 25-4¾. He was fifth in the Games at 24-3.

—STEVE CORTRIGHT, triple jump:

A Stanford star who runs with a graceful efficiency through three events weekly, Cortright placed fifth in the national collegiate championship meets of 1962 and '63 with marks of 48-1½ and 49-1½.

There have been other great ones, too—men like Cowboy Joe Forbes of LBCC, who in 1930, standing in water up to his ankles, shattered shotput, discus and javelin records in the Southland JC meet; and Glenn Shoop, Jordan's greatest trackman, who in 1940 consistently scored in four events and won state titles in the low hurdles and long jump.

These, then, are the men who accomplished the most when it meant the most.

A PERFECT PERFORMER

Earl McCullough of Poly High recorded a rare "double" this season, unbeaten, untied records in the high and low hurdles and two interscholastic records.

OVERCAME ALL HURDLES

York Fills Shoe's Boot, Wins on Ellsworth Colt

By ERNIE MASON

Rex Ellsworth, whose long equine bench has produced back-to-back million dollar seasons the past two years, went to the jockey bench for a pinch-hitter Saturday and got a come-through performance which gave the Chino horseman his biggest win of the meeting.

Ellsworth summoned Ray York from the jockey "bullpen" to sub for ailing Bill Shoemaker and York, scoring his first victory in Ellsworth's famed red and black silks, drove three-year-old Close By to a thrilling nose victory in the $33,700 Argonaut Stakes.

Headed in mid-stretch by Ismael Valenzuela and Pelegrin, York pulled out all the stops to get the Ellsworth owned, trained and bred son of Toulouse Lautrec back on top in the final jump for a win worth $20,200.

It was another six lengths back to Wil Rad, the early pacemaker, while Don Juan was another nose back in fourth and Ben Turner, Count Charles, Chelios, Maguire and Extra Swell followed in that order.

* * * *

CLOSE BY was timed in 1:43 3/5 over a track still dulled from early-week rains and returned $9, $5.20 and $3.80 across the board as a slight favorite over Chelios with the crowd of 52,068.

Wil Rad and Don Juan duelled during the early running as they set a leisurely pace while York rated close by in third position with Pelegrin at his heels. When York moved with three-eighths of a mile to go, so did Valenzuela.

Close By took command heading into the stretch and it momentarily appeared that the Ellsworth colt was home free. But Valenzuela hadn't asked Pelegrin to run, and when he did the dark-coated son of Ambiorix wheeled up on even terms with Close By.

* * * *

AS YORK switched from a left to a right-hand whip at the eighth pole, Pelegrin inched to the front. Valenzuela stated he waited until the last possible chance to get the lead, knowing his colt had a tendency to pull himself up when he got command.

York found Close By to have the same problem and both riders had their difficulties in the final 70 yards.

"It wasn't until my colt saw Milo's horse get by us that he took off again," York explained. And that added energy was enough for him to lift Close By to victory and the top of the heap among the Western three-year-olds.

2-DAY DRAG MEET

Moody Eliminator Champion at Lions

Don Moody outdrove 49 fuel dragsters for top eliminator honors as the two-day Southwest Drag Championships opened bofer 6,350 spectators at Lions-Harbor Area Drag Strip Saturday.

World record holder Frank Cannon of Compton, who meets the aster-Richter Special in a $1,000 winner-take-all match series today, made a single 193-mph assault, then went home for some engine overall when the Northern rail blasted out a 195.42-run.

Eight cars turned the Lions' 1,320-foot strip in speeds over 194 mph and three made the magic seven-second elapsed time bracket. They were Bill Alexander and Paul Sutherland, each 7.97, and Lefty Mudersbach, 7.98.

A $500 bond will go to the first of any fuelers topping 200 mph today. Cannon's world record is 199.08 mph. Racing goes from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. with eliminations at 1.

Top eliminator: Fuel—Dan Moody 8.12 and 194.60 defeated Paul Sutherland (shut off). Gas—George Bolloff 8.29 and 184.80 defeated McCulloch-Brown 8.70 and 177.16.

Elapsed time (Fuel)—Sutherland and Alexander each 7.97.

Cowboys Galore in Kiwanis Rodeo

The Kiwanis Charity Rodeo, set at 8 p.m., Saturday, June 27, at the Coliseum in Los Angeles is expected to be the biggest one-day bronc-riding, steer-wrestling affair in the history of the game, according to Lex Connelly, general manager.

"We'll have more than $36,000 up in purses," says Connelly, "and there will be more than 200 cowboys in action."

Connelly said the proceeds from tickets, now being sold at Mutual ticket agencies and Kiwanis Clubs and the Coliseum, will be turned over to Kiwanis Club-sponsored charities from Kern County to the Mexican border.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Create Bass Fishery at Ramer Lake

Ramer Lake, chemically treated and drained to eradicate a huge population of carp, may become one of the Southland's top largemouth fishing lakes. The Department of Fish and Game planted 80 bass broodfish stock and asked the public to refrain from fishing there until mid-July when it is felt that the bass will have spawned.

Five hundred redear sunfish also were planted in the lake which now has 160 surface acres and an average depth of seven feet. Imperial County bought water to refill the lake with fish and game fine money.

Ramer is five miles north of Brawley just off Highway 111 and is an important part of the DFG's Imperial Waterfowl Management Area.

The broodfish averages 3½ pounds and were rescued from Chatsworth Reservoir when it was drained last November. They were held at the Chino Fisheries base since that time.

The DFG is planning to get 50,000 bass fingerlings and 25,000 channel catfish fingerlings from the Central Valleys Hatchery at Elk Grove and stock those in Ramer sometime later this summer.

The DFG owns the property. Ramer Lake was originally built with a $54,600 allocation from the Wildlife Conservation Board 10 years ago.

GREGSON J. LONEY, who represents the Canadian Travel Bureau in Los Angeles, filled me in with some of the recent developments of fish and game resorts at a luncheon last week. Los Angeles Canadian Consul Morley H. Coleman sat in on the briefing.

Greg, as he prefers to be known, said that his bureau doesn't have to convince U.S. residents that there is a British Columbia. Everybody in the west wants to go to that province and to neighboring Alberta, especially now that the Canadians have finished their trans-Canada highway.

Even though he has to exploit all of Canada, he now is making a major effort to help Alberta's neighbor to the east, Saskatchewan. He thinks that no Canadian province can equal Saskatchewan's fishing if you go far enough into its northern water areas.

Saskatchewan has just completed another highway, the Hanson Lake Road, which weaves its way around scores of lakes, over green parklands and the rocky pre-Cambrian shield, finally ending at Flin Flon, which is on the Saskatchewan-Manitoba border.

Even though the road is not a freeway, it offers a direct route from Prince Albert to Flin Flon and, of course, Winnipeg. And it goes through some of the greatest fishing country in the world.

THOSE OF YOU HAVE READ this column through the years may remember that I was fortunate enough 11 years ago to make a two-week flying trip to many of Saskatchewan's northern lakes, Follaston, Careen, Cree, Black, Hatchet, just to mention a few.

Since that time outpost camps have gone in many parts of the province, but they are reached only by float planes out of Lac la Ronge. There is a Churchill River Fishing Camp that looks particularly good. It may be reached by flying direct from Lac La Ronge, or by driving 50 miles to Otter Lake and then taking a plane to the camp, which is situated at the east end of Nistowiak Lake beside Drinking Falls.

There are some other nice names for lakes that go to make up the Churchill River system and which may be reached by walking from the Churchill camp or even by canoe. Such as: Drinking, Keg, Trade and Mountain Lakes. There are numerous smaller ones that are very productive on lake trout, walleyes and northern pike.

Greg is busy setting up a bureau in Los Angeles that can provide any literature and motion pictures of all of Canada. If there is an particular section on which you wish brochures, write Gregson Loney, Canadian Government Travel Bureau, 510 W. 6th St., Los Angeles.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — There's still one more night for the grunioneers, and that's tonight, or rather, Monday at 1:30 a.m. It's the last of a four-night run. Biologists mix at lot of statistics about the moon and tides and come up with appointed hours for the tiny silver fish to use public beaches for spawning grounds.

However, grunion don't always keep those appointments. Often, they arrive an hour or so later, or they might come a night or two later. Good luck to those who feel strong enough to keep hunting them tonight.

Frank Erganian, 6843 El Salvador St., Long Beach, thinks the Navy, Marines and Orange County Sheriff's office are taking the wrong approach to fishing on those Navy Weapons Station jetties. He believes anglers have a perfect right to fish there. Fight 'em if you like, Frank, but when the Navy puts up a NO TRESPASSING sign, I'm going to believe it.

Natives in the Bridgeport area are using a Watusi fly, tied in Ken's Sporting Goods, Bridgeport, and it has taken many large brown trout in the East Walker River and in Bridgeport Lake. When fished dry, it has the action of a Watusi dancer in Africa, so that's where it got the name, says our scout, Benno Huene.

Some tagged fish are worth $25 in Bridgeport Lake and merchants have put up more than $500 in merchandise for the lucky anglers.

YOUNG NEWPORT SAILOR REPORTS ON CUP RACES

Columbia Adapting to New Conditions

(Ed. Note—This is the first in a series of personal log entries from 17-year-old Bill Lilly of Newport Beach, who is a member of the crew aboard T. Patrick Dougan's 12-meter Columbia, currently participating in trials for the 1964 Americas Cup race at Stamford, Conn.

Columbia, flying the banner of Bahia Corinthian Yacht Club of Newport Beach, is the first West Coast entry in the history of the Americas Cup classic. Lilly, current national Kite sailing champion, is probably the youngest "foredeck boss" ever to sail the Cup trials.

By BILL LILLY
(Special to The I. P-T)

The West Coast crew arrived in Stamford, Conn. on June 6 in preparation for the first Americas Cup Trials.

The crew is composed of skipper Walter Podolak, owner T. Patrick Dougan and his sons Rob and Tom, Doug Severance, Don Vaughn, Herb Riley, Fred MacDonald, John Gettle and myself, Bill Lilly. Bill Lawhorn will join the crew for the July and August trials, but until then eastern sailor Vic Romanga is filling in.

Skipper Podolak decided to race in a New York Yacht Club Regatta June 7. Columbia came in third behind American Eagle and Constellation after taking the lead on the first weather leg.

Columbia fared worse in Tuesday's trial race after an originally scheduled race Monday was canceled due to a lack of wind. In Tuesday's sailing, Columbia drew the new Constellation as an opponent and was unable to cope with the newer boat on the wind. We lost by four minutes.

This poor showing of Columbia can not be taken as a true test because of the fact that Podolak and his crew have had only a few days of sailing on the boat while the other crews have had many weeks to complete their training. None of our crew seems dissatisfied with the results thus far, and we are all confident that results will improve as the trials progress.

Our crew is having to accustom itself to many new sailing conditions here. The waters are shallow, and the tides seem much more powerful in the sound than on our local channel waters. The prevailing Westerly that we know in Southern California is replaced here by the shifty winds, always varying in direction and intensity.

It looks like a long summer in store for all the crews and, viewing the caliber of competition and the quality of the boats, I'm thinking it's going to be a pretty hard job for that selection committee to pick a defender for the Americas Cup race in September.

Eagle Still Unbeaten

OYSTER BAY, N.Y. (UPI) — Unbeaten American Eagle won her fourth race and Nefertiti her first Saturday in the Americas Cup preliminary trials on Long Island Sound.

With a spectator fleet of 150 yachts, each crossed with enormous margins, Eagle prevailing by a half mile (five hours, 31 minutes) over Constellation, and Nefertiti by a mile (5:42) over Columbia.

For the 2-year-old Nefertiti, sailed by Ted Hood of Marblehead, Mass., it was victory at last after three defeats this week. Constellation and Columbia each have 2-3 records.

It was Nefertiti right from the start when her California rival, Columbia, skippered by Walter Podolak came across the line 35 seconds after the winner.

The Marblehead sloop, previously beaten by each of the other three contenders, poured it on for the biggest margin in any of the preliminary trials.

Regatta Here This Weekend

"Two-timers" rate a space all their own in the sixth annual Regatta of Champions Saturday and Sunday in Long Beach Marine Stadium.

The sponsoring Los Angeles Boat and Ski Club has lined up a "grandfathers only" heat race for the Father's Day weekend program.

In the grandfathers race will be such nationally known "old" chargers as Ed Olson of Garden Grove, Whittier's Joe Poty, Carl Dethlefson of San Rafael and Marion Beaver of Parker, Ariz. That quartet alone has nearly 20 national championships and world records to its credit.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

San Francisco Showdown

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
United Press International

Sen. Barry Goldwater's onrushing Republican presidential bandwagon crashed headon last week into the surprise candidacy of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton.

Using the Maryland GOP convention as his sounding board, Scranton threw his hat into the ring with a rallying cry to all Republicans opposed to Goldwater's political philosophy.

* * * *

THERE WAS a quick response from Maxwell M. Rabb, national chairman of the committee promoting Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge for the nomination. Rabb switched to Scranton and urged blocs of Lodge delegates in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and elsewhere to follow suit. He said the issue was whether a strong Republican party was to survive.

Scranton warned that the party would forfeit "all hope of victory" this fall—from precinct to White House — if it nominates Goldwater and thus "embraces a cause which has written off most of America."

In Republican circles the Arizona senator is regarded as a conservative and Scranton an Eisenhower moderate. A showdown over which credo is to prevail will come at the national GOP convention in San Francisco four weeks hence.

The 46-year-old governor disputed claims that Goldwater, who already has more than 500 pledged delegates, has the nomination sewed up. A total of 655 is needed to win. Scranton called on the GOP to "hold a convention—not a coronation or a wake" and save the nation from Goldwater's "exclusion-minded minority." He said he was offering the party a choice though it may now be too late to stop the senator.

Goldwater said he welcomed Scranton into the race and agreed that the convention should have a choice. He said he hoped that whoever was nominated would be supported by a united party dedicated to defeating President Johnson.

* * * *

THE POLITICAL drama built up suddenly after the national governors conference in Cleveland and after divided GOP leaders had conceded Goldwater a convention walkaway. It came in the wake of intraparty bitterness and confusion in which major roles were played by Scranton, former President Eisenhower, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Govs. George Romney of Michigan and Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Eisenhower had done an about-face after calling for "an open convention" and urging Scranton to challenge Goldwater. So had Nixon who, after apparently becoming reconciled to a Goldwater triumph, tried, but failed, at the governors conference to persuade Romney to run. Nixon declared "it would be tragedy for the party if Goldwater's views were not challenged and repudiated." Romney turned him down but did pledge a one-man crusade against Goldwater and his convention platform beliefs.

Rockefeller, though beaten by Goldwater in California's primary, refused to withdraw and, like Romney, talked in stop-Goldwater terms.

Political pundits and editorials in influential newspapers portrayed Nixon as trying to use Romney as a stalking horse to deadlock the convention and grab the nomination himself.

* * * *

EISENHOWER, who also had been sharply criticized in the press, welcomed Scranton's candidacy as "good for the health and vigor of the party" rather than "divisive." That was as close as he came to endorsing Scranton.

Rabb, who made his statement after conferring with Eisenhower at Gettysburg, Pa., denied the general had urged him to switch from Lodge.

Goldwater all but boycotted the governors conference and dealt caustically with Nixon and Romney. Later he declared that GOP leaders seemed more intent on wrecking the party than winning the election.

Another drama with major political overtones unfolded in the U.S. Senate. The chamber, in an historic 71-29 vote, broke a 75-day Southern filibuster and cleared the way for passage of the strongest civil rights bill in modern times. The House already has passed a companion measure.

The vote came in a tense, emotion-laden atmosphere with full turnout of all 100 senators. Goldwater was among six Republicans and 23 Democrats voting against the gag. He indicated he may vote against final passage if the bill is not altered to suit his views.

* * * *

THE MEASURE is a major issue in the election campaign. President Johnson hailed the vote and declared "We are going ahead in our country to end poverty and racial injustice."

Senate and House leaders hope to pass a final compromise bill within the next two weeks.

The House passed a $533 million federal pay raise which includes a $7,500-a-year boost for members of Congress, effective Jan. 1. It also provides that hereafter congressmen, judges and cabinet members will get more increases everytime Congress passes a pay hike for government workers. The vote on passage was 243 to 157. The election-conscious members had killed a previous bill which would have raised their $22,500-a-year salaries by $10,000.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate a $3.5 billion foreign aid authorization — the full amount requested by the President. It was the first time in the 17-year history of the program that such a bill had emerged intact. Johnson had described his request as "bare bones." He praised members of both parties.

* * * *

EARLIER in a commencement address at Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass., he had declared that now is the time to seek solutions to the worldwide problems of poverty, disease and a better way of life for all. He added that world peace would not solve them.

In Geneva, an international commission of jurists cleared the United States of charges that its troops violated human rights during last January's bloody Canal Zone riots in Panama. The committee said the United States was entitled to use force because of the violence of the anti-American rioters. At issue was U.S. sovereignty over the Canal Zone.

In Laos, U.S. jet planes from the carrier Kitty Hawk bombed and strafed Red anti-aircraft artillery which shot down two American reconnaissance planes. The beleaguered neutralist government had requested the flights to check on the Red invaders. The flights were suspended for a time. The State Department said it now has proof of the presence of Communist North Viet Nam troops in Laos.

IN OTHER news spheres, the Soviet Union agreed to join the American global space satellite communications system while at the same time accusing the U.S. of using secret satellites and radar and radio posts to spy on Russian military and space installations.

The communications network will be operated by the U.S. Communications Satellite Corp. (COMSAT). Moscow will set up special stations and a national receiving grid, but will not loft any satellites.

Why Girls Leave the Chorus

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Francine York is a movie beauty who is an ex-chorus girl and she explains why the chorine — except for New York and Las Vegas, Nev. — is rapidly disappearing from the world of show business.

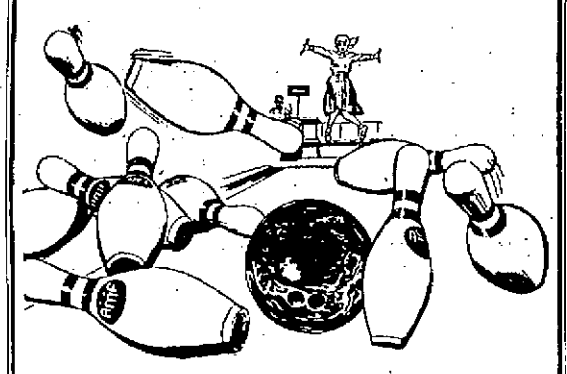

"Automation is taking the girls off the live stage. Television and the movies keep the tired businessman at home," says Francine.

But, most important, the girls seek other work. After about six weeks the glamor wears off and a chorus girl becomes an actress, model, housewife or anything where she gets a chance to sit down once in a while.

"A chorus girl's feet hurt all the time."

Cadillac

HIS THIRD CADILLAC . . . HIS FIRST NEW ONE

This man is enjoying his first brand-new Cadillac—after becoming acquainted with the car's unsurpassed value by twice buying used Cadillacs.

He learned that a late model used Cadillac gave him more standard equipment and engineering advancements than most new cars—and gave it to him on a budget he could easily afford.

First of all, while Cadillac's styling was continually refined, it never lost the clean, dignified look that says Cadillac and Cadillac alone. The smooth, quiet performance and complete reliability of his used Cadillac was a constant source of enjoyment. Then, too, he and his family enjoyed luxury and comfort to a degree reserved exclusively for Cadillac owners.

The pride of ownership of so distinctive a car was a never-ending pleasure, for he had the satisfaction—always—of knowing he drove the finest.

When it came time to trade his previously owned Cadillac for a later model, he found its value had held remarkably high . . . and returned a substantial part of his original investment.

So what could be more natural—or wise—than to make the eventual move to a new Cadillac?

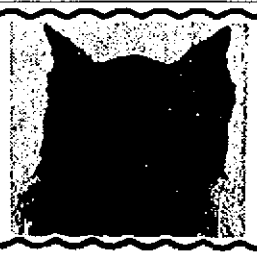

New or used, there is no finer motoring investment than a Cadillac. And your authorized dealer has one to fit any budget.

WE'VE BEEN careful to keep the newspapers away from our dog Sycan recently. If he finds out they're going to have the biggest dog show in U.S. history at Vets Stadium next Sunday and that he can't go, he'll be one sad Samoyed.

Sycan doesn't sulk, he just looks hurt and unhappy when things go wrong. If he should get wind of the dog show (and he may---3250 dogs could fill the breezes with scent) we won't be able to look in his big brown eyes.

If there's anything any Samoyed likes better than other dogs it's people. And there'll be a lot of them at the big Kennel Club show, too.

We wouldn't dare let Sycan know why he can't go out there to be judged with other dogs. While he's a magnificent specimen of his breed, he has no standing. He's paperless. How could you explain that to him?

I think next Sunday will be a good time to let Sycan have that old deerskin moccasin of mine that hangs on the garage wall. He has been eyeing it with mouth watering.

ALTHOUGH I didn't mean it that way, I think something said here the other day indicated a rather brash brush-off of that matter of keeping the polls open an extra hour in the San Francisco area.

No evil plot was involved in giving the Bay area people an extra hour to vote, and until the recent primary it didn't make much difference. But something happened June 2 that puts things in another light, and I think the differential should be eliminated.

What changed the picture was the CBS declaration at 7:22 p.m. that Goldwater had won the election. The announcement by Walter Cronkite, whose jowls quivered with the significance of the event, came nearly 40 minutes before polls closed in San Francisco. The report, based on a projection of samplings from specially selected precincts, could have been wrong, but it wasn't, and no doubt the networks will vie with each other in trying to give even earlier results in future elections.

This sort of thing tends to discourage people from voting. A fellow who hasn't voted and hears that it's all over feels that his balloting would be meaningless.

It happened also in national elections, with the East voting earlier because of the time differential.

That poses a difficult problem. But we can, in California, solve ours by simply making voting time uniform throughout the state. This dept. favors closing all the polls at 7. If we can get our voting done by 7, those sophisticated San Franciscans can do it too.

ANDREW August Pearson, the 82-year-old fellow whose economic plight was revealed in this paper after he was arrested for shoplifting, is having it easier now. The story was followed by a generous out-pouring from our readers — food, money and clothing sent directly to the old gentleman who isn't eligible for Social Security and has been subsisting on $40 a month.

One group in Compton, Iota Rho chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, offered to supply the white-haired old man with groceries, clothing and books for the next 12 months.

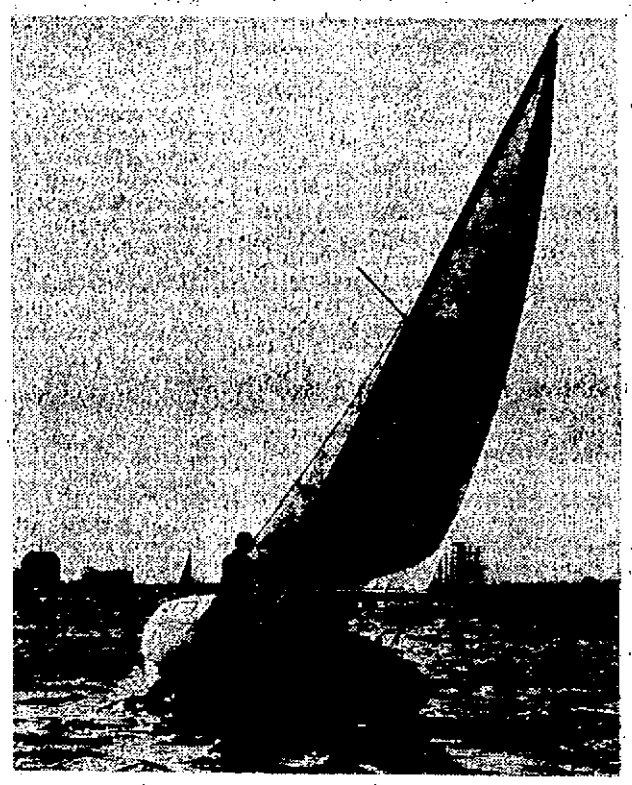

Pearson is deeply touched. We said he didn't think people would bother about an old man like him. When he got news of the Compton offer, he shed tears of gratitude. It's wonderful to report a happy ending to that one.

WELL, this is it for a while. I'm leaving on that fishing trip to Ft. Bidwell. For the next three weeks, no column—or maybe an intermittent appearance of B.C. As for fishing, I'll be satisfied with little ones.

THESE SAILBOATS ARE OUTWARD BOUND FOR A FAST RACE OFF LONG BEACH

Sail Takes Lead Over Power; Marinas in Traffic Problem

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Outdoor Editor

Boating off Southern California has expanded as much, perhaps even has surpassed, percentage-wise, the exploding population. While outboards and small power craft took the lead four or five years ago, now it is sailing.

If you don't think that sailboats have virtually filled Alamitos Bay and Long Beach Marina, take a look some Saturday or Sunday. It makes one wonder how all those boats can be maneuvered back to slips or launching ramps without major collisions.

You can start a sailing career for less than two hundred dollars—that would buy a second-hand, eight-foot Sabot. Or you can buy a new Sabot in a price range from $279 to $425, depending on how you wish to equip it.

* * * *

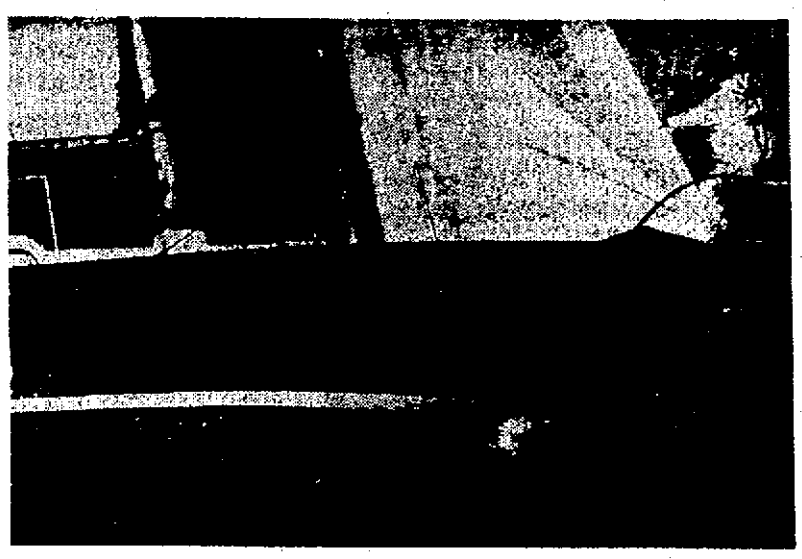

FROM THAT START you can go on up into the hundreds of thousands of dollars for the big sloops, yawls and schooners. If you wish to go into the 12-meter class, which will be used in the Americas Cup Race, you'd better form a syndicate or own a good chunk of Fort Knox.

Even at midweek there is tremendous interest in sailing, and that pressure at Alamitos Bay and other quiet-water areas will increase just as soon as school is out.

Long Beach Yacht Club started its wet Wednesday races June 3. That involves three classes of boats racing outside the Marina, around a buoy and back to the finish line. The races start at 6 p.m. and end when the boats are back, often after dark.

Part of Long Beach skyline is visible as this sailboat keels sharply and (below) this ship is under full sail and heading for home.

This sailor (above) is hanging on to a sail as the sleek vessel forges ahead. A Cal 20 (right), one of the most popular boats at the Marina, cruises slowly in front of the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club's new home, which is scheduled to be completed late in July or early August. It's at the entrance to the Marina.

Meetings Set on Oil Project

City and state officials have set in motion a series of meetings to reactivate the huge offshore oil production project in East Long Beach, long stymied by city-state disputes but cleared for a new start by the enactment last month of compromise legislation.

The first meeting last week was attended by 22 management, legal and engineering representatives of the city, state and seven oil companies owning leases in the adjacent upland area where development will be unitized with the larger offshore pools.

First major task of the group will be to revise the unitization agreement to conform with the compromise legislation, officially Senate Bill 60, City Manager John R. Mansell pointed out.

"We hope to move ahead expeditiously, with full participation and agreement by the state," Mansell told the city hall meeting.

* * * *

HE EXPRESSED hope that all the framework for the development will be brought up to date and signed in time for the opening of competitive bids for the field development contract before the end of 1964.

Mansell conceded, however, that some revision of the form of contract and of the development specifications will be necessary. This will go forward concurrently with the reworking of the unit agreement, he said.

The state and the city trust will share the net revenues from an estimated 1.5 billion barrels of oil in the undeveloped field. Under the compromise, the city's trust share is estimated at $250 million, or about 15 per cent of the net.

One point to be incorporated in the new document, as a result of the legislation, is the fact that the state will exercise the voting rights for the tideland equity in the unitized development the preponderant majority as compared with the uplands—after 1968. The city will relinquish voting rights at that point because of the state's gradually increasing share of the net revenues.

* * * *

ALL INTERESTS represented at the first meeting agreed to reactivate legal, engineering, accounting, exhibit and management committees to work on the new program. The legal and accounting committees will get down to their assignments at further meetings set for Monday.

Although city administrative, engineering and legal departments were represented at the opening session, the only state spokesman present was Charles Boquist, mineral resources engineer in the lands division.

Also present as an "observer" was H.A. Hansen, president of Dynamic Industries, a firm that claims to have been granted an offshore development contract in the 1940s but has since been rebuffed repeatedly in the courts. Hansen conceded that his company has no upland leases.

EDITORIAL

A Tardy Entry

GOV. WILLIAM SCRANTON'S decision to quit playing cat and mouse and exert an open, earnest effort to get the Republican nomination restores the ingredient of suspense to the forthcoming GOP National Convention but is painfully tardy.

Scranton's eleventh-hour statement assures a struggle of sorts at a convention which had been shaping up as just another Goldwater rally.

Scranton accurately reports the feeling among Republican moderates: ". . . the true spirit of the Republican Party today stands equally dedicated to preserving this nation from the dry-rot of phony liberalism or the slow death of blind reaction."

But can that spirit prevail at this late date, after the moderate leadership of the party has stood by and permitted the Goldwater wing to capture a commanding lead in the contest for delegates?

Scranton is optimistic, as any candidate must be. The Republicans, he says, are going to San Francisco to hold a convention, not a coronation or a wake. But his own wry afterthought puts the Republican picture in its true perspective:

"A stand must be made, but the hour is late. We have waited dangerously long to call upon our party's conscience . . ."

A Neat Scheme

BESIDES RAISING the salary of members of Congress from $22,500 to $30,000 a year, the federal pay raise bill which the House passed this week contains a rider which would give congressmen an increase every time civil servants get one.

Since Congress, itself, determines the pay of the civil servants, this must be looked upon as one of the neatest self-serving devices figured up by the nation's lawmakers since the franking privilege.

The proposed $7,500 increase is in itself a dubious proposal, and the rider, which could lead to yearly increases automatically, is an offense to a public already overcharged for the services of government.

JACK BALDWIN

A Sad Travesty

I, P-T Staff Writer

YESTERDAY ON THE way to work I witnessed a ceremony, if a ceremony it can be called, performed at the flag pole at the National Guard Armory at Stearns Street and Redondo Avenue. The ritual surprised me, aggravated me, and left me just a little bit ashamed.

Here is a military installation. The personnel assigned here are soldiers. They report for duty in uniform. But who walked to the flag pole to hoist the colors? A janitor!

Without ceremony of any kind he snapped "Old Glory" to the halyard and yanked it up the pole in jerks. It became entangled and the effort to free it looked as though the flag was receiving nine lashes across the back.

Being a janitor is an honest, respectable job, but it is sad to realize that the honor of hoisting "The Stars and Stripes" is held in so little regard at a military installation that the privilege of the Flag ceremony has been delegated to the civilian custodian.

To be able to partake in the ceremony of running up the colors is a privilege that perhaps should be reserved for the commanding officer and a guard of honor.

Back in 1937 when I was a member of a high school R.O.T.C., we formed a color guard each morning. We drew rifles and smartly escorted the colors to the flag pole. And then at present-arms and with a bugler sounding "Reveille" we hoisted the star-studded banner with the dignity the national emblem deserves.

It was a ritual in which we were proud to participate. Those who carelessly or intentionally showed disregard for the ceremony were rebuked.

Yesterday I saw several men in uniform who did not even stop walking while the colors were being "two-blocked."

This is Flag Day. I wonder how many will take time out during this day of rest to create the sight for which millions of Americans fought and gave their lives ". . . that our Flag was still there."

Legislative Career a Costly One

I. P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — If an incumbent legislator votes against himself in November, you can't blame him.

The $500-a-month salary of legislators is so low that the state's most experienced lawmakers stand to earn more money in retirement under liberal pension benefits.

McCAULEY

The ceiling has been taken off pension benefits so lawmakers can draw pensions in excess of 100 per cent of their former salary. Also, the pension increases annually with the cost of living—even when legislative pay remains fixed.

Thus, it pays economically for veteran incumbents to lose elections in California.

Assemblyman Edward M. Gaffney, D-San Francisco, was defeated in the June primary. In place of his $500-a-month pay check will come a $564.96-a-month pension allowance.

Eleven retired lawmakers now earn larger pension checks than the pay of Assemblymen and Senators. The list is topped by ex-Sen. Harry L. Parkman of Santa Cruz, a Republican, who draws a legislative pension of $702.20 monthly—40 per cent higher than legislative pay.

Rep. Agustus F. Hawkins, D-Los Angeles, a former Assemblyman, gets a monthly legislative pension of $670.89—in addition to his congressional paycheck.

Only a dedication toward public service — not take-home pay — keeps Long Beach area lawmakers on the job.

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, the dean of the Assembly, would draw a monthly pension of $635.58 if he retires Jan. 2, 1967. That represents a $135.58-a-month bonus over his present assembly pay.

Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, would be due a $235.40 a month pension allowance if he should resign from the legislature Jan. 2, 1967.

Assemblyman Carley V. Porter, D-Compton, former Long Beach City College history instructor, also is on the borderline of making more money with legislative retirement. Porter would be eligible for a $494.34 monthly pension check Jan. 2, 1967.

Two former Republican assemblymen from Long Beach receive more than half as much in legislative pensions as they did in legislative pay. Herbert R. Klocksiem gets $290.97, City Councilman William S. Grant $399.02.

Such low basic pay for legislators — as opposed to the fairly liberal retirement benefits — causes a heavy turnover in state lawmakers.

There were 41 newcomers in the 120-man legislature when the 1963 session convened. Another batch of freshmen is in prospect for 1965.

Sen. John A. Murdy Jr., R-Orange County, declined to run again for his $500-a-month Senate seat. Instead, he will draw a $353.10 pension. Murdy, 64, would have been a certain victor for re-election. But the financial incentive wasn't there to keep him in Sacramento.

* * * *

THERE ARE other fringe benefits for legislators. They receive living allowances when on state business and use of state-leased cars. However, a lawmaker normally has to maintain two residences — in Sacramento and at home. His entertainment costs, the lifeblood of mending political fences, come high.

Realistically, many modern California lawmakers suffer an economic loss to serve in Sacramento. Little wonder the retirement ranks grow. A lawmaker is eligible for retirement credits after four years service. Though top benefits aren't realized until age 60 and with 15 to 25 years service. Legislators contribute part but not all of pension costs.

A private corporation with a heavy turnover rate in policy makers would be pressing the personnel panic button. But California remains content to run its $3.6-billion-a-year "state government business" with underpaid legislative policy makers.

It isn't that California's fairly liberal legislative retirement system is too generous. Rather, legislative pay is absurdly low for a $3.6 billion operation where bureaucrats are paid five and six times as much as the lawmakers.

Bob Kennedy Will Keep Open Mind

WASHINGTON — President Johnson undoubtedly would rather have Robert F. Kennedy decide to run for the United States Senate from New York State than to be confronted with the necessity of picking the Attorney General as the vice-presidential nominee. All Washington has been gossiping about the problem for many weeks now, but it is becoming clear that, until it is definitely established that the President will not request the Attorney General to be his running mate, Mr. Kennedy will keep an open mind on making the race in New York State.

LAWRENCE

There are political complications both ways. If, for instance, Mr. Kennedy is selected as the vice-presidential nominee, he will help the Johnson cause in some states but possibly alienate voters in others. This is because he has been the center of the controversy on "civil rights."

It has long been assumed here that Mr. Johnson would not ask the Attorney General to become his running mate unless he needed him for election. In other words, many of the Johnson supporters think that at present the disadvantages would outweigh the advantages, and the feeling in administration circles is that Mr. Johnson isn't going to ask the Attorney General to be on the ticket.

But even if Mr. Kennedy decides to run for the Senate from New York State, it could have some bearing on the presidential race in that area. The "civil rights" controversy has left its imprint on New York State, and there seems no question that there will be a large "cross-over" vote from the Democratic party if the "civil rights" issue is dramatized by the entrance of Mr. Kennedy in the race.

It is true that the incumbent New York Senator, Kenneth Keating, Republican, has also been a staunch supporter of "civil rights," but he has not been directly involved in as many activities in that field as Atty. Gen. Kennedy.

It will come as a surprise to many people that someone who has not been a resident of the state of New York would even consider the possibility of trying to represent in the United States Senate such a populous state. Undoubtedly in opposition to the idea, the campaigners for Sen. Keating will be heard singing to voters of the state the song of the salesmen in the "Music Man," the refrain of which is, "But he doesn't know the territory, he doesn't know the territory."

Under the Consitution, of course, it isn't inecessary for a candidate to be a resident of the state which he seeks to represent in Congress. Pierre Salinger has just won the Democratic nomination for Senator in California, although he has not lived there for a long time.

It could be, of course, that Mr. Kennedy figures that, if he becomes a United States Senator, he will have a better chance for the presidency in 1968 in the event that President Johnson chooses not to run that year. The latter is, however, eligible for two elected terms in addition to the 14 months he will have served in filling out the presidential term of his predecessor.

It seems illogical for Atty. Gen. Kennedy to give up the idea of becoming a vice-presidential candidate at the national convention and run instead for the United States Senate unless he is absolutely sure he has no chance of getting the President's assent to be his running mate.

'Third Force' Tabs Barry as Symbol of Its Hostility

RISING HOSTILITY to the "30-year liberal consensus" is the rallying point and common ground of the minority Third Force in American politics now dedicated to Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, according to the Research Institute of American newsletter.

This Third Force conservatism constitutes a protest that will remain whether or not Goldwater is the Republican presidential nominee and regardless of who wins in November, says RIA.

HOUSER

According to this estimate of the Goldwater movement, there is little outside of the common ground of protest which unites the group—"no unity or unifying ideology; many of its ingredients are vague, confused, in actual conflict with one another."

For example, it isn't the old conservatism of wealth and property and is not the work of big business, big landlords or big anything. RIA says the "anti" group goes beyond geographical or class patterns, adding:

"They're the rural Southerners with ancient racial prejudices, but also the urban ethnic minorities who came out for (Alabama Gov. George) Wallace in Wisconsin, Maryland and Indiana. Some are university professors who write for slick Eastern magazines, some are hardly literate. Also many businessmen horrified at New Frontier spending plans and union workers disturbed by Negro demands for job preference."

MANY IN THE GROUP are still highly uncomfortable with each other's company, because some still are within the liberal consensus on some important points while others have stayed with the right wing "from Hoover, through the old Liberty League to Taft and McCarthy."

But, in common, they have coalesced around the Goldwater image. "They're not being won by any clear logic in what he's advocating, but by his promise of vigor and outspokenness, the simplicity he's been able to imply in dealing with their special worries."

RIA estimates that this Third Force, though far from a majority, might one day lead to a third party and, whether or not it captures the GOP, will affect the nation's policies profoundly and, "Eventually the result will be a new political mainstream, but not soon."

Third Force momentum will carry on far beyond the the 1964 elections, says RIA, because the liberal consensus is running out of solutions for the nation's problems.

CONGRESSMAN Craig Hosmer, in Long Beach for a few days, thinks the concern of liberals of Goldwater carrying GOP office seekers to defeat with him is a sincere concern but not well-founded. He says his Republican colleagues do not seem apprehensive at all at the prospect.

Hosmer says any president is the captive of the people and when he gets in office, philosophical extremes disappear. For example, the Kennedy of 1960 was quite more liberal than the Kennedy of presidential years and the Lyndon Johnson of the 1960 vice presidential campaign was a good deal more conservative than Johnson, the President.

OUR GOVERNMENT, in conception, says Hosmer, was designed to prevent rapid and radical change. The founding fathers wanted no more revolution, only evolutionary-type change.

Hosmer believes a Goldwater administration would be a "re-run" of the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in terms of international policy and a re-run of Eisenhower on domestic policy with perhaps more emphasis on frugality and, in the area of defense, "a big increase in service morale."

Goldwater Not So Far to the Right?

EDITOR:

The California primary revealed over one-half of the Republican voters are in favor of a man defined by the press as "far right." It is obvious we should reestablish our lines as to extremities.

A true study of the platform of Sen. Goldwater has always shown moderation or true Republicanism. The government's march toward socialism has a tendency to make us believe free enterprise is obsolete.

"Common Sense" is an appropriate caption for Sen. Goldwater's platform.

Urges Stop Signs at Rail Crossings

EDITOR:

I noted with interest your misguided editorial last week in connection with your suggestion that the railroads of the country construct over or underpasses at railroad highway grade crossings. A recent article in the Illinois Central Railroad magazine for June urges, too, that something be done to reduce the appalling accidents that happen when train meets auto at a grade crossing, but, unlike you, it proposes to do something practical about it. The plan, proposed for Michigan, is so simple and workable.

(The plan urges that octagonal red-and-white stop signs, with which motorists are familiar, be installed at all grade crossings to replace or augment the traditional cross-buck sign.)

It is of no use to point out that the tremendous number of cars and trucks make the plan unworkable in California. The experiment in Michigan completely nullifies that—there are a few cars there also.

Most drivers in California are careful and most of them respect an octagonal red and white stop sign which is entirely familiar to all of us. Those who do not usually get what is coming to them.

At least, you could campaign for something that is simple and can be done instead of trying to convince your readers that the railroads stand the expense of a program that is too expensive to even consider.

Sen. Goldwater Offers a Choice

EDITOR:

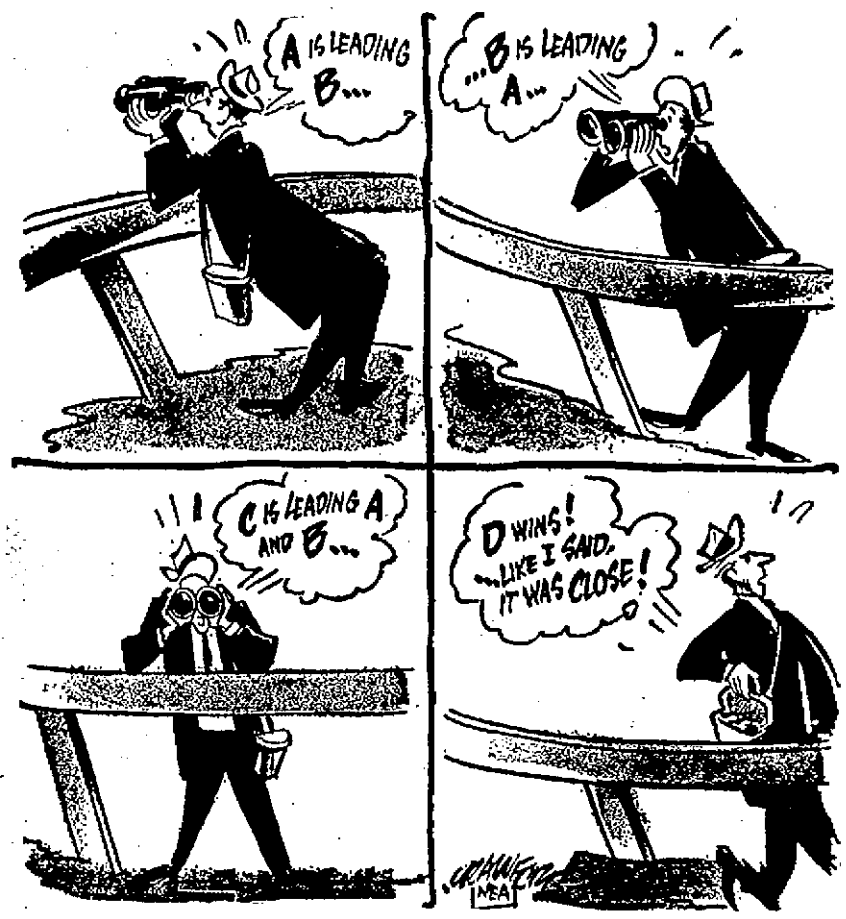

I believe I can speak for a goodly portion of Republicans when I say that my primary vote for Barry M. Goldwater was not particularly a vote in support of his personality but was in reality a vote in support of his philosophy.

Goldwater is the only candidate on the horizon that offers us a chance for a choice between two opposing philosophies in November. Johnson and Goldwater differ on many issues among which are foreign policy, civil rights, states rights, etc.—and the people want to choose between them.

Any maneuver by kingmakers to deprive the voters of this choice, by actions that they may make at the presidential convention, can be most damaging. The people have spoken—the votes are a matter of record.

WALTER T. RIDDER

Old Pro Lyndon Won't Join Premature Victory Dance

WASHINGTON—One good way in which to lose an election is to believe that you've got it won before the campaign even starts. Such, it appears, is the current mood of many Democrats who are already tasting the heady wine of November victory.

They laughed and chortled with glee at the rather inept performance of the Republican governors in Cleveland the other day. Many of them hail with delight the prospective nomination by the GOP of Sen. Barry Goldwater and happily exclaim: "There's one guy we can always beat." They are therefore busy choosing President Johnson's new cabinet, they are digging in for another four or eight years in Washington, and they speculate upon what new and exciting jobs may be in store for them.

RIDDER

Well, maybe they are right and maybe Lyndon B. Johnson will actually carry all 50 states as so many of them are confidently predicting today. Maybe. The voice of political experience is a little drowned today in the exultant cries of those who are already claiming victory, but it would be well not to be too sure about elections 5 months or so before they are held.

The woods are littered with the political corpses of those who elected themselves to office before the voters did. The voter is, as lots of would-be office-holders have discovered to their dismay, like the woman of a popular song—a two-faced, a worrisome thing who'll teach you to sing the blues in the night.

Never perhaps were those blues sung so tearily as on the night of the 1948 election when the sure thing winner, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, discovered he hadn't won at all and who is probably still analysing the vote wondering just what hit him.

If too many of the Democrats are inclined to think that it's all over but the shouting, the same cannot be said for their prospective leader, Lyndon B. Johnson. An old hand at assessing the vagaries of the voter, Johnson is already tirelessly on the hustings, shaking hands, making speeches, and putting in personal appearances all over the country. His pace is so frenetic that one of his close associates recently said to him in some exasperation: "Slow it down! After all, you don't have to have the other 10 percent of the vote." But like the political pro he is the President is taking no chances and he is not assuming he has the ninety per cent that some others think he has. He is acting indeed as if he didn't have fifty per cent—a salutary attitude if he desires re-election.

In this world of ours today, five months is a long time. Much can happen which will make things look quite different in November than they do today. Assumptions in June of what the voter will think and do in the early fall are highly dangerous.

Maybe Johnson will clobber Goldwater as decisively as is now being so freely predicted. As for me, I think I'll wait on that until the votes have been counted.

JACK ANDERSON

Communists Use 'Mata Hari' Bait to Get GIs to Defect

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Drew Pearson is on a news-gathering tour of the Middle East. In his absence his column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON—The Army's confidential files contain some fascinating human stures about the men who forsake their country to seek a new life behind the Iron Curtain.

What drives men to desert their country? What happens to them once they arrive on the other side? How many repent their rash act and try to return? There are answers never before published:

Most men who have fled into Communist arms were merely trying to escape punishment. They have ranged from Marvin Betty of Bruning, Neb., who skipped into East Germany to evade a murder charge, to Heinrich J. Newton of the Virgin Islands, who defected rather than face discharge and disgrace for homosexual activity. Both were last reported in East Germany.

Soviet agents have also become adept at tempting girl-hungry GIs with seductive sirens, who usually desert the lovelorn soldier once he is across the border. They set up date bureaus, arrange sex traps.

Or the girl may plead with tears in her eyes that only by slipping behind the Curtain can the GI help her and her family to escape to freedom. But when the modern Pimpernel responds and reaches the secret rendezvous, he is met, not by his beauty in distress, but by the Communist police.

More often than not, he never sees her again. She has gone back for a new assignment.

Charles C. Lucas of Xenia, Ohio, was enticed to East Germany by a girl who immediately deserted him. He stayed on, miserable, despondent, finally to die by his own hand on June 12, 1956.

Another Mata Hari seduced George W. Stabley of Jersey Shore, Pa., into fathering her child, in order to get him behind the Iron Curtain. Once on the other side, she coldly dropped him. Afraid to return, he eventually took up with another East German girl.

Some men who have fallen into the girl-trap have come home to face the music, once love's bloom has faded. Kenneth D. Miller of Modesto, Calif., lured into East Germany by a girlfriend in April, 1954, found bitterness instead of bliss. He managed to return, paid for his romance by going to prison for two years for desertion.

Bobby F. Holland of Rockmart, Ga., who eloped to East Germany in February, 1955, also made his way back forlornly without his bride. He got three years for the same crime.

Raymond S. Hareld of Providence, R.I., deserted his Japanese wife and disappeared in Czechoslovakia in May, 1962, with a seducer named Margita Schlottag. But he, too, hastened home, preferring prison life to Communist love.

* * * *

THE MOMENT a defector arrives behind the Iron Curtain, he is subjected to severe psychological tests designed to trip up double agents. He may be hustled off to a concentration camp or given a menial job at starvation wages. Those who have come home to prison terms tell of others who would like to return.

Sidney Sparks of Wrightsville, Ga., while awaiting trial for having robbed and assaulted a German taxi driver, escaped from an Army guardhouse and beat it into East Berlin. He grandly asked for "protection," expecting to get welcomed.

Instead, he drew a 15-year term for "espionage," served three years in the notorious Soviet camps at Vorquta and Vladimor. At last, in February 1956, he was bundled back over the border and handed to U.S. authorities. Sparks is now happy to be serving a 10-year sentence in an American prison.

Of the 67 Army men who have defected since the Korean War, 22 have made their way back. Many more reportedly wish they could come home. For those who remain behind the Iron Curtain, or who may still defect, living under communism is their fitting punishment.

Robert Kennedy Edges Toward Senate

By Washington Bureau Staff

WASHINGTON — Look for an early announcement about Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's future plans. He is giving the most serious consideration to running for the Senate from New York this fall against incumbent Republican Kenneth Keating.

As usual, the Attorney General is playing things close to the vest, but the best guess is that he will decide to take the senatorial plunge. Pierre Salinger's victory in the California Democratic primary showed Bobby that the tag of "carpet-bagger" is not necessarily fatal although Bobby's credentials as a New Yorker are considerably less impressive than Pierre's as a Californian.

Kennedy's decision may also be influenced by the current tide in the Republican Party. The better are the chances of Barry Goldwater for nomination, the weaker are Bobby's prospects for the Democratic vice presidential spot. It is reasoned here that President Johnson won't need Bobby's undoubted strength among the civil righters if Goldwater is the GOP standard-bearer. This certainly is one of the factors Bobby is weighing as he tries to make up his mind on what to do next.

* * * *

CALIFORNIA politics and the vagaries of Golden State voters fascinate most politicians, none more than Californians themselves. Rep. Ron Cameron, D., Calif., reflected on things the other day and decided that the only certainty is that life is filled with contradictions. He cited the case of his good friend, Jesse Unruh, speaker of the California Assembly and No. 1 Democrat in Southern California. Unruh was told by several observers that he could get rid of his "boss" image by losing a lot of weight and giving up cigars.

"And so Jesse lost about a hundred pounds and was never photographed with a cigar, and so what happens?" asked Cameron. "Some cigar-smoking fat guy named Pierre came along and got himself nominated as the party candidate for U. S. Senator. You can't win."

* * * *

AMONG THOSE who will not be disappointed if Sen. Barry Goldwater wins the Republican presidential nomination is Sen. Gene McCarthy, the prominent Minnesota Democrat. He is claiming a certain amount of prescience about Goldwater. He was one of the first to challenge Goldwater's basic views on conservatism, taking on in a television debate more than a year ago. McCarthy also is the author of a book, "The Liberal Answer to the Conservative Challenge," published early this year and clearly a rebuttal to Goldwater's book, "The Conscience of a Conservative." The most vivid photograph in a pamphlet prepared earlier this year for McCarthy's re-election campaign showed him engaged in earnest debate with Goldwater. It now appears no revisions will be necessary if Goldwater's dash toward the nomination continues unimpeded.

AS USUALLY happens when an incumbent announces retirement early, rumors are thick that California's Sen. Clair Engle will resign, clearing the way for appointment of Pierre Salinger to his U.S. Senate seat. Salinger then would go into the fall election as an incumbent and gain additional seniority in the Senate if elected. The rumors are being discounted.

DENMARK'S engaging Prime Minister Jens Krag and his photogenic wife cut a wide social swath in Washington last week. Mrs. Krag is a well-known Danish movie star and the Prime Minister has an admirable wit, which he flourished with great effect upon arrival. The train bringing the Danish couple to Washington was delayed by an accident, and the welcoming party fretted and fumed for more than an hour at Union Station. "I'll bet you're all wondering why I took the train," said Krag upon arrival. (As a matter of fact, the Americans had so wondered.) "I did it to avoid being late. The last time I came to Washington, I was three hours late because my plane was delayed by fog."

BOB KENNEDY

Tardy trains are a rarity in Denmark. King Frederick is a dedicated rail buff and some believe he would rather be a locomotive engineer than Head of State. The King keeps timetables of Danish railroads in his head. Whenever he hears a train whistle or sees one passing he invariably pulls out his watch to check on the time. Danish railroaders are well aware of the royal interest and the trains are among the most punctual in Europe.

A MAJOR PART OF L.B. FAN'S GENERAL PLAN

Cultural Complex Mapped

Development of performing and fine arts facilities in Long Beach is one of the major parts of the California World's Fair general plan that has been submitted to the City Council for consideration.

Encompassing a complete revitalization of the Municipal Auditorium—Arena area, the cultural complex involves an expenditure of approximately $6 million. These funds will be provided by the California World's Fair's construction program based upon the proposed leaseback financing plan now under study. All structures in the area will be of a permanent nature and upon conclusion of the fair's two seasons will become the sole property of the City of Long Beach at no initial cost to the taxpayers.

Killingsworth, Brady and Associate, A.I.A., Long Beach architectural firm, prepared the plans and designs for the cultural complex. For more than two years, the firm has investigated the needs of the city in the area of performing and fine arts and conferred with experts in these fields. The plan is designed to first serve the requirements of the City of Long Beach and, secondly, is adaptable for use by the fair during its two seasons.

* * * *

DETAILS OF THE plan include the rejuvenation of the existing Municipal Auditorium, both interior and exterior. The present Convention Hall will become a Music-Drama Theater seating 2600. The entire hall will be remodelled to include sloping seating with a new stage and new accoustical treatment.

There will be 1,800 seats on the lower floor and 800 seats on the upper level. Of the 800 seats, 200 will be box seats. The plans call for the inclusion of a new service area, a set preparation and storage area, dressing rooms, a shop area, and a preparation area.

The present Concert Hall, located at what is now the rear of the auditorium, will become a 900-seat Drama Playhouse. All new appointments and seats will be installed, plus the construction of a new apron stage. The entrance areas and interior areas of both of these new facilities will complement the new modern auditorium.

The present Exhibit Hall on the lower level will be remodelled to serve both for convention activities and exhibit shows and as a major ballroom area for special city functions. Interior movement within the auditorium will be by escalators, elevators, and grand staircases.

* * * *

PLANS CALL FOR the establishment of a new Ocean Boulevard level approach to the auditorium with a complete new facade on the existing building. The auditorium facade would consist of a five-story-high colonnade which would surround the building. Just inside the colonnade area a plush lobby complete with 60-feet-high glass walls, grand staircases and beautiful chandeliers.

The entrance area from Ocean Boulevard up to the front of the auditorium would be beautified with extensive landscaping highlighted by a 300-feet-long reflecting pool.

Just west of the auditorium is planned a Fine Arts Center which will serve as an art museum and fulfill the needs for other local fine arts activities. This structure is planned initially to consist of two floors with an excess of 60,000 square feet of room with expansion provisions available for up to 100,000 square feet. The center will include interior galleries, offices, storage, and feature exterior sculpture courts.

* * * *

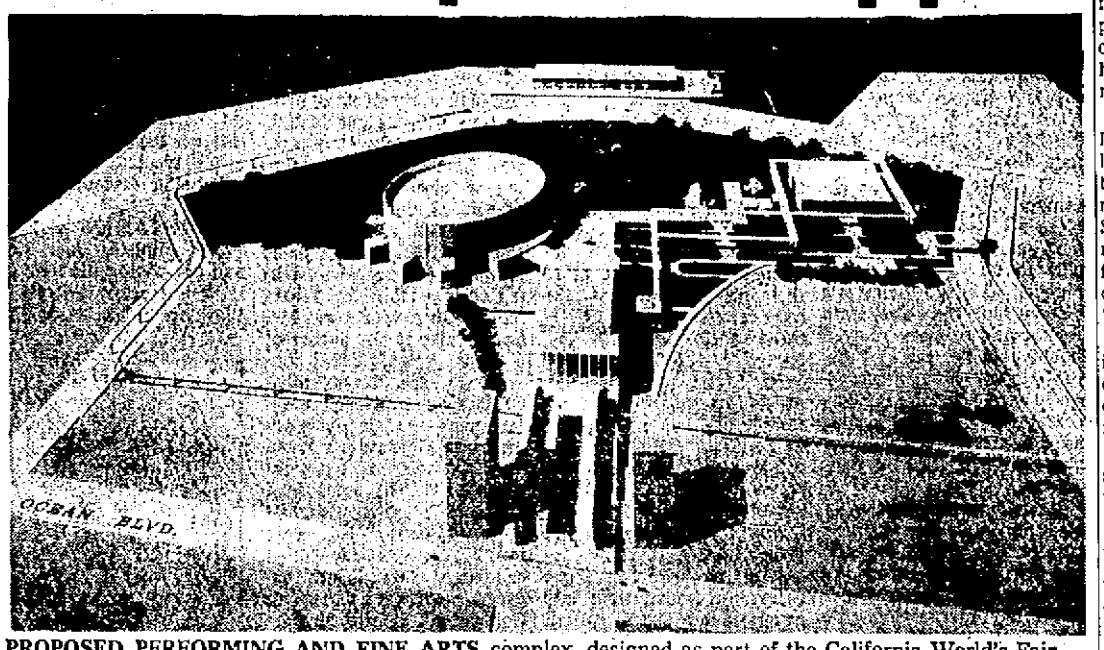

THE ARCHITECTURAL treatment of the building will blend with the new auditorium through the use of surrounding covered colonnades. The area between the auditorium and the fine arts center will be considered as an outdoor room with walkways, covered colonnades, lagoons, reflecting pools and extensive landscaping.

Provisions have been made for better access to the auditorium area both by automobile and by foot, with circular drive areas established for two entrances to the area. Another major feature of the plan is the inclusion of a rapid transit system which encircles the area.

This system would connect both to the downtown area, and to the fair site on Pier J. Four depots for the rapid transit system are planned for the area for easy access from both the activity centers as well as the parking areas.

The cultural complex has been carefully designed to complement the city's already-approved shoreline development plan and already-approved structures, such as the Maritime Museum. Upon approval of the California World's Fair financing program and the completion of necessary architectural and construction details, it is anticipated that this plan could become a reality in time for the California World's Fair.

When completed, the area will serve as the local point of activity and beauty for the entire City of Long Beach and Southern California.

Mad Russian Kills Moscow Scientist

MOSCOW (UPI)—A self-styled Russian genius who felt his acts were above reproach shot and killed a Moscow scientist who rejected his "great discovery," it was reported Saturday.

The government newspaper Izvestia said lawyer Vyacheslav Osokin, 37, marched into the office of V. Koritsky, a member of the Academy of Sciences, pulled a sawed-off rifle out of his briefcase and fired point-blank. The murder took place June 9, Izvestia said.

Osokin was quoted as saying he killed Koritsky because his "great discovery" due to his genius was not recognized.

"The true criminals," he said, "are those who didn't want to recognize my work. Acts of genius are not subject to laws of society."

The newspaper said Osokin was under investigation for murder. The "great discovery" was not identified.

Osokin worked on his "discovery" at night and sent off letter after letter to scientists seeking approval, the paper said.

"Osokin knew he was no genius. He was just taking revenge on society for his failures," the newspaper said.

Koritsky was the "learned secretary" of the academy's spectroscopy committee. He was described as a veteran scientist.

The Superintendency of Monuments officially notified the city of the danger, saying it had no funds to complete restoration work started some time ago.

Congo Troops Surprise, Kill 60 Doped-up, Victory-Dancing Rebels

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—Congolese national army troops in Kivu Province opened fire on a group of drug-crazed Bafulero tribesmen and killed more than 60 of them while they were stomping out a victory dance, it was reported Saturday.

Eyewitness reports from Bugarama in eastern Kivu near the Rwanda Territory border said the attack was led by Gen. Joseph Mobutu, the army commander-in-chief.

The reports said Mobutu took charge after the tribesmen, hopped up with marijuana, had dispersed regular army troops in hand-to-hand combat in which five soldiers were hacked to death with native panga knives.

The Bafuleros were clad in ragged shirts and banana leaf skirts for their victory dance.

Army troops routed them with mortars and recoilless rifles, then burned the head-high elephant grass which served as a cover for the retreating tribesmen.

The advance bogged down when the army units ran into rebels backed by Chinese Communists at Kamanyola. The strategic village is on the Ruzizi River which separates the Congo from Rwanda to the north and Burundi to the south. The Chinese headquarters is at Usumburu, the Burundi capital.

The Bafuleros had been plied with "mulele water" prior to the clash. The potion, named after Peking-trained rebel leader Pierre Mulele, was supposed to turn the government troops' bullets into water.

After the battle, pouches containing mixtures of tobacco and marijuana were found on the bodies of the tribesmen, some of them children and teen-agers.

Korea Martial Law Lifting Urged

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—President Chung Hee Park's political opponents decided Saturday to ask the national assembly to lift the martial law he decreed for Seoul June 3 as a result of student demonstrations against his government.

The president, whose Democratic Republican Party holds 110 of the assembly's 165 seats, has said both martial law and censorship will be continued indefinitely, although peace and order have been restored "on the basis of surface appearances."

Cerritos Channel Bid Set

L. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Bids on a contract to improve Los Cerritos Channel between Pacific Coast Highway and Seventh Street in Long Beach will be opened Friday by the County Flood Control District.

Plans do not call for removal of boats from the channel area, but there probably will be some restrictions on their movement during the construction period, a district spokesman said.

Estimated cost of the project is $800,000. It will involve the dredging of about 110,800 cubic yards of material from the channel and the placing of more than 60,000 tons of rocks along its banks to cut down erosion.

The project also will include the installation of about 9,055 feet of chain-link fencing.

M. E. Salsbury, chief engineer of the Flood Control District, said Cerritos Channel carries storm waters from as far north as Bellflower and Lakewood to empty into the upper Alamitos Bay area, just east of Marine Stadium.

County supervisors are expected to award a contract June 30. Work would start about mid-July and is scheduled to be completed about February, 1965.

L.B.'s Airport Bustling Into 2nd Place

Long Beach Municipal Airport, with May activity shattering all records, is almost certain to push past Los Angeles International Airport as the second busiest field in the United States, Nicholas Dallas, city director of aeronautics, said Friday.

With a month to go in the fiscal year, Long Beach is already far ahead of fiscal 1962--63 in total operations, Dallas said.

Takeoffs and landings for the 11-month period through May totaled 359,789, or 21,503 more than the record 1962-63 total of 338,286.

In May 41,735 operations were recorded, by far the facility's biggest month ever.

* * * *

FEDERAL Aviation Agency records for the 1962-63 fiscal year placed Long Beach behind Chicago's O'Hara Field and Los Angeles International in total operations.

So far this year, however, Long Beach has surged past the Los Angeles field and should finish near the 400,000 mark, Dallas said.

Two reasons for the sharp increase in activity are a rise in visiting aircraft, and a new, two-frequency radio communications system which has improved traffic-handling capability, the airport director said.

Another factor is the growing number of locally-based planes, up from 450 in May 1962 to 713 in May 1964, more than are based at any other airport in the world.

Strike Halts Italian Liner

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The Italia Line's transatlantic passenger ship Vulcania, due to leave Saturday for New York, was blocked in port by a strike of her 481 crew members.

They demand higher pay and immediate renewal of contracts that normally would not expire until December.

They said that unless their demands were met they would not take the liner out of port before Monday afternoon.

Typhoid Outbreak First Drop Noted

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP)—The number of persons hospitalized in the typhoid epidemic which broke out three weeks ago dropped Saturday for the first time—by one.

There still were 393 confirmed cases in hospitals, the same as the previous day. But the number of suspected cases dropped from 52 to 51.

Californians Give College $2.1 Million

BRUNSWICK, Maine (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Q. Hawes of Kenwood, Calif., have given Bowdoin College land valued at $2.1 million James S. Coles, president, announced Saturday. Hawes, an honor graduate in 1910, operates Kinnybrook Farm, a 1,000-acre cattle ranch in Sonoma County 50 miles north of San Francisco, where he breeds registered Herefords.

WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Independent, Press-Telegram newspaperboy John Van't Land, 16, accepts a $150 California Newspaperboy Foundation Scholarship from Stuart Ellens, principal of Valley Christian High School, Artesia, as Southland Cities Circulation Manager Kenneth Johnson looks on. The scholarship was awarded the youth for being judged one of the 12 best newspaperboys in the state. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marinus Van't Land, 10110 Beverly Ave., Bellflower.

British Roads 'Most Crowded'

LONDON (AP)—On a note of despair, the British Road Federation reports Britain has probably the most crowded roads in the world. It figures there were 11,348,100 vehicles for 198,455 road miles last year, or 57 vehicles per mile.

Sailing Takes Lead

On the night of June 10, the second week of the wet Wednesday events, more than 80 boats took part. It almost looked like the start of the Ensenada annual classic.

The wet Wednesday races will continue weekly through July 15. Then, from July 23 to Aug. 27, the thirsty Thursday races will begin.

Roughly, there are about 2,000 boats in the Marina and Alamitos Bay. Six hundred of those are sailboats, ranging from 20 feet to the 83-foot schooner Serena.

In addition, there are hundreds of smaller boats either beached or parked in somebody's garage or back yard that one doesn't see until the weekend rolls around.

Larry McDowell, Marina director, says that there has been a tremendous increase of boats using the Marina and Alamitos Bay in the last two years. Such an increase is quite noticeable to him from the patrol and safety standpoint.

* * * *

McDOWELL admits that getting in and out of the Marina is becoming more of a problem all the time. Marina Rules of the Road give sailboats the right of way at all times and the facemaking between some powerboat operators and the sailboaters isn't just a myth.

McDowell says that most sailboat operators realize the plight of big powerboats and cooperate very nicely. On the other hand, there are some sailboaters who tack from one side of the entrance channel to the other and show very little consideration for anybody, except themselves.

If this lack of consideration for the other fellow continues, it is possible that rules of entering and leaving the Marina may have to be changed to benefit both power and sail.

* * * *

A GLANCE at the list of clubs in this area shows how much interest there is in sailing. There are nearly 1,400 families in the four clubs immediately associated with the Marina—Long Beach YC, Alamitos Bay YC, Seal Beach YC and the Little Ships Fleet of Long Beach. LBYC has more power than sail, but the Rag Boys, as the power group calls them, are starting to put new life into the club.

Alamitos Bay YC is completing a beautiful clubhouse near the Marina entrance and will host the Finn and Dragon North American finals for the Olympic Games in July and August.

Alamitos Bay YC will have a launching ramp for the small boats and two hoists capable of handling boats as large as the 29-foot Dragons.

Those Dragon sailors are real dedicated people. Some San Francisco entrants in next month's finals brought their boats here several weeks ago and fly down each weekend to practice. There will be entrants from Canada, the U.S., Mexico and Bermuda to determine the North American championships.

* * * *

THE 14-FOOT Finns will have their raceoffs in August.

ABYC's 360 families and 20 juniors own 435 sailboats.

In addition to the four clubs mentioned, there are these others in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area: Blue Water Cruising Club, Buccaneer YC, Cabrillo Beach YC, Catalina Island YC, Channel Cruising Club, Leeway Sailing Club, Los Angeles YC, Offshore Cruising Club and even the Hollywood YC.

There are eight yacht clubs in the Newport-Balboa area, seven in San Diego and 16 others classified in the Santa Monica, Santa Barbara and inland areas. There are even a Pomona Sailing Association and a Sierra Sailing Association.

* * * *

STAN MILLER, who sells sailboats at the Marina Bazaar Building, says this is the way youngsters usually work their way up through sailing:

First of all, they buy eight-foot Sabots usually when they are just starting into their teens. Some buy before that. The Sabot usually lasts one person (that's all it holds) until he is through high school.

College days, however, call for a Tehman 10 (two persons). After college, the bachelors prefer the Snipes(15½ feet), which will take the rough water outside the harbor.

The married couples like the Lido 14, which is an exceptional boat for smooth water.

After that, they may change boats many times depending on finances and other circumstances.

* * * *

ONE OF the most popular boats in the Marina now is the Cal 20, made by Jensen Marine at Costa Mesa. Miller is the agent for that boat and others. He has 25 Cal 20s on order now and an owner for each one just as soon as he can get delivery. Jensen Marine is making one a day.

The other Cal boats are the 24 (meaning feet), 25 (new for next fall), 28, 30 and 40. The Cal 20 sells for $4,000 or more, depending on how you equip it; the Cal 40 at $25,000 or $30,000.

There already are 120 Cal 20s in the Marina. It's an extremely sturdy boat.

Ex-Brazil Chief Starts Exile

RIO DE JANIERO (UPI)—Former President Juscelino Kubitschek, barred from politics by the army-backed government of President Humberto Castello Branco, left for exile in Spain Saturday.

Kubitschek had intended to contest the forthcoming presidential elections but Castello Branco deprived him of his political rights and his senate seat last Monday, charging he permitted corruption in his term of office from 1956 to 1961 and collaborated with the Communists.

Kubitschek vowed at the time he would remain in Brazil and defend himself, but government sources said officials advised him it would be better to "take a long trip."

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Reactionary Mart Ends With Unimpressive Gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market finished with a small and unimpressive gain last week. Trading was comparatively light.

Prices tumbled sharply in the opening session as the market continued the previous week's reactionary phase. Tuesday and Wednesday saw a limited recovery. But analysts held to their forecasts that the market would remain in its retreat until there was a decisive breakthrough in the upward resistance barrier around the 810 level in the Dow-Jones Industrial average.

* * * *

THE breakthrough came in the second hour Thursday and soon afterward the senior indicator had soared around 5 points. However, volume had contracted sharply — it was the slowest session in 10 months—and prices drifted back from their best levels before the close.

The closing session was a push-pull affair with prices pushing ahead only to be pulled back by a combination of lagging volume and normal pre-weekend profit-taking.

As things stand now, with the DJI again below the 810 level, most technicians believe there either will be a new retreat or a milling around until enough strength is built up for another assault. However, the consensus is that a much heavier volume will have to be on hand for any upward move to be successful.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, the economic picture continued to be good, although some economic forecasters are doing a bit of crepe-hanging over just how long the current record rate of growth can last.

Dow-Jones Industrial average rose 3.36 to 809.39 and rails advanced 1.24 to 203.74. Utilities rose 1.62 to 141.60. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 0.58 to 79.60.

Trading slowed to 20,128,530 shares from 21,588,400 shares the previous week and 22,831,718 shares in the same week last year.

Of the 1,505 issues traded, 761 advanced, 68 to new highs while 587 declined, 174 to new lows.

Texas Gulf Sulphur topped the most active list with a loss of 1⅝ to 48½ on a turnover of 1,500,800 shares. Two Canadian mining companies have filed legal claims against the company's Canadian mineral discovery.

* * * *

SPERRY-RAND took second place with a loss of 1 to 14¾ on 417,000 shares. IBM notified the company Thursday that this year's payment of $1,250,000 ends its obligation under a 1956 patent infringement suit settlement.

It was followed by RCA with a gain of ¾ to 31⅝ on 290,400 shares and Chrysler with a gain of ⅜ to 47 on 304,200 shares.

General Motors advanced 1¾ while Ford added ½ and American Motors tacked on ⅛.

Steels were mostly easier. Youngstown Sheet and Lukens lost ½ each. U.S. Steel slipped ¾ and Bethlehem gave up ⅛. Republic added ⅛.

* * * *

DU PONT finished with a loss of ¼, but Eastman Kodak rose ½, Allied ⅝ and Dow Chemical 1⅝. Oils were comparatively quiet. Continental rose 2, Standard of California 1¾ and Texaco ⅞.

IBM soared 8½ in a fairly strong electronics section. Honeywell jumped 4½, Motorola 4¼, National Cash Register 4⅝, Zenith 2¼, Control Data 1⅞ and Texas Instruments 1¼. Beckman took to the downtrack, losing 1⅜.

* * * *

AIRLINE shares were firm with Northwest up 2⅛, Trans World 4⅛, American 1⅞ and Pan American 1½. Merck rose 2¼ in the drugs while Upjohn picked up 2 and Johnson and Johson fell 1. Coca-Cola climbed 3¾ and General Foods tacked on 1¾.

Stores benefited from news of record retail sales in May. Sears, which also forecast profit gains of from 6 to 11 percent over the next five years, added 2¼. Macy rose 3⅛ and J. C. Penney gained 1⅞.

Reports of improving cigarette sales boosted Reynolds Tobacco 3⅛, Liggett & Myers 1⅜ and Philip Morris 1.

Bath Iron Works dropped 5⅜ after directors omitted the current quarterly dividend. American Telephone skidded 2¼ and Pacific Telephone, a subsidiary, lost 1⅛.

* * * *

POLAROID climbed 10⅞ while Xerox, its glamor twin, picked up 6⅞. Safeway rose 2¾. Late in the week the company said it will call its 4.30 percent convertible preferred stock for redemption Oct. 1.

Avon products rose 2¾. American Can advanced 2⅛. Financial Federation dropped 3⅛ and First Charter Financial skidded 2½.

How can you teach your child the value of money?

New free booklet helps solve an age-old problem.

■ Children quickly learn the importance of money — but teaching them its value is a long, slow process. So says child expert Suzanne Strait. And to help parents guide their youngsters towards this worthwhile goal, she has written a booklet especially for New York Life, "Teaching Your Child the Value of Money" is packed with informative, practical suggestions . . . and it's yours free!

■ Let them learn by doing. The author, mother of four, and a respected writer on child matters, points out there's no educational device like an allowance: "Let children handle money for themselves, make their own mistakes, and learn for themselves. Do not use money as a punishment or a reward, but rather as a practical lesson in getting, choosing and spending."

■ Examples and practical advice. There are numerous examples throughout this booklet, illustrating how youngsters at various ages often react to money and the problems it poses. In addition, Suzanne Strait offers tips to help parents set a good financial model. Above all, trust your children, she says, and give them leeway. Just as in learning to sew or saw, they'll make mistakes, but they will learn in the long run.

■ Get this helpful free booklet. No matter what age your children, there's something of value for you in "Teaching Your Child the Value of Money." For a free copy, send the coupon below.

COLLEGE SUGGESTED

Supervisors to Study Nurses Training School

Should the school for nurses at Los Angeles County General Hospital be closed and their training turned over to a college or university?

This question by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, will be explored further by the Board of Supervisors.

Hahn pointed out last week that the nurses' school received an annual budget of $500,000 for a current student enrollment of 311. Each year it graduates about 70 nurses.

"Yet, year after year, there is a constant recruiting problem, and we send county employes all over the nation to recruit new employes," Hahn said.

He said it appears "a basic weakness" in the county training program for nurses that "only a fraction" of those trained continue to serve in some county institution.

Hahn asked that the study check whether the training curriculum, staff and the "motivation" in today's course should be changed to "stimulate the students to remain and be dedicated county nurses, working at the county hospitals.

"How much time do the nurses spend in learning how to make a bed, folding a sheet and doing chores that are done by attendants in the modern hospitals?" Hahn asked.

He also suggested that the final report determine the cost to the taxpayers per student nurse.

Finally, Hahn said, the report should recommend "whether the entire function of training of nurses should be transferred from county administration as an educational unit to a college or university which specializes in educational policies, and thus relieve the taxpayers of this problem."

Carol's Ambition Is to Own House

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — "Carol, what's your ambition . . . now that you're a smash hit in 'Fade Out—Fade In' . . . ready to star in your own TV series in the fall . . . what would you like to do next?"

"I want to get a house!"

Carol Burnett was sitting in a CBS dressing room with her legs over the chair the day they taped the last Garry Moore show.

"A house?"

CAROL

CAROL: I never lived in a house in my whole life. Always apartments. With the Murphy beds coming out of the wall. And I'm going to take up golf this summer.

Q: But what would you like to do beyond this professionally?

CAROL: I may sound corny but I miss the tube! I was always so theater-conscious but I found the theater people are such snobs about us. Would I be on Broadway if it hadn't been for the Garry Moore show?

Q: Stage shows are harder for you?

CAROL: Yes. You have to be completely up all the time. You're like a race horse. So you know how long I'm signed to do this play? Twenty months. I'm not through till January 1965 . . . no! I mean, January 1966!

Q: Is it that you're ambitious?

CAROL: No, brainless!

Q: How will you squeeze in "The Entertainer" TV series?

CAROL: They will work it around me. They will tape it Friday at 6, it goes on the air at 8:30 when I'm at the theater. Saturday, I do a matinee and night show. You know what I'll be doing Sunday. Sleeping!

Q: When do you have time for your baby?

CAROL: I wake her up every night at 12 and play with her till 1, and she goes right back to sleep. Then the next morning, of course.

Q: You must be sentimental about stepping into Garry Moore's spot?

CAROL: Not into his spot. Just into the theater. Nobody can step into his spot. It is going to leave a big gap in TV. I think he will be back bigger than ever. Like Jackie Gleason.

Q: All this doesn't leave any time for movies?

CAROL: Movies? Never again, unless I find something I really like. I thought I was dreadful. You're sitting there all day long with your make-up going into your pores and the day's over and you haven't done anything. No, I think I like the tube and the live audience better. I can't take the other.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Robert Q. Lewis values his course in speed reading: "Now I can rush through the subtitles and have more time for the sexy-foreign films."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A fellow sighed that he has no luck at his office—he picks losers in the baseball pool and in the secretarial pool.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Anybody who asks for advice nowadays just hasn't been listening." — Jacob M. Braude.

EARL'S PEARLS: Taffy Tuttle's boss had to remove the bell from her typewriter—every time it rang she thought it was a signal for a coffee break.

Times have changed, declares Norm Crosby: "When my grandmother was a girl she didn't use mascara, or nail polish, or wear a wig. Not when she was a girl—she does it now!" . . . That's earl, brother.

Off-Broadway Has 'Look Back in Anger'

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

Was Noel Coward's "Scoundrel" the father of John Osborne's "angry, young man?"

This astonishing possibility, and so perilously close to Father's Day, was one of the interesting features of Off-Broadway's opening shot at John Osborne's "breakthrough" British drama, "Look Back in Anger."

As Jimmy Porter, the young man "without a cause," who beats people's brains out with words, young David Emmes, far handsomer than his leading ladies, plays the lead with a Noel Coward Mayfair flair. The torrent of abuse is clothed in white tie, top hat and tails rather than in the proletarian armor of the angry. The result is astonishing to me—and I saw the Broadway production with Jimmy Haigh — and I would guess that both Mr. Coward and Mr. Osborne would be equally startled.

* * * *

BUT ALTHOUGH our unpredictable Mr. Emmes does not give us our angry Jimmy Porter as we think he should be played, his ultra-sophisticated portrayal is in spots rewarding, except when he serves tea or becomes sentimental with a rather awkward grace.

In the other roles, Marilyn Ross makes a solid slice of wife, overlooking her silent screen theatrics; David Clements is relaxed and outstanding as Cliff who can no longer live on his own; Eva Rabor truly professional as the other woman and heiress to Jimmy's ironing-board; and Bruce Mack, looking more like a poached Indian potentate than that "plant left over from the Edwardian wilderness," holds his own.

The cast use simulated British accents. Emme's accent doesn't flag, but by the third act the rest of the cast had just about settled for the Yankee habit of speaking. It is safer that way.

Martin Benson continues to impress as a reliable director. He still lets his actors "build too fast" and is still too cautious about establishing his own clear style.

The production runs for three weekends, ending June 27, and your encouragement of these serious actors should be a must.

Censor Frowns On Her

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Carroll Baker offscreen is a nice girl from Greensburg, Pa. Onscreen she is Hollywood's most censorable actress.

Why?

Here's what one Beverly Hills neighbor says: "I can't believe she's a movie star. She is a home-loving, family-loving housewife."

A producer who lives in the same neighborhood: "She's the girl next door with sex appeal—the kind that makes you want to stay in the neighborhood until your wife forces you to move."

Director Jack Garfein, Carroll's husband: "She combines purity and beauty but with a look of corruption. Audiences get a vicarious thrill out of seeing something pure being corrupted."

A reporter who sat beside her by her backyard pool: (she was wearing a gold lame bikini at the time).

"Wow!"

THE 28-YEAR-OLD blonde's censor troubles started with her first major film "Baby Doll." She played a thumb-sucking nymphet pursued by a lecherous Karl Malden.

The picture was five years ahead of its time —or, more properly, five years ahead of "Lolita,"— and the censors smashed the picture like a wrecking crew on a slum clearance project.

Carroll, playing a role based on the late Jean Harlow, did a nude scene in "The Carpetbaggers."

About the time the publicity broke on that, the Roman Catholic bishops denounced "a shocking trend" on sex and nudity in Hollywood films.

Carroll's nude scene was snipped from the final version of the movie.

And seven years before, New York's Cardinal Spellman denounced "Baby Doll" from the pulpit of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Even Carroll's own mother has rebuked her.

"I can't understand how my daughter can be such a nice girl in real life—

CARROLL BAKER . . . Ice Cream for Weight and so naughty on the screen."

ACTUALLY, Mom, it's easy to figure.

Your daughter is too realistic as an actress. She's not the same girl you know at home with her two children and husband.

Carroll, a female Marlon Brando, is a method actress. If Carroll had not gone to the Actor's Studio, she probably would have been a star anyway. Anyone who wears a Bikini so well couldn't miss.

Girls who look like Carroll Baker don't have to work that hard to make it. But Carroll did anyway.

Result: When Carroll does a love scene, she uses the method.

When she emotes, she emotes. When she kisses, she kisses. And when she excites, she incites—and invites the censors.

TYPICAL of the Baker appeal was a recent happening in Africa where she made "Mr. Moses" with Robert Mitchum.

The picture was shot out in the boondocks where the natives hadn't even heard of Tarzan. As Carroll tells it:

"One night we were watching the men dance in a circle. I noticed that only the men danced, no women.

"But a photographer kept urging me to join in. So I did. The natives seemed to like it.

"Suddenly, I felt a pair of strong arms grab my waist. One of the natives hoisted me over his shoulder and started running like a gazelle through the bush.

"My husband and some of the crew started after him but they couldn't have caught him. I started yelling like mad. Then he stopped and put me down with a smile.

"I think he was kidding —I hope."

IN AFRICA, Carroll dropped 10 pounds from her normal 117.

Since returning home, she has been on an ice cream diet to put back the weight.

"I don't mind weighing 107," she says, smiling in her Bikini, "but I have to put on 10 pounds. It's all a matter of economics."

Product of a broken home, Carroll first hit Hollywood with a lot of insecurity.

"When all the 'Baby Doll,' hullabaloo broke, I just dyed my hair black and hid. I hadn't come out here to be a sex symbol but as an actress who had created the part.

"It took me a long time to outgrow 'Baby Doll.'"

EARLY in her Hollywood career — probably because of "Baby Doll"— Carroll had the reputation of a battler with directors.

She's mellowed somewhat but she still says:

"I will fight for what I think is right. The important thing is for an actor to give a good performance. It doesn't matter how he does it. If standing on his head helps, then he should stand on his head.

"But offscreen, I strive to be ladylike. I hope that is the real Carroll Baker."

Shopping Center Theater Proposed

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI)—The theater of the not-too-distant future may be next door to your supermarket and there won't be any ham actors on stage.

Richard Adler, composer of two all-time-great Broadway musicals who in recent years has been cultural impresario of the White House, has drawn the blueprint for such a project.

"Where is the ideal place for a theater?" Adler asked during a recent interview. "In the shopping center," he answered.

"The shopping center is the perfect place because there are no parking problems and the potential audience is already there."

Adler envisions theaters in shopping centers around the country, even in the smaller cities and towns, where top-flight musicals, dramas and variety shows with casts of famous personalities, can be staged.

"We could offer such attractions as Japan's Kabuki dancers and the Moiseyev ballet as well as dramatic and musical productions."

When asked how he could supply the needed shows once a nationwide network was set up, Adler said he would establish a talent agency such as the RKO-Keith-Orpheum circuit of olden days. Many shows would be lined up and moved from one city to another in cycles.

TISSUE STARTS FREEWAY FIRE

Joe L. Kemper's car blazes on Long Beach Freeway Saturday because of a piece of facial tissue. Kemper, of 2974 Liberty St., South Gate, was moving to Long Beach, but can't now because he lacks transportation. A teen-age neighbor boy helping him move lit a match, the match caught the tissue afire. Kemper, attempting to put it out, knocked the tissue to the floor but a gust blew it into the back seat, laden with household articles. The 1960 luxury auto was gutted.

4 HURT IN TRAFFIC

Cycle Passenger, Pedestrian Killed

A motorcycle passenger and a pedestrian were killed in Southland traffic accidents Saturday. Four persons were injured, one critically.

Beverel A. Wadkins, 30, of 5041 New York Ave., Cypress, was fatally injured at Compton Boulevard and Fleming Avenue in Bellflower. He was riding on a motorcycle driven by Dwight Henry Avery, 49, of 10543 Bellman Ave., Downey, when it was struck by an auto about 1 p.m., Lakewood sheriff's deputies said.

Avery, vice president of a Bellflower trailer manufacturing company, was treated at St. Helen's Hospital, Bellflower, then transferred to Studebaker Hospital, Norwalk. His skull was fractured and he suffered internal and head injuries.

Driver of the auto, David Wayne Oates, 19, of 14021 Arthur Ave., Paramount, and his passenger, Michael E. Meyers, 20, of 14713 Woodruff Place, Bellflower, were treated for cuts and bruises.

The pedestrian, Nancy I. Szarka, 30, of Hollywood, was killed crossing Pacific Coast Highway at Third Street in Huntington Beach after a grunion hunt early Saturday, and her roommate, Jill Lessing, 21, was injured critically.

Police said they were hit by a car driven by James Dewey Money, 17, of Bell, at 2:30 a.m.

Miss Lessing was in critical condition Saturday night in Hoag Memorial Hospital, Newport Beach.

HIGHER EDUCATION..... VIA A NEWSPAPER ROUTE

Why do educators frequently encourage youngsters to apply for a newspaper route? And why are more and more schools giving "credit" for newspaper route experience?

Because the attitude of a boy towards higher education frequently changes, when, as a Little Merchant newspaperboy, in business for himself, he begins to understand the value of book learning combined with practical experience.

He buys at wholesale—sells at retail—makes his own deliveries and collections—learns simple bookkeeping—and often develops into a surprisingly good salesman.

And the money he banks while a newspaperboy frequently makes it possible for him to attend the college of his choice.

If you think your son or some other youngster might profit from newspaperboy experience, have him come in and talk to us.

How many times has your intelligence been insulted with the above phoney, misleading advertising? We are a comparatively new dealer and WE NEED YOUR BUSINESS to survive in this insurmountable complex industry, but we do not condone the methods used by some of our competition and we hope you, as an intelligent buyer, will appreciate our honest efforts and give us a chance to prove that we can do the same as they—even better in most cases, but without the unscrupulous methods they may employ to attract you to their area.

JAZZ...
Deathbed Blues

By SID MOODY

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Jazz had a garbled, chop sueyish parentage with strains of blues, bands, booze and bordellos all playing a part.

It's having a second coming now in the city of its birth and this time there's no doubt about the mother, father and midwife. They're all in the person of a young business school graduate from Pennsylvania with a face his wife says looks like a kewpie doll.

His name is Allan Jaffe. He's 28 and white. His musicians are ancient and Negro. And thereby hangs a tale.

Jafee is operator of a ramshackle art gallery cum music hall called Preservation Hall, deep in the wicked French Quarter. It's a living museum and antique shop, about the only place in the world you can still hear what remains of the musicians who gave birth to jazz.

* * * *

THE TRUE original New Orleans jazz has had sporadic revivals and there are a number of records of the ancients around, that was one reason Jaffe and his wife, Sandra, came to New Orleans. They wanted to hear the music live. It was nearly dead except for the few efforts of the New Orleans Jazz Club.

In the summer of 1961, jazz authority Bill Russell, Dick Allen who had a Ford Foundation grant to study jazz, Jaffe and several others organized the New Orleans Society for the Preservation of Traditional Jazz and began putting on nightly performances from whichever musicians were available.

"The society dissolved in about two weeks—par for jazz societies," said Jaffe. But he decided to keep things going as well as he could. Jaffe, working in a department store, and his wife, working in market research, made up the loss from their salaries.

* * * *

"WHEN I went into the Hall, I said I was willing to lose $1,000. When I was $1,500 in the red, I guess that was the lowest point," Jaffe said.

He insisted, nonetheless, on paying union scale to the musicians "The point of the hall was that they would be paid. I didn't want them to work for nothing."

There's no admission as such but Sandra Jaffe sits and reminds any one who doesn't feed the kitty that it's there. If you're lucky, you can sit on benches or a couple of veteran kitchen chairs. Most folks stand.

Jaffe has a monumental disdain for commercialism. He's never advertised and his only sign is a battered trombone case with brass lettering hanging over the alleyway that leads to the hall.

* * * *

BUT word gets around, so much so that the Jaffes are able to live off the gate. What's more important to him is that the musicians now are able to live—and play.

Being den mother to musicians in their 60s, 70s and even 80s is not taught anywhere. You play it by ear. For one thing you have to find the musicians.

Clarinetist George Lewis, tromobonist Jim Robinson, ad others had been playing on the road off and on. But in the skinny as his clarinet and not much taller has had to work as a longshoreman to get by.

"Papa John" French, who plays bass and is 89, is a Jaffe discovery. "I'd read about him and finally found him." Luckily some one also found Papa John another time when, at the roaring finale of a jazz concert at a hotel, Papa John was knocked over backwards through the curtain and pinned under his bass. Someone eventually noticed his feet sticking out beneath the drapes and liberated the old man.

* * * *

TWO ENGLISHMEN were responsible for finding Chince Foster. They'd heard him on an old recording and wondered what had happened to him.

"They hung around Congo Square for two weeks. Finally some one decided they weren't bill collectors and pointed Chine'e out. He was was drunk," said Jaffee. "We sobered him up and gave him some sticks to see if he could still play. He could. He lived with us for a while, kind of preventive medicine, and I told him if he'd stay sober two weeks I'd get him a set of drums."

Chinee did and Jaffee kept his word.

Jaffee also resurrected pianist Billie Pierce and her blind trumpet-playing hsuband, De-De, who'd been playing for practically nothing at all-night joints. He paid their union dues, shelled out for repairs to the roof of their house and they're one of his star attractions. And are paying him back gradually.

Jaffe's bought a trombone for Louis Nelson who agreed to go on the wagon if Jaffee could guarnatee him a certain amount of work. Nelson, too, is paying Jaffee back.

* * * *

BEHIND EVERY musician there has to be a set of teeth. This can be a problem when aged musicians are involved. Jaffe solved it by reaching an agreement with an inexpensive dental clinic.

"The dentist is a jazz fan. I've bought ten or eleven sets of false teeth, I'd say."

* * * *

THERE'S a strong rapport between the people and the musicians. The people may be convention-going doctors and their mink-stoled wives who never heard authentic New Orleans jazz but drifted in from Pat O'Brien's bar next door still carrying the towering pink drinks he serves. Or it may be a ragged young artist who appreciates sincerity in art whether or not the skill may have become rusted. Or it may be a college student who's heard and loved all the records and is hearing the music live for the first time, his leg pumping fiercely to the rhythm, a half smile on his lips. It may be one of the musicians himself (Jaffe's is about the only truly integrated place in the Quarter) warmed at having a place where he can still hear the music of his youth and talk with interested strangers about the men who are gone. It may be Sandra Jaffe in the alleyway with her basket of bills hoping "the music never stops." Or her husband sitting in on sousaphone, his cheeks puffed out like a chipmunk. "You keep practisin', Jaffe, you keep practisin'," one of the band shouts to him.

Then the music stops and the people file out. They may or may not remember what they've heard. A man from Georgia once dropped $20 in the kitty on his way out in answer to his own question to the Jaffes: "I like what you're doing, what can I do to help?"

When you see them, musician and audience, from all over the nation, from all walks of life, of all ages, sharing this old honest music, you, too, hope it never stops. But it will. There's no next generation coming up for New Orleans jazz.

"The hall has an expectancy of five or ten years," said Jaffe. "Who knows? It depends on their longevity.

"But they are all going to play well to the day they die."

San Pedro: 'Explorers' Discover Riches Anew

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

San Pedro . . . future "San Francisco" of Southern California!

Visionary as this may seem, there are forward-looking persons in the hilly port community who see growth prospects which would give San Pedro a destiny comparable to the famous upstate Bay City.

Sprawled on the eastern slopes of Palos Verdes Peninsula, this community of 73,800 spans more than three centuries of harbor history. For it was in 1642 that Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, Portuguese adventurer sailing under the Spanish flag, discovered and claimed the area for Spain.

Now, according to R. K. Jordan, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, San Pedro is being "rediscovered."

ONE PRIMARY REQUISITE as Jordan sees it is to make local people "realize what they have here . . . in climate, picturesque location, living advantages, trade opportunities."

Although part of the City of Los Angeles, represented by the councilman from the 15th District, San Pedro has a city character of its own. Economically, it is linked basically with the Port of Los Angeles; but also with military establishments, Fort MacArthur and the Air Force Radar Installation.

Symbolic of the future is the majestic $21 million Vincent Thomas Bridge tying San Pedro to Terminal Island and Long Beach. This third largest suspension bridge in California has a 1,500-foot main span, with main towers rising 365 feet.

ARCHITECTURALLY, the span will fit well with the proposed California World's Fair at Long Beach. Indeed, San Pedrans are said to be strong backers of the fair, for they expect to share in its benefits.

The area's industrial activities and prospects focus around shipbuilding, fishing and canning, importing and exporting.

A master plan for harbor development in the next 10 years calls for doubling of the port's capacity.

The year-old $16 million Consolidated Marine Terminal is rated the finest of its kind for passenger and freight handling.

Also in the master plan is an 1,800-slip marina due to replace part of Cabrillo Beach within the harbor wall.

Access will be by extension of Harbor Boulevard through the lower section of Fort MacArthur.

LAND ACQUISITION will begin in July for a six-lane link between the Harbor Freeway and the Thomas Bridge, with completion expected by the time the World's Fair opens in '67.

Next year, San Pedro is due to become the mainland base for the steamer Catalina, which now puts out from Wilmington for Catalina Island.

P & O Orient Line ships also are to start berthing at San Pedro.

The harbor is home of one of the largest of fishing fleets; and tourists often are fascinated as they watch fishermen mending their nets, some as much as 1,800 feet long and 240 feet wide. Importance of the fishing industry is widely publicized by the colorful Fishermen's Fiesta for which San Pedro is noted.

CONSTRUCTION IS GAINING momentum, with shopping centers, mainly in the Western Avenue vicinity; housing developments; office and apartment high-rise projects; and the Ports o' Call Village complex.

An 11-story office building is under way on Fifth Street; a county building will rise along Center Street between Fifth and Sixth; facing up Sixth at the port's main channel will be the 10-story L. A. Harbor Commission administration building; nearby will be a nine-story boatel-hotel complete with convention facilities; and there's more to come.

Chamber President Al Atchison recently commented that what once was the community's front street, which became a back street as business moved up the hill from the Beacon Street district, is about to make a comeback and soon will be a "show place." Already recommended by the Chamber is that a $1¾ million legacy left for park development be used to improve the Harbor Boulevard entrance to the community.

NEW RESTAURANT and motel facilities also are a plus sign for the area. Two downtown parking lots have been opened recently on the district assessment and meter financing plan.

Major Navy housing is under way, with the first 245 units due to be ready for occupancy next month. These are in the northern section of San Pedro and lie east of Western Avenue.

In a month or so, the Navy plans to start construction of 400 more living units at the site of the former Cabrillo housing tract.

San Pedro has many "seascape" sites and a growing number of homes in the $100,000 class have the ocean almost in their front yards.

AS THE SAN PEDRO HILL rises from sea level to nearly 1,500 feet, so do conditions vary from the sailor haunts of Beacon Street to the plush homes above the fog belt.

Much remains to be done in the rediscovery of San Pedro, as Chamber Executive Jordan is first to admit; but, as he says, the "makings" are at hand.

The Southland is on the "go" signal; and wouldn't Juan Cabrillo be amazed if he could sail into San Pedro harbor today!

—Staff Photos by SKIP SHUMAN

Added tourist attraction in San Pedro harbor area is new Ports o' Call Village south of old ferry terminal. Restful scene above is only few feet from bustling harbor activity.

Hillside residents in San Pedro can look out at interesting sea vistas such as this. Many expensive homes occupy choice locations.

'BIG POUR' FOR CIRCULAR FOUNDATION

Zig-zagging conveyors help speed concrete fill for four-foot-thick foundation required for 34-story apartment structure under construction south of Ocean Boulevard between Villa Riviera and 600 E. Ocean building. Sixty trucks were used to pour 2,000 yards of concrete at rate of 350 yards per hour. Concrete tops 855 pilings driven nearly 50 feet into ground. More than 450 tons of steel reinforcement are being used. Round structure, to contain 204 apartment units, is being built by Henry Sassoon. Designer and supervising engineer is Giri Chhabra.

Terrific Force in Missile Reentry

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (UPI) — Scientists at Republic Aviation, which designed and built the Project Fire vehicle, recently launched here, figure that reentry at 25,000 mph speed produces enough heat which converted to energy could lift the Empire State Building 25 feet off the ground. Or, to put it another way, it's the amount of energy that would be produced by 1,000 five-ton trucks smashing into a steel wall at a hundred miles per hour.

SECOND IN POPULATION, BUT . . .

Area Leads U.S. in Retail Sales Volume

Long Beach and Los Angeles—cut back recently by the government to a one-county "metro" area by elevation of Orange County to a separate metropolitan status—still rank as second largest metropolitan market in the United States, with population of 6,658,900.

Los Angeles County led every county in the nation in total retail sales volume last year, even topping the five counties which make up New York City.

In two categories, automotive and gasoline service station sales, the local area takes first place over the New York area.

* * * *

THE ANNUAL Survey of Buying Power by Sales Management magazine shows the county moved into top position due to a 5 per cent gain over 1962, from $10,105,451,000 to $10,713,183,000.

More than half-billion dollars of the area's retail sales—$593,358,000—were made in stores within the city limits of Long Beach.

Of this volume, $113,580,000 represented food store sales; $110,014,000 general merchandise; $29,452,000 apparel; $37,078,000 furniture-household-appliance; $115,607,000 automotive; $40,635,000 gasoline service station; $22,946,000 lumber-building materials-hardware; and $24,526,000 drug store sales. The city's Sales Activity Index registered at 26% above average.

* * * *

THE MAGAZINE reports that 361,200 people were living in Long Beach as of last December 31.

Households numbered 130,800. Average household income, based on a total of $1,018,900,000, was $7,790.

The magazine's breakdown of households by income groups showed that out of every 100 households in the city, 20.6 had net earnings under $2,500 while 12.8 were in the $2,500-$3,999 group.

The largest bracket—incomes between $4,000 and $6,999—embraced 29.0 of every hundred households, while 15.5 had incomes between $7,000 and $9,999, and 22.1 earned $10,000 and up.

Los Angeles County's effective buying income rose to $18,712,283,000. This 7.0% gain compares with a national rise in buying power of 3.3%.

* * * *

TOTAL BUYING power figured out to a mathematical households average of $8,452—$1,322 above the U.S. average, but the magazine provides marketers and other planners with a more realistic measure of family buying power in its breakdown of households by income groups.

The latter reveals that 16.1 of every 100 households in the metropolitan area had net earnings under $2,500 while 12.0 had incomes between $2,500 and $3,999.

This is substantially brighter than the national income distribution picture which shows 22.3 of every hundred in the bottom bracket and 17.0 in the $2,500-$3,999 group—for a total of 39.3 out of 100 households earning less than $4,000.

* * * *

AT THE UPPER end of the income scale, 42.5 out of 100 had net income of $7,000 or more, with 26.1 earning $10,000 and up.

The comparable national figures are 30.4 and 17.8. Better than one out of six households, 394,991, had incomes between $10,000 and $15,000 and 182,396, or 8.2% of the total, had take-home earning of $15,000 or more.

Business Index Up

Southern California's business activity pushed to another record high during May as it continued to operate well above year-ago levels, Security First National Bank's research department has reported.

The local economy, as measured by the bank's business index, hit an all-time peak of 142.1 (preliminary) to surpass the previous mark of 140.4 set last February. In the similar period of last year the index reading was 132.8.

According to the bank, all business components of the index available for May participated in the strong advance, with the greatest gains recorded by bank clearings, real estate transfers and department store sales.

Construction activity in the 14-county area also rose slightly during the month. Building permits were valued at an estimated $350 million, assuring the industry of continuing at near-record levels.

April's latest data on employment show the labor force increased in the major Southland metropolitan centers.

Unemployment, estimated at nearly 238,000, remained practically unchanged from the preceding month.

One out of every five families in this country will change places of residence this year, experts estimate.

L.A. Harbor Nearing $226 Million Valuation

The Port of Los Angeles, one of the world's largest man-made harbors, will represent a total value approaching $225 million within the next five years, according to Bernard J. Caughlin, general manager of the port.

Addressing last week's meeting of the Maritime and Harbor Affairs Committee of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Coughlin said that nearly $42 million has been invested in harbor facilities and improvements over the past 10 years, while another $26 million will be spent in the next five-year period to expand still further harbor facilities for foreign trade.

* * * *

MOST PROMINENT among additions already made at the port is the $16 million Consolidated Marine Terminal, serving three major steamship lines. The facility, located on a 50-acre site on the harbor's main channel, accommodates five ships simultaneously.

Other facilities already in service include new transit sheds, refurbishing of others, several new wharves, dredging to improve navigation and ship maneuverability in various areas of the harbor, paving and land purchases.

Scheduled for completion in the next five years, Coughlin said, are an $8 million international shipping terminal, a $4,500,000 bulk-loading facility, a Catalina Terminal costing $600,000, an adminstration center for $3 million, a $1 million lumber terminal and a $6 million Cabrillo Beach Marina. In conjuction with the latter project, Watchorn Basin in the Port's Outer Harbor area will be filled, the private craft moved to the new marina, and the area used for location of still other deep-water shipping terminals.

* * * *

STILL OTHER WORK at Los Angeles Harbor will include the creation in 10 years of 650 acres for 75 new shipping berths on the south side of Terminal Island. This work, the general manager said, already has begun with the building of 90 acres of new land, using materials dredged from the Port's West Basin.

Coughlin predicted a bright and busy future for the harbor, citing the fact that the U. S. Customshouse and the Los Angeles World Trade Center, both scheduled for construction near the Vincent Thomas Bridge on the Terminal Island side of the harbor's main channel, will give additional impetus to harbor development.

L.B. Has Bright Future, Hutton Manager Says

Business future of the Long Beach area is "bright," Charles Barrington, resident manager of the E. F. Hutton & Co. Long Beach office at 219 E. Broadway, said recently in an exclusive interview with the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Prior to coming to this city, Barrington managed Hutton's Wilshire Boulevard office. He was promoted to the Long Beach post when William C. (Fergy) Ferguson retired the last of January after more than 30 years with the firm.

* * * *

"I LEARNED of new industries coming into Long Beach, coming in at the rate of one each six weeks," he said.

"With the Shoreline Development Program under way, four to five new high rise hotel and apartments to be constructed along the beach, and the changing and rebuilding of downtown Long Beach, it indicates growth and vitality to me.

"You know, it isn't a simple thing to give up lifelong connections and acquaintances and move into a new area," Barrington added.

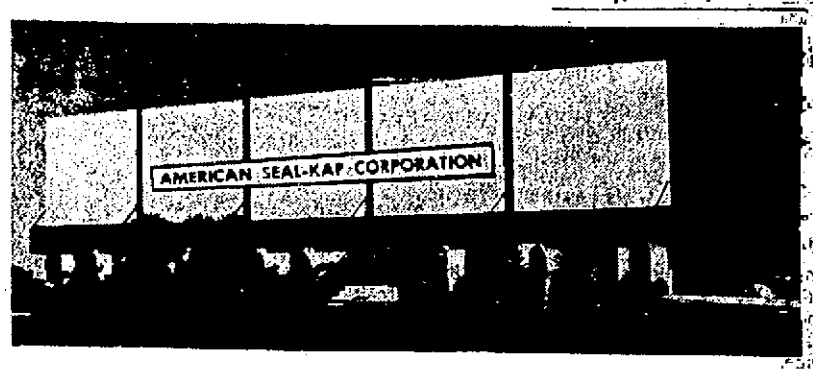

"It was wonderful to find so many Long Beach men and women interested in security investments and to find so many women more astute about the stock market than I had met before. This whole general area has 'growth' stamped all over it."

* * * *

BARRINGTON has been in the securities business for more than 36 years and started with Hutton in 1945 as a registered representative in the firm's Spring Street, Los Angeles, headquarters.

A native of Los Angeles, he attended Los Angeles High School. His hobbies include coin and stamp collecting and the study of the stock market "so that I'll be able to be of greater service to our customers."

Barrington leaned back in his easy chair and concluded, "Yes, one needs only to walk around this great city, take a short drive, to see that it has a tremendous future."

Father, Daughter Join in Art Show

A one man show—or more accurately—a one and a half man show is one of the featured attractions of "The Hillhaven," Ray Watt's 1964 Balanced Power model home, now on exhibit at the Los Angeles Home Show.

The one man is Long Beach advertising executive, Don Kracke. The half is supplied by his daughter, Lisa. Father and daughter have teamed up to supply the over 40 paintings and drawings which enhance the four-bedroom, three-bath Watt-built model home.

Don, 32, and Lisa, 5, created several or the paintings expressedly for "The Hillhaven."

* * * *

FOR KRACKE this is his second one man show in a year. The first was held in Long Beach where he is vice president in charge of creative services for Max Becker Advertising. During his five years at Becker, Kracke has won over 25 national advertising art awards. For Lisa, The Hillhaven exhibit represents her first professional showing.

Kracke is a graduate of UCLA's Department of Art. He has also studied at the Art Institute and the Academy of Fine Arts in Chicago. Lisa's formal training includes a half year in the kindergarten of the Crestwood School in San Pedro.

* * * *

THE ENTIRE presentation of the senior Kracke has been sold. Lisa, however, has indicated that perhaps she would part with one of her paintings —for a pony.

ONE-AND-HALF MAN SHOW

Long Beach advertising executive Don Kracke and his daughter, Lisa, have teamed up to present the one-and-a-half man art show now on exhibit throughout, "The Hillhaven," Ray Watt's 1964 Balanced Power model home at the Los Angeles Home Show.

"The Hillhaven," located just north of the Los Angeles Sports Arena, is open daily June 11th through 21st.

The Forum is conducted weekly in the Crown Cafeteria, First Street and Alamitos Avenue, beginning at 7:15 a.m. It is sponsored by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce. Dr. Robert Walker, local dentist, is program chairman.

Retirement Center Set for Opening

Grand opening for public viewing of the John Brown Towers, 14-story retirement center at 3737 Atlantic Ave., in the Bixby Knolls district, will be held Monday.

Clinton H. Fowler, vice president, John Brown Towers, Inc., which built the high rise structure, has announced that the adjacent Towers Restaurant also will open.

The Towers includes 169 luxury type apartments for retired persons or couples, and offers choice of six floor plans. They range from an efficiency unit to a two-bedroom, two-bath model.

* * * *

THE RESTAURANT will serve the public as well as apartment residents. The dining room will give special attention to dietetic requirements of its patrons. The restaurant is on one side of the apartment building and John Brown Convalescent Hospital is under construction on the other.

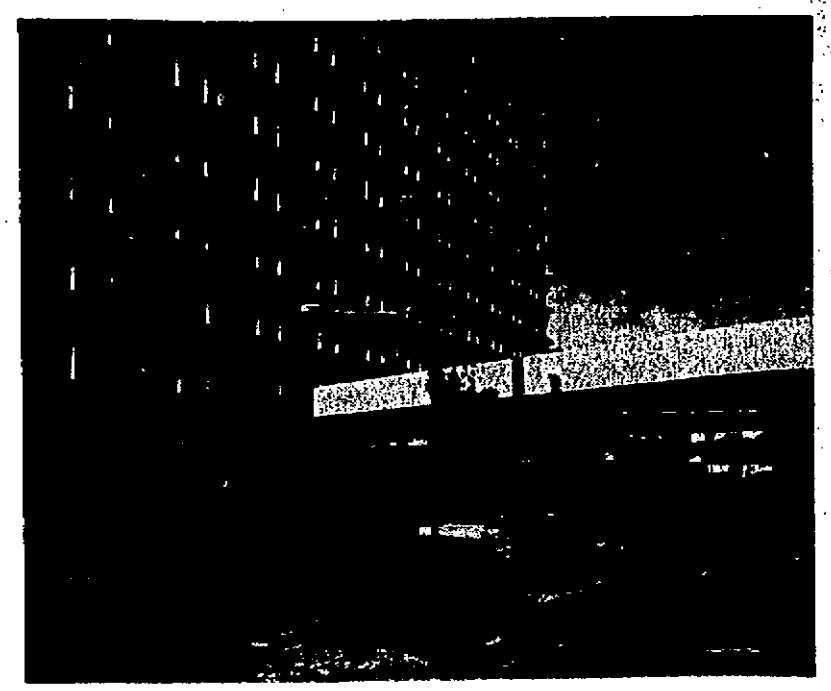

The three units of the center can provide complete service for residents. But, Fowler pointed out, the individual decides how much service he wants.

* * * *

THE APARTMENTS feature zone air-conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes, fully equipped electric kitchens and emergency call buttons to summon medical aid from the hospital.

Every apartment has a view. Apartments start on the second story.

The first residents will start moving in this month.

Insurance Changes in Prospect

Major changes in the insurance coverage for personal homes and cars highlight the agenda of the Board of Directors for the California Association of Insurance Agents scheduled for June 20-21.

CAIA president is Lyle Huggins of Long Beach.

The new plan for classifying auto drivers is of direct interest to every member of the motoring public since it is designed to reflect his risk-potential and past performance, and relate this to the premium each motorist should pay as his share toward meeting the steadily increasing cost of auto accidents.

Equally important are new forms for fire and casualty insurance on dwellings, together with procedural changes, recently announced by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau.

The meeting will be held at The Inn, Rancho Santa Fe.

Attending from Long Beach will be Art Ebright, president of the Independent Insurance Agents Association of Long Beach; Phil Hattery, vice president; John Lokey, secretary; W. G. (Bill) Wilson who is chairman of the public relations and advertising committee of the state association; and Huggins.

GENERAL MOTORS STILL AT TOP

Big Business Shows $10 Billion Rise

NEW YORK (UPI)—The number of American firms which had sales of a billion dollars or more remained practically unchanged in 1963 but sales by the members of the "Billion Dollar Sales Club" jumped nearly $10 billion in a buoyant business year.

The mythical financial fraternity took in only one new member and crossed off two members, leaving the roll call at 59 compared with 60 in 1962.

Total sales of the members rose to $156,159,016,000 in 1963 against $146,438,155,000 in 1962.

General Tire & Rubber Co. made its debut in 58th place among the ranks of the corporate giants, but Martin-Marietta, 43rd in 1962, and U.S. Rubber, 60th, were taken off the rolls.

* * * *

GENERAL Motors strengthened its position as president of the club with a boost of $2 billion in sales to $16,494,818,184 from $14,640,240,799 in the previous year.

Standard Oil (N.J.), American Telephone & Telegraph, Ford, and Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., all held onto their 1962 positions.

Sears Roebuck moved up to sixth place, while General Electric moved back a notch to seventh. Socony-Mobil and U.S. Steel continued in eighth and ninth places.

Chrysler moved up sharply from 17th place to 10th as its sales climbed to $3,505,275,000 from $2,377,593,000 in 1962.

* * * *

FIFTY-FOUR companies scored gains while only five—Swift & Co., Armour, General Dynamics, Continental Can and American Can—showed decreases.

Manufacturing companies continued to dominate the membership with 50 members while the non-manufacturing list remained unchanged at nine.

The oil industry again showed the biggest group representation with 10 members. The auto, food processing and chemical industries had four members each. Store chains had eight. The aerospace and aircraft industry had five in 1962. No other industry had more than three members, compared with six members in the club.

Framing of a second recreation building to coincide with the opening of the second unit of garden home at New Horizons-South Bay in Torrance was announced by Bob Norton, Sales Director.

This new recreation center, which is located next to a large swimming pool, will provide New Horizons residents with extensive facilities for the enjoyment of hobbies and crafts, Norton explained. FINE HOME NEAR BEACH

Fashion Shores' one and two-story, three, four and five-bedroom homes, built within walking distance of the beach in Huntington Beach, contain up to 2,157 square feet of liveable area priced from $23,900. Here is an interior view of one model.

Cool Pacific breezes have made Fashion Shores' one and two-story, three, four and five-bedroom homes more popular with the home buying public than ever, "Bud" Bennett, sales manager of the development that is now over 60 per cent sold out, stated.

"Our close proximity to the ocean—we're within walking distance of the State Park Beach in Huntington Beach—has been one of the chief reasons why Fashion Shores homes have been purchased so readily," Bennett continued.

"Our excellent location, however, has not been the sole reason for our success," he continued. "The Fashion Shores homes have had much to do with our 60 per cent figure. They're big homes, with up to 3,157 sq. ft. under roof and up to 2,150 sq. ft. of usable area.

* * * *

WE FEATURE continuous filament nylon carpeting in all bedrooms, halls, stairways and living rooms; sunken living rooms in our two-story homes; Hotpoint all-electric kitchens with built-in range, oven, dishwasher and disposer; large entry halls; rear and side yards completely fencd; and such "extra" features as built-in clothes hampers, bathroom scales and trash receptacles."

Turkey Travel Record Is Set

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado Game, Fish and Parks Department announced a new mileage record this year—for a turkey, that is. Teamwork Marked Success of International Home Fair Sale

Although designs of all homes in Sol Vista's International Home Fair in Westminster have appeal, the interiors are a big attraction to home buyers. Here is an interior view of one model.

"The excitement of selling and delivering attractive, outstanding value homes like those at the International Home Fair, is only the final act of a coordinated program of pre-planning by a team of skilled specialists," comments Baxter-Caterson, sales director for Alco-Pacific Construction Co., builders.

Alco-Pacific has built hundreds of their Sol Vista homes in Southern California, Caterson pointed out. "They will build hundreds more, and I'm sure their future residential developments will bring to the public even more high quality, unique and advanced features," he said.

* * * *

AT THE International Home Fair, at Bolsa Chica and Westminster Avenue, in the city of Westminster, homeseekers can still purchase one and two-story plans, sized to 2,136-sq. ft., from $25,350 to $29,600. But the development will be sold out very soon, Caterson stated.

Alco-Pacific utilized the planning talents of their architect, Robert Barnett, A.I.A., the Caloric Corp. of California, and the Southern Counties Gas Co., their advertising and public relations counsel. New and unusual kitchens was decided to be employed as one strong appeal to women.

Color consultant, Beatrice West, was flown to Westminster from New York, to study the architects plans. By this time the international theme had been developed, carried out by construction of models depicting the flavor of the continent, the Mediterranian, Scandinavia, the Orient and the Americas.

ALCO-PACIFIC then called upon their veteran building specialist and general superintendent, to build the quality of homes worthy of the reputation of the company.

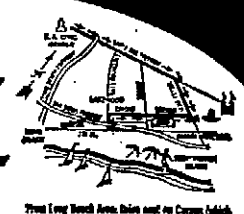

Now the 565th home will soon be sold to another satisfied Alco-Pacific homebuyer. Closeby will soon be the preplanned schools, playgrounds, churches and shopping center. When the last home is sold, the last group of specialists—the sales director and his staff—will begin selling a new group of homes to other discriminating families, who like the looks and the values of Alco-Pacific's Sol-Vista homes.

Trade Mission Planned by NAM

NAM President W. P. Gullander said last week that industrialists taking part in the mission will leave New York on Oct. 1 via Pan American World Airways and will visit London, Brussels, Duesseldorf, Milan, Rome and Paris.

Executives making the tour will meet at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York on Sept. 30 for a briefing session with representatives of the State Department and the Department of Commerce.

Some Leisure World Units Are Available

LEISURE WORLD DANCE

Residents of the Rossmoor Leisure World, Seal Beach, enjoy dancing at one of the clubhouses. Some units at the development are now available.

Many buyers who were disappointed that they waited too long before investigating Rossmoor Leisure World at Seal Beach, California, will now be pleased to learn that once again a limited number of share-ownership garden apartments have become available through resale at Ross W. Cortese's pilot "people-over-52" community.

Certain changing family relationships have made these units available with many extras. Some apartments have wall-to-wall carpeting, others have drapes, and many have both.

The public is invited to drive to the Seal Beach community to meet and observe Leisure World owners enjoying their heated swimming and therapeutic pools, the three giant clubhouses humming with sports and social activities, the golf course, the gardens and the $710,000 Medical Center—among many more attractions.

* * * *

ALL THESE may be had—including seashore climate—for as little as $101 a month up for a one-bedroom apartment, and $111 a month up for a two-bedroom apartment, subject to modification.

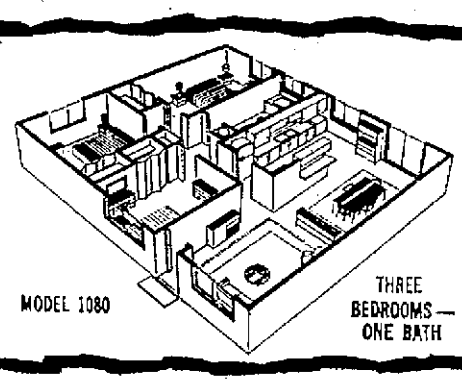

Down-payments range from $1200 to $1500, with a certain portion of it purchasing a share of stock in a Seal Beach Mutual Corp. entitling the buyer to occupy the apartment of his choice in purchase.

The monthly payment includes principal, interest, taxes, insurance—plus use of all recreational facilities at the three clubhouses, the golf course and most attractions at the 2500-seat amphitheater; an intra-community transportation system.

Home Buyers Find Prestige Offers Models They Desire

A PRESTIGE HOME

Prestige Homes in Huntington Beach offer buyers the "best location in the Southland," as well as one and two-story, three, four and five-bedroom homes, priced from $22,950. Here is a view in one model.

Judging by our continued success with the homebuying public, Prestige Homes in Huntington Beach continue to offer buyers exactly what they want, according to Dan Mytinger, sales manager for the Doyle & Shields Development Co., Inc., builder.

"The public has purchased almost 300 Prestige Homes," Mytinger noted, "and we feel that the number of homes bought indicates that we are presenting a product the home buyer wants from a construction and feature viewpoint, as well as from the cost factor.

"We offer, in Prestige Homes, three, four and five bedroom homes, one and two stories, for prices beginning at $22,950. The buyer has a choice of excellent conventional financing, Cal-Vet and low FHA terms, whichever best suits his individual needs," the sales executive continued.

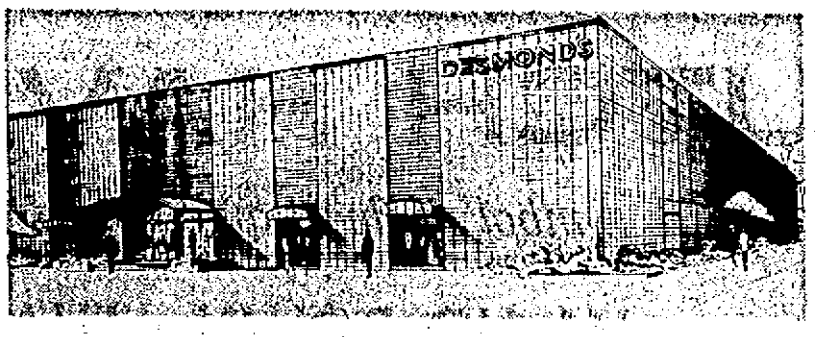

• • • •

"FEATURE-WISE, Prestige Homes has 24 elevations and six floor plans; Westinghouse all-electric kitchens; walk-in pantry in two story homes; built-in dressers in some models; a "boat door" in still another model; wardrobes to 14 feet long; massive floor-to-ceiling fireplaces; among many other features designed to give the homebuyer a lifetime of service."

Mytinger also pointed out that the location of Prestige Homes is excellent: a mile from the Douglas Space Center; minutes from beaches and harbors, golf course, shopping and schools.

Six model homes are open daily. From the Long Beach area, drive east on Seventh St. to Golden West St. Turn right to Edinger Ave., then right to Springdale St. and left on Springdale a short distance to the homes in Huntington Beach.

Much Early California Design in Desmond's Lakewood Store

NOV. 1 COMPLETION DATE

Contemporary California and early California designs will be combined in the decor of the interior of this new store for Desmond's in Lakewood Center. Completion of the store is scheduled for Nov. 1.

The newest of 14 stores in the Desmond specialty shop chain of Southern California, scheduled for completion Nov. 1, in the Lakewood Shopping Center, Lakewood, will combine contemporary California and early California in its design.

Burke, Kober & Nicolais, Los Angeles architectural and engineering firm, designed the exterior of the 17,000 square foot structure in a warm beige-toned natural shell brick.

Early California will be reflected in the shop's interior in decorative plaster grill work, large murals and brilliantly painted panels with designs symbolic of the state's pioneer days.

THE INTERIOR of the one-level and mezzanine store will create a continuity with a resultant open and informal atmosphere. Shell brick will be used, with off-white decorative accents.

Traditional design will prevail in the men's store with leakwood in a natural finish on the walls, accented by red lighting cornices and gold ornaments.

White-wiped ash will be used on the walls in the women's shop. Two nine-foot chandeliers of black ironwork with cathedral glass will provide dramatic accent.

Lighting fixtures with bronze metal shades will highlight the boys' store.

Recessed ceiling lights will be used throughout the acoustical plaster in white on the ceiling. The building will be completely air-conditioned.

The Hahn Co. is the general contractor.

Manages L.B. Office

Appointment of Robert R. Russell as branch manager of the Long Beach office has been announced by the Voicewriter Division of Thomas A. Edison Industries, West Orange, N. J. The company manufactures and retails a complete line of dictating systems.

Russell joined the Voicewriter organization in 1949 and was most recently an account executive in Los Angeles.

Big Royal Coachline Homes Sales Mount

Distinctive as a development of two-story homes, the King Edward Series of Royal Coachline Homes has justified it's exclusiveness by the extra-ordinary sales record established since the new subdivision opened in Anaheim. Mark Pitman, developer, credits the outstanding features of the dwellings as well as the variety of financing available as further incentives to quality-conscious homebuyers.

Offering 17 exterior designs and four spacious floor plans, the homes are two-story three and four-bedroom dwellings with large family rooms and two baths. Priced from $26,800 to $28,900, they can be purchased on terms of conventional financing, FHA and Cal-Vet.

Wall-to-wall carpeting of 100% nylon in the living rooms, dining rooms, bedrooms, halls and stairways, custom block wall enclosing the rear yard, and planted front and side yards are attractive money-saving features of the homes.

• • • •

KITCHENS ARE luxurious with built-in gas range and oven with triple rotisserie and exhaust fan over the range; dishwasher, disposal, and cabinetry in a choice of driftwood, provincial, walnut or birch. The homes are piped for gas refrigeration, gas dryer and gas log-lighter, it was noted.

Built on pool-size lots, the new series has oversize garages with abundant storage space, cedar shake and shingle roofs, bandsawn and ornamental iron trim, insulated and acoustical type ceilings, stone and brick exterior masonry and luminous ceilings.

Offered as optional equipment is air conditioning.

Area Firm Gets $6.1 Million Contract

FULLERTON—Meva Corp., of Fullerton will build a 114-mile high-voltage transmission line between Flagstaff and Phoenix, Ariz., under a $6.1 million contract from the Bureau of Reclamation.

Meva competed against six other firms.

Bureau spokesmen said the 345-kilovolt line will form the southern half of a line stretching from Glen Canyon to the Pinnacle Peak substation near Phoenix to meet additional power needs for the Phoenix area.

Wide Selection of Fine Homes in Fountain Valley

ELEGANCE IN HOME

Double-door entries spell elegance and space in typical Neptune Homes in Orange County's beach area. Priced from $26,900, the Neptune community offers one and two-story homes with up to five bedrooms. Terms as low as $495 down are available at the location off Brookhurst at Garfield just south of Garden Grove.

Fountain Valley offers Long Beach area home shoppers a wide selection in plans, locations, terms and prices, three of the city's leading builders agree.

Just four miles from Huntington Beach State Beach, very near Long Beach City and Orange Coast colleges, new parks, new shopping centers, carefully controled large lots, and the coming of the San Diego Freeway, has made the city Orange County's fastest growing. An increase of 331% has been tabulated over the past 12 months.

• • • •

POPULAR AMONG the new communities is the giant, carefully planned Westmont development where builders George M. Holstein and Sons are offering their big three and four-bedroom "Bonus Room" home for as low as $22,450. The home features the extra room over the garage and offers FHA, Veteran and conventional terms.

Popular luxury home development is the walled city of the "Old Farm." These two-story homes with a wide selection of tasteful design are priced from $27,500 with flexible terms available. The site on Slater south of Warner is on the citys' most famous "old farm."

• • • •

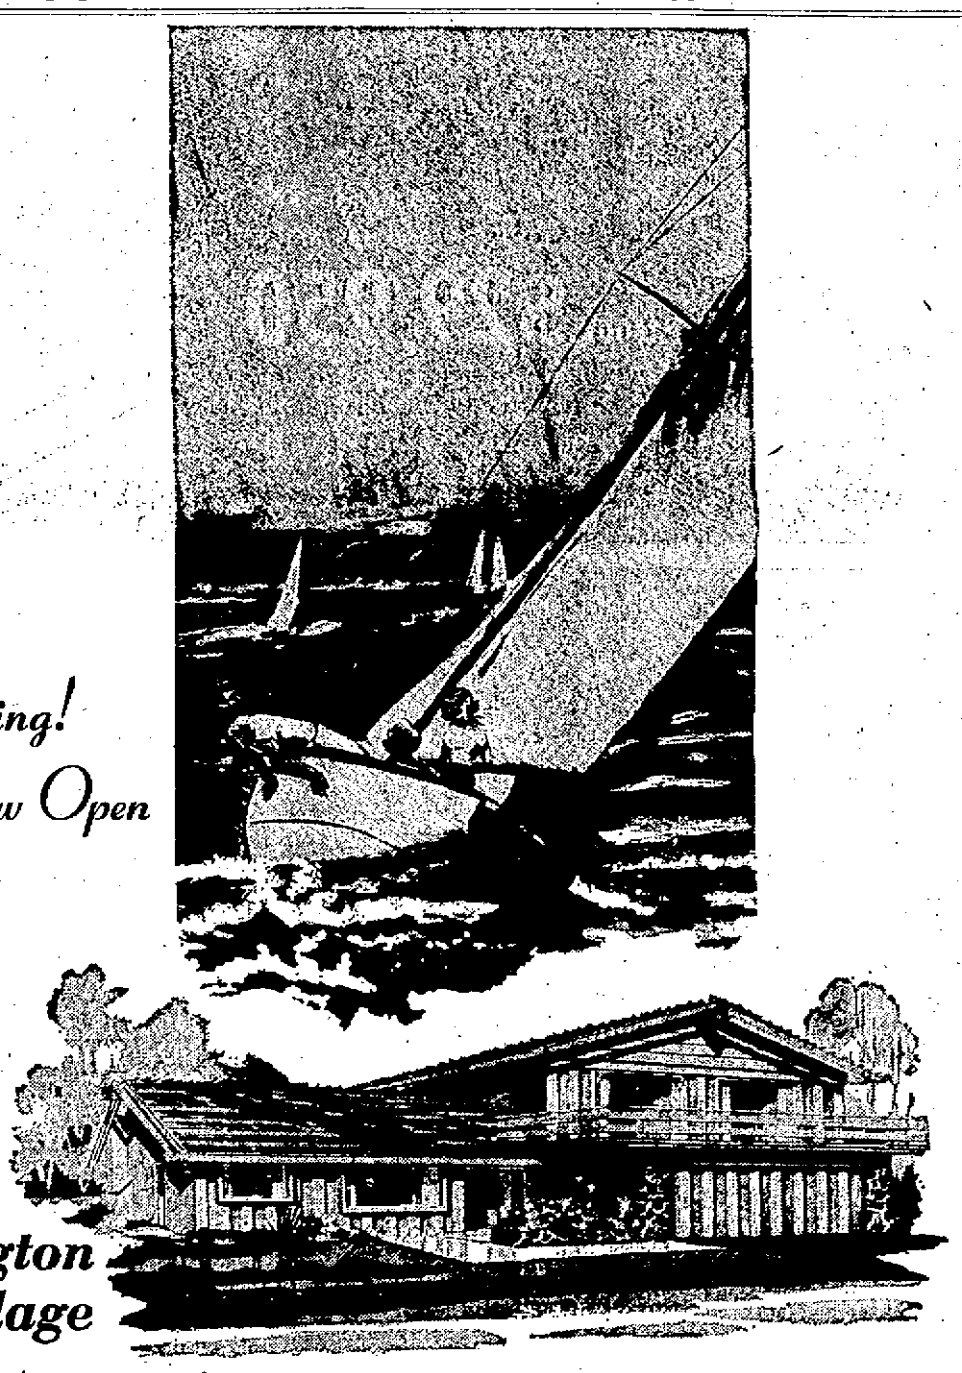

NEPTUNE HOMES on Brookhurst two miles south of Warner has also been meeting with top response. A new unit of the two-story four and five-bedroom homes are now available with terms as low as $495 down.

To reach Fountain Valley from Long Beach, take Garden Grove Freeway (Seventh Street) to Hwy. 39 and go south to Warner, then east (left) to Westmont, the Old Farm and Neptune homes.

Men 'Shadow' Pink Ladies-- Just for a Day

"It would certainly be interesting to see what you do all week!"

THIS HUSBANDLY comment inspired Long Beach Community Hospital Auxiliary members to arrange for their husbands to take over their volunteer jobs Saturday at the hospital.

The men will be given the opportunity to see for themselves how members of the auxiliary spent 44,257 volunteer hours this year.

Attired in pink and white striped shirts of the fabric used for the auxiliary pinafores, they will sort and deliver patients' mail, serve coffee to waiting room visitors, make the rounds of the hospital with a shopping cart and provide other services ordinarily given by the "Pink Ladies."

Brunch will be served at 10 a.m. in the hospital auditorium. A tour of the hospital will follow the working stint.

Welcoming members and their husbands at the brunch will be the auxiliary board of directors and their husbands.

THEY INCLUDE Mrs. George Moore, president, and Mr. Moore; Messrs. and Mmes. Hal Sleet, Edward Shaw, B. Wallace Neumaier, Cecil Baker, James Knowles, Arthur Doherty, Richard Widetick, F. B. Mosher, C. Duane Mooney, Earle Huff, Edmond Dahlhausen, Russell Plato and Carleton Peters.

Decorations and brunch arrangements are being made by Mrs. Edmond Dahlhausen, social chairman, and her committee.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, JUNE 14, 1964 SECTION W

Said the Young Lady: 'I Won't Stay Long'

By ELISE EMERY

Isabel Connor had taught art for less than two years at Horace Mann Elementary School when she was summoned by Long Beach Unified School District.

Would she teach half time, serve as supervisor of art half time?

"Don't waste time breaking me in as supervisor," answered the buoyant young teacher. "I won't be staying long."

That was in 1928.

On the last day of June, Miss Connor will retire after 37½ years with the school district.

Except for brief teaching assignments at Wilson and Jordan High Schools, she has worked in the art department as assistant supervisor, departmental assistant and, since 1953, as supervisor.

IN HER CHEERFUL OFFICE, decorated with paintings by students, Miss Connor talked of art and teaching and children.

"The teaching of art is based on experiences. That is, we are concerned about making students aware of everything about them—sounds—colors—growing things—tones of voice —rings around dripping water—muted patterns in driftwood —the reflected light on a soap bubble.

"How they paint or model is personal and is done in many ways. The variety of material a child uses influences his variety in techniques.

"It is the teacher's big job to find out what the child is ready for, then let him stumble over it—discover it for himself. That way, it is his own. It is not just superimposed. He has the urge to retell it in paint, poetry, any media he prefers.

"A child shouldn't be afraid to express himself. When he has finished there should be a moment when he says jubilantly, 'I didn't know I was so good!'

"Then he will feel that he can hardly wait until tomorrow to do something better, bigger."

THE PETITE, BLUE-EYED supervisor intended to become a cartoonist. She got her teaching credential "as a safeguard" after attending eight universities and art schools.

"Both my parents were teachers. My father died when I was six, but my brother and sister and I never knew we were struggling; we never felt poor. We moved in the best circles in our little town in Ohio."

After she received her degree from Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, the young teacher taught seven years, then took a year off to help her mother get settled in a new home in Long Beach.

"I didn't plan to stay. I was going to UCLA and having a wonderful time, then I began running out of money. Just about then there was an opening for an art teacher at Horace Mann School and I took it, temporarily."

She never could tear herself away from Long Beach.

"I'VE BEEN SO LUCKY! Each new job has been the most wonderful one I've ever had.

"I was lucky, too, in my art training. I had good teachers, who, long before the term 'progressive' was used, believed in

"THERE'S NO WAY OF TELLING what a picture should look like until it's done," says Isabel Connor. On June 30 she will retire as supervisor of art for Long Beach Unified School District. Art, she believes, is basically problem-solving, an exploration of color, form, composition. Through new experiences and discoveries, the child's growth as an individual is encouraged; he learns to express his own reactions.

People, Free as Birds, Are on the Wing

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

SLIMMING DOWN wardrobes to travel light—for plane fare and a fair flight—is a big feminine problem right now. Women, by the dozens, are headed in all directions for national conventions. Naturally, they want to take along all their best bibs and tuckers, and, naturally, the big question is what to eliminate.

The big luggage weigh in for winging out is on!

Making sure that no one sneaks in an extra skirt or blouse, the "weigh in" ceremony for members of Sigma Alpha will take place after final, final packing is complete, as indicated in picture above of, from left, Violet (Mrs. William) Davis, Ruth (Mrs. Lawrence) Long and Bonnie (Mrs. Keith) Williams.

With Dorothy (Mrs. M. D.) Murray and Thelma Moorman, they'll enplane Wednesday for Miami Beach. Headquarters will be the Bal Harbour.

Husbands and daughters Bill and Candy Davis and Larry and Bonnie Long will join Violet and Ruth in Florida. But the men say conclave hotel will be too full of women, so they've made reservations elsewhere—won't tell their wives where! Following the conclave the two families will travel on to the Bahamas and Nassau.

TALKED WITH Helen Newcomb for the first time since she and Doug returned from globe trotting and garnered a variety of other travel notes.

Newcombs first. They flew to New York, saw fair, shows then flew on to Europe to sightsee. Returned to NY for more fair and shows and thence home after a little over a month's absence. Plenty of time to be away, said Helen.

In New York they bumped into Marge and "Bud" Young at the Barclay Hotel; also, quite by accident, ran into Lillian and Bill Harlow in Madrid and, as if that wasn't enough proof that "it's a small world" they just happened into Hazel and Wilbur Hoagland and Betty and John Burley in Copenhagen.

Back to Marge and "Bud" (things do get complicated!) they had been in Maine to visit her sister and brother-in-law, Helen and Capt. Jack Young where Jack is CO of the naval air station in Brunswick. Then in New York for business and on down to Florida to rendezvous with Frances and Harry Buffum. The Youngs and Buffums then fished for tarpon in the Gulf of Mexico.

They fished daily from 4 a.m. to 8 a.m. and again from 5 to 9 p.m to avoid the heat and humidity of Florida's mid-day weather. Caught lots of fish.

As to the Hoaglands and Burleys, they were touring Europe by car and should be home by now.

WELL, THERE GOES a grand 25th wedding anniversary celebration—scuttled by a trip to the hospital. Virginia Dickie is in Memorial doing battle royal with some militant infection which will keep her grounded for awhile. She and Chuck had tickets and reservations all set for a flight to Hawaii for June 25. Medics say, "uh, uh."

FOR A VARIETY of medical reasons, ebullient Winnie Cross is living up to her name—she's cross at being slowed from a gallop to less than a trot.

All things have compensations, though. Winnie is receiving queenly treatment with her sister, Mrs. Mal Stanford, here from Dallas, Tex., to wait on her in addition to TLC from husband, J.D.

TIMING IT JUST right for the ice cube hour, dropped in last weekend at the Lake Arrowhead chalet of Donna and Bob Hofman, Verla and Dick Browning and Marilyn and Jim Crooker. Still in the process of total redecoration, it is, even now, plain gorgeous. The mile-high home is of the lake view variety with private dock for sunning and with speed boats tied alongside for lake cruising or skiing.

The three owners have dubbed the chalet the "Crookhofbrow" and are looking forward to some handsome living up there on weekends and vacations.

Present when we stopped in were Marilyn's mother, Pat Suratt, and Harvey Kuster, who was staying at the Jimmy Kuster's lakeview home just a little way down the mountain road.

Incidentally, no sooner had Verla and Dick returned from the mountains than they headed for Ojai to celebrate their 30th wedding anniversary.

OFF ON A dream trip, which has been planned for many years, are Maria and Chuck Stevens' daughter, Randall, and Georgia and Frende Combs' daughter, Carolyn. The two decided when they were in the ninth grade that in the summer of 1964 they would go to Europe together.

Both girls have just finished their first year of college—Carolyn at USC and Randall at State. They flew off, all smiles and high hopes, Saturday for New York and on to London. Next stop will be Germany where Carolyn will take delivery on a Volkswagen in which to tour. Both girls are well versed in art history and know exactly what they want to see the most of. In addition to art, they'll visit people.

The coeds have plans to visit Bill Hannaman, Army stationed near Frankfurt, Germany, and Diane Lingren, daughter of Dean and Mrs. Raymond Lingren. Diane is staying with a cousin on the French Riviera and will be there a year. She will accompany Randall and Carolyn for part of their journey, a journey, all told, which won't bring them back here until early September.

OF ALL THEIR worldly possessions Edward and Gloria Hatton brought back with them this week from New York, none was more precious than the fresh-as-paint medical degree Dr. Ed received from New York Medical College June 2.

They're visiting with his parents, Mildred and Ross Hatton at their home, 3102 Kalin Ave., for a couple of weeks. Then Ed will begin his year's internship at White Memorial in Los Angeles.

IT WAS A GREAT weekend—almost—for Gertie and Lee Boswell, Betty and Gordon Wilkinson and Naomi and "Benny" Bendinger. They drove to Las Vegas in the Boswell's new Cadillac and stayed at the Sahara. They saw the shows, had fun and then Sunday, checked out of hotel for return. Before leaving town, they stopped at just one more spot and while there, wham!, along came that tornado with its 100-mile per winds.

They were warned (and it was pretty obvious) that highway travel would be impossible. So they drove, literally groping their way, back to the hotel where they checked in again. At 7 p.m. the winds ceased, abruptly, and they were able to make the trip home, wearily, but safely.

THAT WAS a whirlin' Waikiki whingding that Bachelor Club members hosted last weekend at the Belmont Shore home of Carl Harvey when they entertained dates at their annual Mai Tai party.

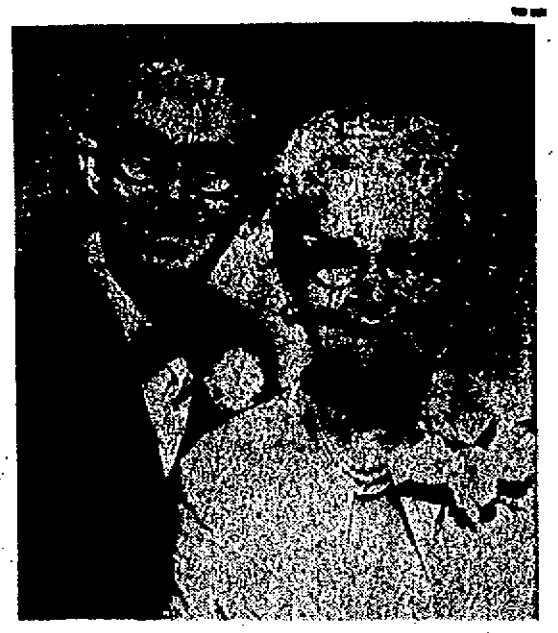

To make it cozy for guests (and easy on the bartenders) the fellows filled six large bowls with the juice of Hawaii's favorite beverage. These were placed on the floor in both living room and patio with ample supplies of long straws nearby. Illustrating the friendly manner in which they quenched their thirst, below, from left, are Linda Blanks, Ed Bossing, club president, and Maria Conti. About 50 went through this ritual.

In between time they ate a hearty catered dinner and danced, Tahitian style. Judged best at the island rock and roll were brothers Don and Jack Crawford and respective dates, Diane Ritzer and Shirley Schaupp.

A smattering of hosts and dates present, all wearing comfortable, colorful attire of the islands, were Ed Kearns and Molly Furjanick, Bob Alber and Barbara Rowden, Bob Hutcheson and Ann Peterson and Chuck Trumpowski and date Marie in picture.

It was a Mai Tai fine party Bachelors hosted.

Culprit Is in Hiding

We haven't had a "find the criminal" problem for a long time, so all you bridge detectives can get to work on this one.

East signaled with the eight of hearts on his partner's jack lead.

South won in his own hand and led three rounds of trumps. East discarded the five of diamonds and the three of hearts and West was back in the lead.

South won in dummy, led a spade to his king and ran off his last three trumps. West had no discarding problem and South got rid of all dummy's diamonds.

Poor East was caught in a vise. He couldn't hang on to both his ace of diamonds and his spade protection. He actually let a spade go,

Who was the criminal? Did South steal the contract by ducking that second heart in order to set up the squeeze on East? Should West have shifted to a diamond after the ten of hearts held? Did East do something wrong?

* * * *

SOUTH IS exonerated quickly. He didn't steal the contract. It was given to him! East was the real criminal. He should not have signaled so strongly in hearts because he was really ready for a shift to diamonds.

However, West was an accessory after the fact. When his ten of hearts held, he should have shifted to a diamond anyway since he had nothing to gain by that lead of the third heart.

Make Allowances for His Good Judgment

Dear Molly

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

How much do you think a husband should have for spending money? This money is used for beer and cigafettes—not clothes, shaving cream, toothpaste or taking me out (that he never does).

I allow about a dollar a day in our budget plus a little extra money he makes on side jobs. I feel that this is enough to throw to the wind but would like to know what other husbands spend; if I'm wrong, I'll increase his allowance.—BEAT.

DEAR BEAT:

Your letter, I hope, will bring a lot of answers. It's somewhat of a switch—usually it's the wife who complains of too small an allowance.

I'm inclined to feel that a dollar a day is too little though I realize that some circumstances wouldn't even allow that much. Since he buys beer and cigarettes out of that dollar, he isn't going to drink or smoke too much.

Unless it is necessary, I can't go along with limiting hubby to a dollar a day. In fact, I am not in favor of either husband or wife being "limited" by the other. Both should have enough judgment to know how much to spend without straining the family budget. This is a problem that is different with each family and they alone can solve it.

Perhaps some of our readers have good solutions.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am a school-crossing guard, one of many older women in our city who love to work with children.

Strange as it may seem, our biggest problem is mothers driving children to the school; they are always in a rush and cut corners, endangering the lives of children crossing the streets. Children get excited and often do the unexpected, and these "good" women drivers aren't taking that into consideration. This also applies to the group of girl drivers (16 to 26), likewise considered safe drivers.

Sometimes men and boys are offenders, but female drivers outnumber them.

If I were a judge, instead of giving fines as punishment, I would make the offenders stand at the corner and watch traffic for eight hours. It might scare them into slowing down.

I am sure both cars and children are here to stay, so couldn't we all give a few seconds extra now and then to keep them safe? — A CROSS GUARD.

NOTE TO CONFUSED: If you have the tiniest doubt, don't get married. Really, though you didn't tell me your age, I think you are much too young. Aren't you about 15?—M.M.

Mrs. McDonald Heads Conference

Mrs. John O. McDonald, manager of Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, will be chairman of the annual Community Managers Conference to be held Wednesday through Saturday in Detroit. The conference will be part of the National Convention of the American Symphony Orchestra League.

Mrs. Robert Westmyer, president of Long Beach Symphony Guild, also will attend the convention.

Theme of the four-day meeting will be "Standards in the Arts." More than 40 sessions and workshops will consider means to achieve highest quality of performance, service to the community and sound management.

Mrs. John O. McDonald

* * * *

THE CONVENTION is attended by representatives of symphony orchestras, community arts councils and other organizations and educational institutions concerned with the arts.

Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina will be the principal speaker at the Gold Baton Award Banquet which will climax the convention.

* * * *

IN 1963, the North Carolina legislature authorized the North Carolina School of Performing Arts. The school will be located in Winston-Salem, where citizens raised $1 million for its support. It is thought to be the first ever established by a state to provide training in the performing arts, music, dance and drama.

The American Symphony Orchestra League, now in its 22nd year, was formed by symphonies in the United States and Canada as their service organization and is the only one devoted exclusively to symphonies, related groups and arts councils.

It was granted a federal charter by Congress in 1962; it is the only unilateral music organization in the nation to be so honored.

Tobey Collection Is 'Small, Precious Jewel'

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Mark Tobey: Seattle Market Place Gouaches" is running concurrently with the Long Beach Art Association's 40th Annual Juried Exhibition at the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The shows will hang through June 28.

This collection from Tobey's works during the period of 1941-43 is like a small, precious jewel. In addition to the many small wet-and-dry notations of persons and events in the public food market, there are four larger works in which Tobey integrated the smaller works.

* * * *

TOBEY, the man, is a fascinating study. In his 74 years he has been a physical and spiritual migrant—from one coast of this country to the other, to Europe, to the Near East and to the Orient. Always operative are a keen mind, observant eye, and a deep mystic dedication to the world and its phenomenon, humanity.

Tobey became converted to Baha'i early in the 1920s, and this view of unity, humanity, and progressive revelation underlies his work.

* * * *

THE DRAWINGS in this exhibit are done on sheets from humble Chinese notebooks, about 8½ inches by 5½ inches. An article about Tobey and a poetic statement by the artist are posted at the head of the stairs at the museum. These serve to illuminate the exhibit for the viewer.

This show is an opportunity to look through Tobey's eyes and heart at mankind engaged in one of its basic industries, the marketing of food. What this signified for Tobey is, perhaps, most clearly indicated in "Market 1945," in which persons and objects are massed behind figures in the foreground, who are seated in a manner which recalls, "The Last Supper."

SUNDAY FIREWORKS

'Sunday in New York'

"Sunday in New York," comedy of war between the sexes, opens at Magnolia Theater, 2400 Magnolia Ave., Thursday for a four-week run. It will play Thursdays and Sundays at 8 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m.

The bright, quick-paced story concerns a young girl wrestling with modern morality and beginning to doubt the value of her strict, supposedly old-fashioned upbringing.

She believes that by adhering to this code she has lost her fiance and goes to New York City to stay with her brother, an airlines pilot.

* * * *

GAIL TWEED portrays the girl, Eileen Taylor; Chuck Slater plays Mike, her resourceful boy friend; Tom Dorr is her wealthy fiance; and Tom Golden is her skeptical and protective big brother. Richard Doyle and True Heitz are supporting characters.

'Extras' Set for Bowl Performance

Seven Friday night "extras" have been scheduled for the Hollywood Bowl this summer.

They will be presented in addition to the "Symphonies Under the Stars" and Saturday "Pops" programs.

The summer season in the outdoor amphitheater opens July 7. The "extras," including varied programs of ballet, folk music and jazz, will open July 10 with "Salute to Richard Rodgers."

Folk music starring Theodore Bikel and Bud and Travis, Odetta, Clancy Brothers and Tommy Maken is slated for July 17, to be followed July 24 by Connie Francis, popular singer, and pianist Peter Nero.

* * * *

THE TOMMY DORSEY Band with Frank Sinatra Jr., the Pied Pipers, Helen Forrest and others will be in the Bowl July 31. Also included in the Friday programs will be a ballet, to be announced later in the season.

"Sing Along with Mitch," headed by Mitch Miller, will come to the Bowl Aug. 21 in the first of two appearances. Closing event in the Friday series will be an All-Star Jazz program Sept. 4.

The 1964 season will consist of 31 evening performances. Fausto Cleva will conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in the opening night program with Anna Moffo, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera as soloist.

On Stage---

Classical Music Is Part of Hawaii

By RACHEL MORTON
I. P-T Music Critic

HONOLULU—At the top of Tantalus Drive in Honolulu, just a step down from heaven, is the lovely home of the conductor of the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra, George Barati, and his charming wife, Ruth.

Barati greeted us on the spacious lawn overlooking the whole world, it seemed. From the house, Pearl Harbor and Punch Bowl Cemetery stretched far to the west, and Diamond Head reared its handsome head at the other extreme end of the vista.

* * * *

BARATI, a handsome man of about 50, was born in Hungary only 70 miles from Vienna, aand is now an American citizen. He has three degrees in music from the conservatory of Budapest. He became first cellist with the Budapest Symphony Orchestra and also was with the Municipal Opera there.

He was invited to start a string department at Princeton University in New Jersey and while at Princeton he studied composition with Roger Sessions, whose new opera made such a stir in Berlin recently.

Barati's compositions have been recorded under his own conducting and under Eugene Ormandy. I heard one of the recordings and was very impressed. He records for five different companies.

"What happened after Princeton?" I asked.

"I enlisted in the United States Army," he replied.

* * * *

HE WAS discharged from the service in San Francisco and fell in love with California. He also fell in love with a Californian, his wife, who comes from Berkeley.

For four years he played cello with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra under Pierre Monteux. While in San Francisco he organized and conducted his own chamber orchestra.

Fourteen years ago, he was invited to become the conductor of the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra. At that time, only about six concerts a year were given. Last year, 80 concerts were played and next season will include 100.

* * * *

"WE TAKE the orchestra to all the islands," said Barati, "and classical music is now an important part of the life of Hawaii."

A festival of opera also is given each year under Barati's direction. The last two seasons, four operas were given with three performances each of "Rigoletto," "Cosi Fan Tutte," "Die Fledermaus," all in English, and "Carmen", in French. Barati likes to conduct opera and has had successful performances in Washington and New York.

* * * *

HE IS IN great demand as an orchestral conductor and has just returned from a European tour.

He has contracts to conduct next year in Geneva, Milan, Monte Carlo and Nuremberg. He will be remembered in Southern California for his fine success when he conducted the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra last summer in Hollywood Bowl.

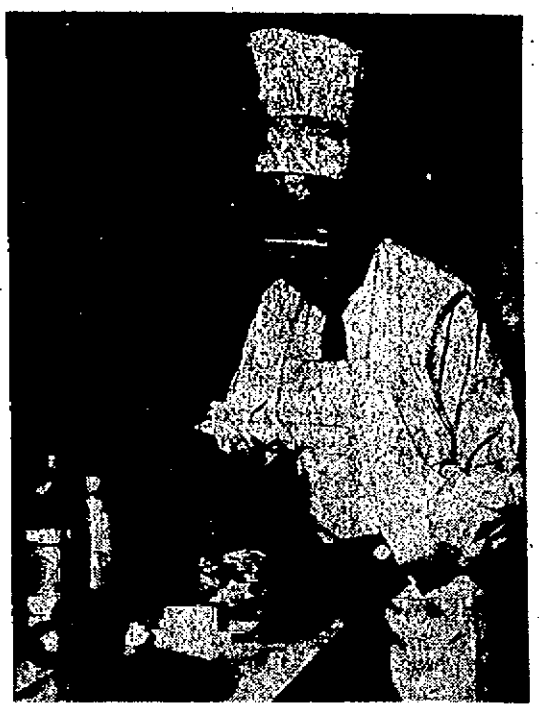

Each year he auditions singers and orchestral players for his coming season in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

* * * *

SUCH AN indefatigable worker deserves success and from the recordings he played for me and for which he conducted, I would say that he is not only a great conductor but is also a musician of impeccable taste in selecting great artists.

He conducted for the only recordings ever made of "Mass No. 1" and "Mass No. 4" by Schubert, "St. Luke's Passion" by Bach and Haydn's last work, the "Harmony Mass."

Two young daughters, Donna and Lorna, were as charming and hospitable as their parents, and with their dog, Frisky, who stood at attention the while, they bade us adieu and left in our hands exotic and extremely rare medinella magnificat blossoms, typical of the beauty and cordiality that are characteristic of Hawaii.

William E. Farell

'Good to Experiment --to Try New Ways'

individual growth and ability. I never had patterns forced on me. I never had to throw out old, set ideas."

Art, Miss Connor believes, can make a student "larger," more independent in his ability to think creatively and solve his own problems.

"Art is problem solving from the moment you put pencil to paper. There's no way of telling what a picture should look like until it's done. It's an experience with color, form, composition. Artists seem to find a rule and say, 'I can break it!' And they can. It's not like breaking a traffic rule—it's only a piece of paper.

"It's good to experiment, to try new ways. The more things you are afraid of, the smaller you are. New ideas may take away the comfort of knowing the only one, right way to do a thing, but there has never been a time when people had to make so many decisions. We're getting ready, but we don't know what for. One of the greatest contributions the study of art can make to a child is to help him grow as an individual.

MISS CONNOR remembers a vital lesson she learned about teaching when she was in the eighth grade.

The family was moving and a high school teacher said to her, "I'm sorry you are leaving, Isabel. I was looking forward to having you in my class."

"That made me feel like an individual, important. When we moved back a year later, the teacher greeted me warmly. I felt that she had waited for me. That's something automation can't replace."

How does she feel about retirement?

"I had 65 years warning, but it came as a shock. At first I felt just as I had as a graduating high school senior—how could I leave all that responsibility to those poor little juniors?

"But then the parties and the surprises began and I've had a ball. If they told me tomorrow I could stay another year, I wouldn't want to. There are too many things I want to do."

AT THE TOP of her list is her first love, cartooning.

"Things always seem awfully funny to me, but with a little pathos underneath."

Travel doesn't beckon to her. "I feel so very lucky when I think of all the people who would love to live in Long Beach—and here I am!"

The slender, youthful-looking supervisor summed up her job: "I've helped guide teachers over some of the rough spots. All the years have been exciting and fun—I've never been bored. But there's this advice for young teachers: Don't go into teaching unless you like people!"

Dancers to Perform

Judy Lewis School of Dance will present its first recital at 8 p.m., Monday in Municipal Auditorium.

The recital is sponsored by Long Beach Recreation Department as part of its Youth Talent Showcase. Preceding the stage show, Carl H. Robertson (accompanied by Regenia Beam) will lead community singing at 7:30 p.m. Following, the Tyo Orchestra will play for old time and square dancing with Joe Marshall as caller.

* * * *

FEATURED will be Marilyn Kinchloe, tap dancer, in "Puttin' on the Ritz" and Judy Lewis Dancers in "St. James Infirmary" and a salute to "Les Girls."

Other performers will be Donna Duffey, baton twirler; Chris and Steve DeLance, instrumentalists, and Marsha Dinger, vocalist.

WCC Institutes Summer Parties

Woman's City Club now has begun its summer series of Friday card parties. Next Friday Mrs. J. E. Davis will chairman the party with Group 2 members serving as hostesses.

The snack bar will be open for those wishing refreshments. June 26 Group 11, with Mrs. Robert Cheivis as chairman, will be in charge and July 3 Group 15 will serve under direction of Mary Bowman.

'Seven Year Itch'

Herb Armstrong's Theatre By the Sea, 1530 Ocean Front Walk, Venice, will star MacDonald Carey and Donna Michelle in the comedy "Seven Year Itch," which opens at 8:30 p.m.

He Keeps Them Rolling

By MILDRED K. PLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

Had he ridden all the buses whose destinies he's guided, he'd no doubt have circled the earth. He's been guiding them since 1936. Today's Chef of the Week William E. Farell is manager of the Long Beach Public Transportation Company.

Farell was born in Texas. "In no particular town," says he, "sorta in the bush country, 75 miles east of Dallas." After graduating from Texas State College at Commerce, Tex., he served as principal-teacher in a small country school for three years.

Moving things on wheels, however, had always interested him—and he also liked working with people, so he joined the Dallas Railway Co. His first job was driving spikes. He came up through the ranks, learning everything from mechanics to driving.

* * * *

THEN THE WEST beckoned, and, in 1937, he came to Los Angeles to affiliate with the old Los Angeles Motor Coach Co., studying for a management position.

That position came with the Manning Transportation Company, and Farell was sent to Eureka, Calif., to "transpose" their street cars into busses. That same procedure was repeated in the cities of Inglewood and Stockton.

World II became a reality about this time, and he joined the Navy. Strange as it may seem, too, he wasn't assigned to "kitchen duty" . . . he was put in charge of transportation at Mare Island, for two years.

Out of the Navy, he returned to Texas, managing the El Paso Transportation Company, which covered territory down through Juarez, Mexico. He remained there until 1951, when the urge to go into business for himself won out and he took the bus to New Mexico. He owned and operated transportation systems in both Santa Fe and Roswell.

* * * *

TWO AND one-half years later, he sold out, and returned to California as manager of the Santa Monica Municipal Bus Lines. There he remained for 10 years, during which time he restored the practically defunct company into a going business, boasting a 2½ million dollar "return" to the city's coffers, and 100 new buses as well.

That achievement sounded mighty good to a sister city to the west, Long Beach, and in September, 1963, Long Beach sounded equally good to Farell. The city bought the old Long Beach Motor Bus Co., re-naming it The Long Beach Public Transportation Co., and Farell became its manager.

Since that time, 35 buses of the 1950 vintage have been replaced with new deluxe blue models, and the drivers "uniformed" to match.

* * * *

THUS FAR his 'joining' ventures have been confined to the Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Long Beach Associates.

Mrs. Farell (Judy), shares his hobby, boating — and they have their own power cruiser. They have three sons, Bill and Chris, who are "doing" their Navy hitch, and Jim, who will be a college freshman come fall.

Our "Chef" enjoys cooking, but is considered rather messy, so not too heartily encouraged at home.

He's real great on barbecues, and they're all rather king-sized. There's so much smoke, you see, the neighbors sometimes deem it wise to investigate before calling the fire department.

Today, however, he's lost a little compression — he's "doing" Pheasant Under Glass with Wild Rice.

PHEASANT UNDER GLASS

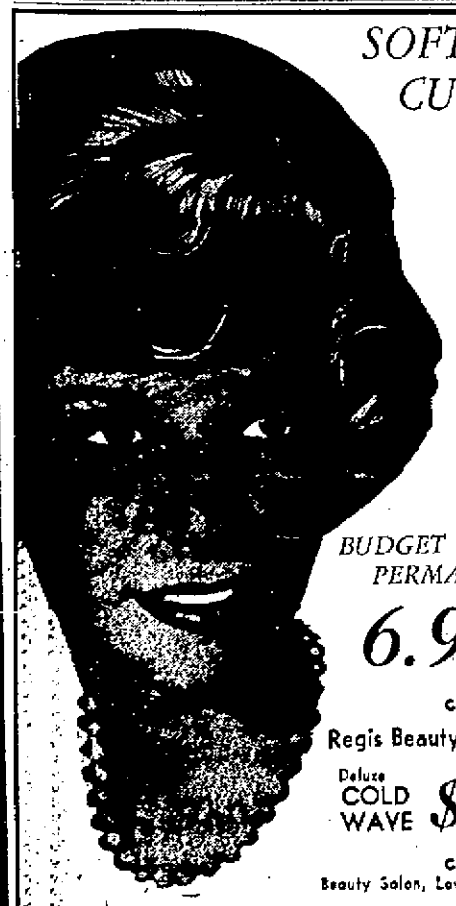

Clean pheasant. Place three shallots, (minced), apples, and the pheasant liver into cavity. Lace opening tightly and saute in 6 tablespoons of hot butter in deep skillet for 15 minutes, or until brown on all sides. Pour over it, 2 ounces of warm few thin slices of tart apbrandy and ignite. Transfer the bird to a earthen casserole to keep hot.

To skillet in which pheasant was browned, add ½ cup chicken stock, and 1 cup dry white wine. Stir in brown bits, simmer for 2 minutes and pour sauce over the pheasant. Cover casserole tightly and put it in a hot oven (400 degrees) to bake for 30 to 40 minutes.

Just before serving, add 1 cup hot heavy cream to the juices in the casserole. Correct the seasoning, arrange the pheasant on a hot serving platter, pour the sauce over the pheasant. Serve under glass, garnishing the platter with watercress and serve with wild rice.

ANJANETTE COMER . . . Confidence Personified

Anjanette Has Success Secret:

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

START AT TOP

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Forget that Horatio Alger jazz and start at the top.

That's been the policy of a sweet-faced Texas beauty who is starring in her first appearances in movies and who never appeared on television in anything but guest-star roles.

Her name is Anjanette Comer. It's not a phony. A native of Dawson, Texas, Anjanette was given the name 22 years ago by her mother.

She was also given a large dose of self-confidence. Listen:

"My goal was to start at the top and that's what I'm doing. Nobody knows who I am yet, and I'm not making the kind of money I want. But that will come. You must be prepared for success, and I'm prepared for it."

The fair-skinned brunette has green eyes and a will of steel. Anjanette knows where she's going and odds are prohibitively in her favor that she will get there.

AFTER GUEST-STARRING in a half-dozen video shows—"Dr. Kildare," "Gunsmoke," "Ben Casey," "Bonanza," "Combat" and "Arrest and Trial"—Anjanette decided she was ready for movies. She's starring at MGM in "Quick, Before It Melts" and next stars in "The Loved Ones."

With only two years experience at the Pasadena Playhouse as background, Anjanette refused to consider bit parts or supporting roles. No long struggle up the ladder for this Texas filly.

"It's much more difficult to become a star if you start out in small roles," she said in the Metro commissary.

"Most actresses just starting out have to take whatever is offered them. If you have talent, it doesn't show. A lot depends on what you think of yourself. I project confidence and I have confidence in my ability."

ANJANETTE IS EQUALLY positive that she will never pose for cheesecake in frilly lingerie or bikinis. Her Baptist parents back in Dawson would have a fit.

She's also refused term contracts. Anjanette doesn't want to give up her freedom for studio edicts for the economic security of a long-term agreement.

"I'm making more money by remaining free," she said. "And I like money. After these two pictures I'll probably start a third one, but not for Metro. And once I establish myself in pictures I may find a stage challenge.

"I'm not thinking about becomng a star or anticipating it. But I am sure it is going to happen.

"I'll welcome the enjoyment of my work and the admiration of professional actors, and the money and the things it will afford me. But I'm not interested in fan mail or the adulation of the public."

That last statement could be the chink in Anjanette's well-laid plans for stardom. Without a glamorous band of millions of fans no performer has ever become a star. Not Brando, Monroe, Garbor or Gable.

Anjanette will discover that for herself.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

THE EMMY STOOD in the middle of the coffee table and 7-year-old Richie noticed it almost the first thing after he got up in the morning.

"What's that?" he asked his mother.

His mother, Mary Tyler Moore, replied:

"It's an award. You know, honey, the same as if you get a gold star for a good spelling test."

Richie looked at the Emmy again?

"Can I keep it in my room?" he asked.

Replied the woman who had been selected by her colleagues in the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences as the best television actress of the year:

"Sure. If you want to."

It was as nonchalant as that.

RICHIE CHANGED the subject to what was for breakfast. Apparently, he didn't really want very strongly to keep Emmy in his room, because by the time bedtime had rolled around, he had forgotten all about the famed statuette.

Which suited his mother just fine.

In the first place, she wasn't particularly anxious to have her young son think of Emmy as a famed statuette. On the same basis as him receiving a spelling award, ok, but nothing much more than that. He hadn't seen her receive it because the televised Emmy award presentations the night before came on past his bed time.

"He should have pride in me for what I do in the home—for my love of him," said Mary.

"I want him to think I'm special because I'm his mother.

"I don't want him to think I'm special because I'm on television and that also makes him something special."

MARY, ON TELEVISION, is the video spouse of the title star in the CBS-TV network's "The Dick Van Dyke Show." In real life, she's wed to Grant Tinker, an executive for NBC-TV.

In real life, she's critical of "a fairly large number" of other parents in show business.

"Too many of them," she said, "take off for Europe or Mexico for three months at a time, leaving their children in the capable hands of a governess.

"But a governess, no matter how capable, cannot replace a mother or father."

Her contract with "The Dick Van Dyke Show" has two more years to go.

Her contract with son Richie is for a lifetime. It's the more special of the two.

LEE ANN Meriwether, "Miss America" of 1955, is stage hostess for the "Miss California Pageant" at 10:30 p. m. Saturday, channel 7. It will be a 90-minute special. "Miss California" will be named at the program's end.

Barry Goldwater and Gov. Scranton's move last week.

SHOW OF WEEK—Last of the original live dramas goes into its final hour with an adventure story set in a dictator-ridden Latin American nation, directed by Franklin Schaffner at 10 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Peter Falk, Oscar Homolka, Arthur Kennedy, Andrew Duggan, James Edwards and Larry Hagman co-star as a U.S. State Dept. trouble-shooter is assigned to investigate the intrigue, weighing the relative evils of the dictator-president and the rebel leader. (Repeats will take over until the fall debut of the Raffles-type Niven-Boyer-Gig Young suspense series "The Rogues.")

VIEWPOINT: WASHINGTON—Premiere, James Fleming anchors a weekly commentary on the week's big stories, with members of the Washington press corps giving their views on the major stories at 11:30 p.m., ch. 9.

Fabian Not in Singing Mood

FABIAN JUST isn't too handy when it comes to getting the pantomime message from Julie London. The pair are on "Stump the Stars" at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday and Wednesday, channel 5.

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Fabian, a darling among the teen-agers not long ago, hasn't sung a note in almost three years, and there are those who say the period should be remembered as a time of welcome silence.

Fabian is a nice young man, which is more than you could ever say for his singing voice. He always realized his musical limitations but even now he will not say they are insurmountable.

Even so, he quit singing in 1962 and probably won't warble again until the mood strikes him.

Fabian, an older and wiser 21-year-old, is concentrating on an acting career, a profession for which he shows definite promise, much more than he ever did as a crooner.

He recently completed two movies. His contract option has been picked up by 20th Century Fox and he joins the quick-witted crew on CBS-TV's "Celebrity Game."

"I haven't recorded in about two-and-a-half years and I don't plan to," said Fabian. "When I feel like singing again I will. I just don't feel like it."

FABIAN ROARED onto the vocal scene with a record called "Tiger." From there he went on to sell truckloads of records, meeting criticism along the road. But it was criticism that he learned to endure, endurance made easy by a burgeoning bank account.

The young fellow said he purchased his parents a home, helped pay for his brother's college education and put the rest into government bonds.

Fabian came out of Philadelphia, a city which has produced such vocalists as Mario Lanza, Bobby Rydell, Buddy Greco, Frankie Avalon and Eddie Fisher.

If you want to compare Fabian to his predecessors, do it yourself. He didn't.

"ALL I CAN SAY is that for anyone to sell as many records as I did, something had to be going," he said. "If we weren't dealing with facts and figures, I would beat around the bush. But people bought the records because they liked them. And if I ever record again, they'll either buy them or they won't.

"Everybody is entitled to their opinion. That's how I feel about it. That's not why I dropped singing. I can work harder. This is something personal for me. I feel stronger for acting."

Fabian always has had a last name, and there's a chance he might start using it professionally. He's not certain.

If you care, it's Forte.

With or without a last name, Fabian asks for a chance to prove his talents as a dramatic actor.

"I never gave the singing a chance," he said. "I've been very lucky on the acting end. So why not learn my craft? I've been lucky with the few exposures I've had in movies and television shows. And people know I'm trying. It's a good feeling."

Fabian will get his chance. He's well liked in town. His voice may have lost him some fans, but it never cost him any friends.

Pan and Fan Mail

I'm amazed to find that so many women actually thrive on daytime serials.

Your answer to Mrs. Brown was excellent and may I suggest she might receive more satisfaction gaining a bit of knowledge from a daytime program such as "Jeopardy."

I can't imagine a woman having time enough to become involved in such trivia as a serial when she could read a good book or watch one TV show a day that would increase her knowledge.

Mrs. S. Nelson, Long Beach

If I had to watch the game - show "Jeopardy" strictly to increase my knowledge, I think I'd do better going back to first grade.

* * * *

My little girls were very sad to learn what has happened to Miss Barbara on channel 5—my 4-year-old cried.

We have been watching Romper Room at our house for seven years and, college education or no college education, Miss Barbara is our favorite.

We miss her very much. Is there no way to bring her back?

Mrs. June Chapman, Norwalk

You might try financing her way through teacher's college. As of this moment, however, KTLA doesn't think the "Romper Room" organization in Baltimore, Md., will change its corporate mind. No teacher's degree, no TV.

* * * *

We don't go for the elongated newscasts on TV. Nearly all of them have been extended to at least an hour.

Most of them come on about 6 p.m. after we have perused the columns of our favorite evening diurnal and, after the first 15 minutes, the news becomes repetitious and padded to such an extent that we lose interest.

Other alternatives at this hour would be to switch to Mickey Mouse or some antiquated re-runs.

This would be an appropriate time for some good music during the dinner hour, which we now get on our little transistor radio, commercials permitting.

J. Paul Gleason, Long Beach

I think you're underrating Mickey Mouse.

* * * *

My children and I are wondering why Bill Biery is off the air on channel 13 from 3 to 5. We miss him and his sense of humor.

Mrs. Lipson, Long Beach

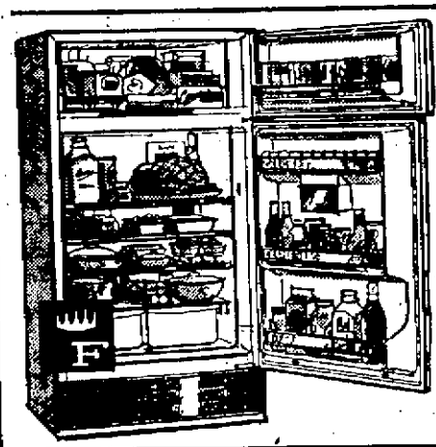

His contract expired. Channel 13, according to them, didn't want to renew it.

'Tribute to Old Glory'

THE HISTORY OF OUR FLAG is related by William Windom to Inger Stevens and Mickey Sholdar (center). The three are regulars in ABC-TV's Wednesday night "Farmer's Daughter" situation-comedy series.

Since today (Sunday) is Flag Day, two television programs appropriately present a salute to Old Glory.

The first is the La Mirada Parade whose theme is "Tribute to Old Glory." It airs 10 a.m. on channel 5.

The second is a "Survey '64" presentation, "Flags of Freedom." It airs 6:30 p.m. in COLOR on channel 4.

The parade special includes Ty Hardin as grand marshal and Sebastian Cabot as an honored guest.

The evening program features a Marine Corps drill team and a verbal salute to the flag by Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction.

NIGHTCLUBS SPAWN TV STARS

Movie 'Second Leads' Become 'Top Bananas' on Video

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — An enthusiastic friend of ours called us not long ago from Nevada at two in the morning to rave about an Andy Griffith nightclub act he had seen.

Our friend is not as good a friend as he was before, but his surprise at Griffith's in-person performance is an interesting example of how televiewers tend to forget where many video stars came from.

Griffith, for instance, made his name on the stage in "No Time for Sergeants," and, in addition, is an accomplished monologist.

Danny Thomas, to take another example, has no peer as a nightclub storyteller, and those who remember his early days in Chicago can honestly say they knew a tremendous star was being shaped, television or no.

* * * *

WHILE some of the stars who came to television were previously main headliners—such as Danny Kaye, Fred MacMurray and Shirley Booth—a great many came from the ranks of the "second lead," the supporting performer who often held a movie together and won the audience away from the wooden hero or heroine.

Television names like Jackie Gleason, Phil Silvers and Milton Berle were known on the club circuit or around Broadway—but in the movies they never made it big, usually winding up as the leading man's funny sidekick.

Lucille Ball had considerable stature in films, but nothing like what she was to achieve on video. Red Skelton was a fair-sized movie star. Jack Benny, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, and others were long-time radio fixtures.

* * * *

THE CLOSENESS that many viewers feel to television stars makes it logical that in-person performers and skilled, human character actors—perhaps not so beautiful to look at—would score well on the home medium.

Thus, E. G. Marshall of "The Defenders," a fine veteran actor, has more fame than ever before. Raymond Massey, for years a brilliant movie and stage performer, is now the mainstay of "Dr. Kildare." Dean Jagger is the chief value of "Mr. Novak." Raymond Burr, a once-heavy actor who played a number of nasty types in films, is the shining lawyer in "Perry Mason." Ernest Borgnine won an Oscar for "Marty," but he was always more a supporting actor than a star — and now he's successful in "McHale's Navy" on television.

All of these, then, are accomplished performers of reputation even without television. Patty Duke, as another example, made her name on Broadway in "The Miracle Worker." Donna Reed may be just a happy mother on ABC-TV, but she played a variety of movie roles through the years.

Perhaps not so strangely, many of the biggest television stars seem to be entirely unlike the old-fashioned, remote movie idols.

★ SPECIAL

ELECTION YEAR in Averagetown—With the help of a Census Bureau computer picking the town voting most nearly parallel with the national average in the past 3 Presidential elections (answer: Salem, N.J.), with Gallup pollsters making a special survey of that town for their 1964 projected choice, and with David Brinkley's tongue-in-cheek humor translating the findings of computer and pollster into human terms, we get a highly fallible prediction of the election outcome at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4. In the first of 20 pre-convention specials planned by NBC News, the citizens of Salem express their political thoughts and worries, the latter centering mainly in "money, and how to get more."

SHADOW Over the White House—Former President Eisenhower and Richard M. Nixon are among those scheduled to comment on the gaps in Constitutional law on Presidential succession, Presidential disability and Vice Presidential vacancy — and what can be done about them —during "ABC News Reports" at 10:30 p.m., ch. 7. Howard K. Smith and Edward P. Morgan discuss the problem, and show tapes of the recent American Bar Association panel on the subject which included Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.), Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N. Y.), and former Attorney General Herbert Brownell. Panel was moderated by NAB president LeRoy Collins.

'Yankee Queen' Special Wednesday

HOPE COOKE . . . Yankee Queen

An American girl who now reigns as the queen of a small kingdom in the Himalayas is the subject of an hour-long special at 9 p.m. Wednesday on channel 4 in COLOR.

The program is called "Sikkim: Its Yankee Queen." The queen is the former Hope Cook, 23, of New York.

Miss Cooke a year-and-a-half ago wed Palden Thondup Namgyal, then crown prince of Sikkim, a country located between Tibet and India.

* * * *

WHILE the documentary was being filmed last December, Sir Tashi Namgyal, the king, died. The crown prince ascended to the throne and his American wife became the country's queen.

The program will have Queen Hope talking about her new life and conducting a tour of the royal palace.

The king will describe his country's school system and its political situation. The tiny land has been flooded with more than 5,000 refugees from Red China-dominated Tibet.

SPECIAL

MISS CALIFORNIA—Byron Palmer moves from the Long Beach IBC stage over to L.A.'s Figueroa Playhouse as finalists parade in swim suits and formal gowns in a 2½-hour live telecast at 8:30 p.m., ch. 9. Last year's winner, Francine Herack of Encino, will crown her successor who'll go on to the Miss United States contest, as preliminary to the Miss Universe pageant (latter will be telecast Aug. 1 on CBS, with usual 3-hour delay to Pacific Time areas).

TWILIGHT ZONE—For the second time, this Rod Serling series lowers its final curtain, with an Earl Hamner story of two children, fleeing from their selfish, quarreling parents, who create an imaginay world so real they escape into it. Eleven-year-old Mary Badham, Oscar-nominated for "To Kill a Mockingbird," stars at 9:30 p.m., ch. 2, with Tim Stafford, Kim Hector, Georgia Simmons, Dee Hartford and Tod Andrews. Series, which will continue in repeat form until debut of "Gomer Pyle," was offered reprieve by ABC if it would shift to a more far-out format. Serling rejected the conditional offer.

DEE HARTFORD is featured in a drama about a selfish mother on "Twilight Zone" at 9:30 p.m. Friday, channel 2.

OUR COVER

"Sweet as peach blossoms" could aptly describe the collie puppies that appear on today's cover. They are the pets of Betty Herriott of Sylmar and come from Happy Home Collies of Mrs. Paul Godden of Granada Hills. But all puppies are sweet little characters, too—just ask their owners! And there will be owners and would-be owners by the hundreds at Harbor Cities Kennel Club dog show and obedience trials next weekend at Long Beach's Veterans Memorial Stadium. Louis and Virginia Kay recorded the cover photo with Graflex at f16 and with electronic flash. The secret of their success in getting animal pictures—a field in which they excel—is patience plus various sound effects ranging from ringing bells to sneezing. The Kays formerly lived in Long Beach but now make their home in Van Nuys. For more about the dog show turn to Page 10.

Harriet Glanville, with two consecutive Long Beach City golf championships under her belt, tees off June 22 trying for her third title. What makes Harriet a champion? An interesting question, thought sportswriter Rich Roberts, so he interviewed her. He gives his report next week in Southland.

Needles and Pins

By Helen Gillum

One of figurines from a collection of such pin cushion decorations acquired as hobby by Mr., Mrs. Ross Cook of Rolling Hills. Items are rare enough to maintain interest.

CONCEIVED and created for the sewing room of several generations ago, the small porcelain pincushion doll is one collectible that appeals to both children and adults.

Before the present era of "off the rack" dresses and other factory produced clothing, women of a necessity made their own wearing apparel. Trained from girlhood in the art of needle and thread, scissors and pins, practically no bride started housekeeping without a supply of such items. And tucked away somewhere in her possessions must have been a pincushion or two, to hold the countless straight pins so necessary to the seamstress. All kinds of pincushions were used, from those home made of cloth to elaborately shaped items topped with realistic looking porcelain doll heads.

Although commonly called "pincushion dolls," many of these diminutive china figures were made for other uses, too. The larger ones, with voluminous silk or velvet skirts, often served as teapot or telephone covers, or as disguises for powder jars in the boudoir. Others were brush handles or pill and ring box tops. They were also cherished as party favors, and even today, many an already fancy cake is further glamorized by the artistic use of the little ladies in the decorating scheme.

SUCH A COLLECTION is historically interesting because of the varied clothing styles modeled on the small china busts. Practically every period of women's dress, from the simple peasant girl costume, and the plumed and bejeweled court lady of two and three centuries ago, to the slinky-eyed, cloche-hatted flapper of the 1920s, is represented. Beautifully molded, with sharp, clear features and exquisite coloring, the small dolls speak charmingly of past feminine fashions.

These dainty "half-ladies" are easy to exhibit. A simple shelf or a window sill can serve as a starter. Inexpensive as antiques go, and just rare enough to make good hunting, they render it possible for all the family, from little Sue to Granddad, to join in the fun of searching for just one more pincushion lady to add to the display in playroom or den.

Santa Ana's Flying Time-Machine Museum

This early era airplane may lack a lot of niceties of modern aircraft but it offers one thing—thrills—even for veteran stunt flier Frank Tallman.

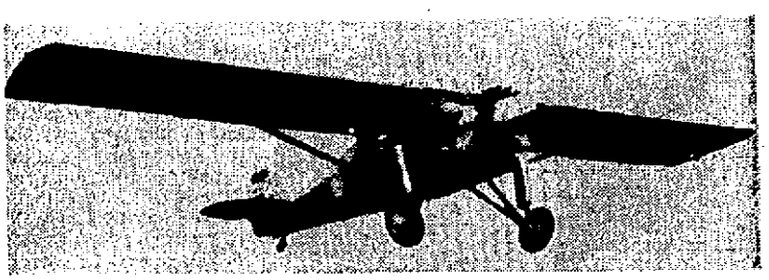

By Jerome Hall

JUST 35 years elapsed between the flight of Lindy's Spirit of St. Louis and the flight of John Glenn's Friendship 7, just 50 years from the days of the frail, bicycle-wheeled air jalopies to the supersonic age.

Jet fighters coming off the production line are obsolete before they get into the sky . . . and on the drawing boards are plans for 90-minute trips from here to New York.

Aviation is so crowded with progress that there is hardly room for even memories. But there is one reservoir of aviation history—unique in all the world—that is preserving more than memories of the airplane's past.

Most any afternoon thousands of faces peer upward into the Orange County sky. There's a sputtering noise overhead, a rickety winged vehicle dips and dives in alarming gyrations. Then in the distance it seems to fall to the ground.

Among nearly 100 planes of many vintages at Santa Ana's museum of aircraft is this exact replica of Col. Charles Lindbergh's famed Spirit of St. Louis.

IT DOESN'T frighten the natives any more, but the myriad of tourists are at once curious, startled and enthralled.

When the fragile-looking craft falls out of the sky it's just going home to the International Flight and Space Museum at Orange County Airport in Santa Ana, where nearly 100 aircraft dating back to the days of the Wright Brothers are on display.

But what makes this an airplane museum unique in all the world is that each of the planes is in flying condition. On these sunny summerish afternoons museum co-owner Frank Tallman may hop into his 1909 Bleriot or his 1912 Maurice Framen or his 1917 Sopwith Camel and wing off into the mild blue up yonder.

"These planes are more rare than a lot of things you'll see in other kinds of museums," says Tallman. "There are dozens of Rembrandts. But nearly all old aircraft have been destroyed. We plan to see that these craft are kept flyable so when we are far into the space age we will have a living example of the infancy of aviation."

Tallman and Paul Mantz, two of the best-known names in aviation, have in six months time built the Air Museum into one of the major tourist attractions in Southern California. They have pooled their collections of antique planes acquired through the long years of stunt flying for the movies and have put together a multi-million-dollar display which is so representative of the history of flight that the United States government has provided a wealth of jet craft to complete the span of more than half a century. An airline recently gave the museum a shiny DC7.

Tallman, whose thick, reddish mustache gives him a look of the past and still another connection with history, regularly takes the antiques into the air. He wears a long, brown leather flying coat, white scarf, leather skull cap and huge goggles, making him look like something right out of an old war movie—which he is.

BETWEEN Tallman and Mantz, who gained world fame as the three-time Bendix air race victor, they have done most of the stunt flying for movies. Most recently it was Tallman who piloted the bomber that crashed through a huge billboard in the film, "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," possibly the most dangerous air stunt of all time.

Though Tallman would have a hard time coaxing anyone to go up with him in his baling-wire boxes with wings, he denies he is a daredevil. He flies all of the old planes, including the 1909 model, without hesitation, but refuses to drive an automobile on the Santa Ana Freeway. He flies to work each day from Torrance airport (he's a Palos Verdes resident).

Tallman learned to fly at Mines Field, which is now called Los Angeles International Airport, and had a long career as a daredevil . . . oops, as a stunt flier at county fairs around the country.

"People are basically the same about flying now as they were when the airplane was a mysterious machine to them," he says. "One of our best attractions is a page out of those old days. We take the people up on flights at so much a pound. That was the airlines' original tariff system, you know. It brings back a lot of fond memories."

"OUR RELIABLE old Waco open biplane" is the one Tallman uses for public rides. "It's safer than a trolley car."

Where the world's other airplane museums (there are a half-dozen major ones) are simple displays of airships with a label on them, this one has added touches of realism.

Surrounding a group of World War I planes, for instance, are stage settings copied from the classics of the air movies, "Hell's Angels" and "Dawn Patrol."

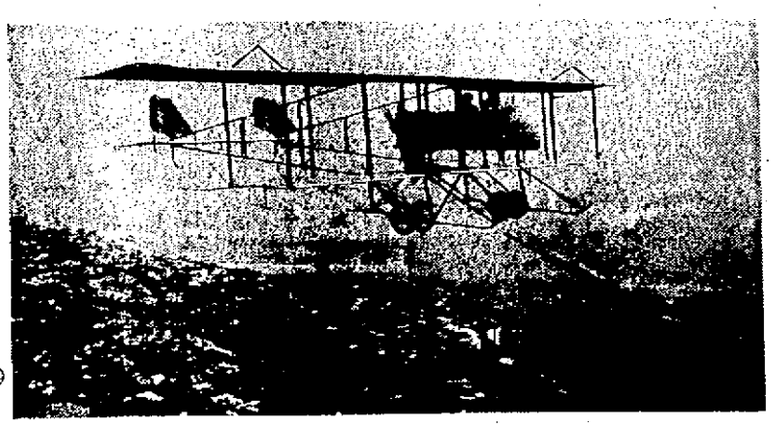

Included among the near-hundred planes is an exact replica of the "Spirit of St. Louis" which Charles Lindbergh flew across the pages of aviation history. It was built for the movie. Lindbergh himself once flew it.

In the World War II section there is a British Spitfire, the legendary plane that saved England. It's the only Spitfire in the U. S. that is in flying order. Too, there's a Japanese Zero and an American P-38.

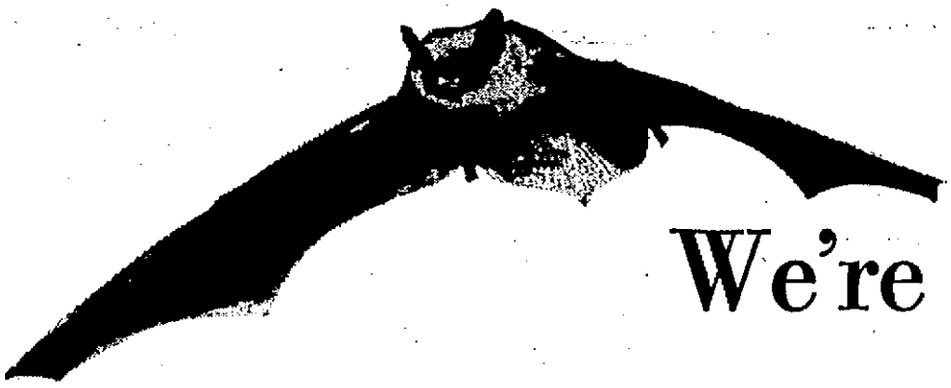

THE ANTIQUE aircraft have been valued at more than $2 million and the Tallman-Mantz collection is growing. The two often rush off in pursuit of a lead. Recently they uncovered a bi-winger that had been stored away in a remote barn some 40 years. "About all it needed was new spark plugs," quipped Mantz. Other discoveries have been given a complete refurbishing in the Museum's shops.

If you ask Tallman how long he's going to keep flying those rickety old crates, a hurt look comes over his face. He will rub his hands lovingly across the time-worn wing of a 1917 Eberhardt (he is genuinely hurt when rough language is directed at his delapidated old sky jalopies) and he'll reply:

"As long as they'll go up, I'll go up. And I know for sure they'll be in shape to go up a lot longer than I will."

Another unit in large collection of aircraft at Orange County Airport, this 1910 Curtis Pusher is becoming a familiar sight in Southland skies.

We're the Battiest!

Fish-eating bat from Lower California is examined by Dr. C. A. McLaughlin of County Museum. Respirator guards against cave dust, gloves against bites.

Los Angeles County Museum Photos

Big-eared bat is shown in this closeup. Membrane-covered wings and furry body are evident. Bats, contrary to popular belief, have value to mankind.

By Lou Jobst

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA—in case you haven't heard—is one of the battiest places in the United States.

Literally, the Southland is swarming with the furry little winged mammals despised, reviled and misunderstood by mankind for centuries.

Of the 65 species of bats known to live in the U. S., 24 species, including the largest, the giant Mastiff, reside in this area, according to Dr. Charles A. McLaughlin, curator of mammals at the Los Angeles County Museum.

McLAUGHLIN, who is maintaining a continuing bat research project under a grant from the U. S. Army Medical Research and Development Command, says the Southland has a "huge population of bats" due, in part, to the wide variety of the area's climate.

The region attracts breeds from both tropical and temperate climes.

While giant colonies numbering in the thousands can be found in desert mines and foothill caves, the bat is no stranger in our urban areas.

"The bats are with us, often in the middle of cities and in daylight, but they attract little attention. It may be that people have become so accustomed to keeping an eye out for ground traffic, they fail to notice the aerial activity," says Dr. McLaughlin.

WHILE THE CITY dwelling bat has lost his traditional urban home, the belfry and attic, he has merely moved under bridges and other shadowy, out-of-the-way places.

Bats—while feared and thought ugly and repulsive by most—are something of a boon to man.

"The great value is that nearly all the American bats are insect eaters and take up at night where the birds leave off in the day, destroying insects," asserts the Southland mammalogist.

Scientists are fascinated by the bat's sonar system.

The bat sound system is incredibly precise and facile.

The bat's sound "click" project is only about 28 inches ahead of him, yet his muscular control is so responsive that he can receive the echo from his "click," alter course and miss an object while traveling at 20 miles per hour.

YOU CAN'T HEAR sonics. They are ultra-high frequency, ranging from 70,000 to 100,000 cycles per second (the human frequency is 16,000 to 18,000).

The sound system is used for things other than navigating. The bat uses his sound beam to search out food and to pick a landing spot, preferring a rough spot to a smooth one. A rough surface is better than a smooth one because the bat uses his claw-like feet as an anchor from which he dangles.

The largest known American bat lives in Southern California. This is the so-called California Mastiff, a bat whose body length reaches about 6.5 inches and who has a wingspread of up to 18 inches.

DR. McLAUGHLIN believes the bat is among nature's most maligned creatures (and unfairly so).

Since earliest times man has portrayed the bat as evil, says Dr. McLaughlin.

In art angels (good) are given feathery wings of birds and the devils (evil) leathery wings of bats. Shakespeare employed the "hair of a bat" as ingredient in his witches' brew.

The most terrifying libel has been the vampire bat stories which gave rise to the fictional Count Dracula.

There are vampires, admits Dr. McLaughlin, who diet on blood, but they don't go for the jugular vein in the throat.

They go for the less mortal extremities, notably the toes, nose and ears, which are the "easiest points to attack a sleeper."

VERY FEW BATS drink blood. They are largely specialists, with some bats exclusively eating insects, others fish and others only flower nectar.

"Seen close up, it is obvious why the fierce faces and unusual ears have made bats a symbol of horror in fiction," explains Dr. McLaughlin.

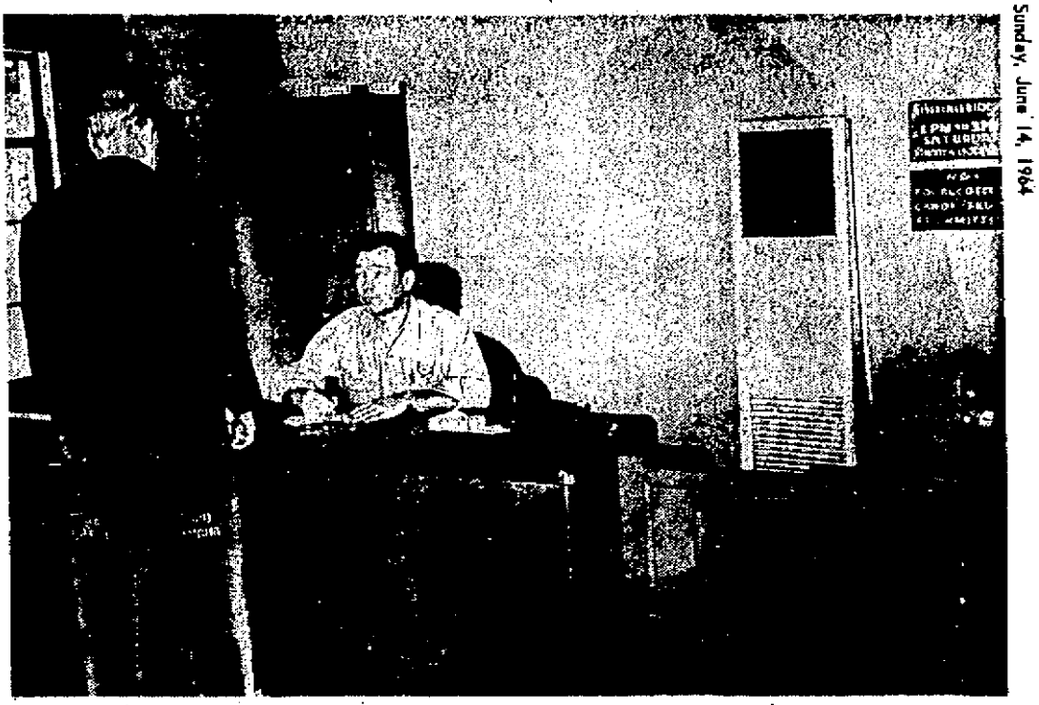

"They are not pretty by our standards, certainly—but then neither is the hippopotamus."

Rancho Esperanza

For Men Only

City Honor Farm

By R. Winston Tucker

Minor offenders find the Long Beach Police Department's honor farm, Rancho Esperanza, a place of hope, as its name signifies. Above, Patrolman Glenn Hill interviews a new arrival at the gate house of the farm facility.

EARLY IN 1953, an angry group of property owners met near the eastern boundary of Long Beach to discourage the city from establishing an honor farm in that area.

Two alarming possibilities prompted this action: The chance that dangerous criminals might lurk behind small fences and pounce on women and children, and the probability that the adjacent area would be looted by escaping convicts.

At various intervals during the following weeks mothers with children in hand picketed the city hall. Protesting groups appeared before each session of the city council. Some of the women threatened to lie down in front of the construction machinery in order to halt progress.

City representatives met with these various groups to explain the farm's purpose and method of operation.

TENSION SUBSIDED when it was made clear that only misdemeanor prisoners would be confined there. (A misdemeanor is a minor offense not punishable by confinement in a state prison. Sentences generally vary up to six months.)

Finally, the council voted to install the farm at its original designated location and then allocated almost $200,000 for this project. Twenty-three acres of land were secured from water department-controlled areas.

For many years, prior to 1953, Long Beach was faced with a rapidly expanding jail population. The crowded conditions were claimed to be intolerable. Former Chief of Police William H. Dovey, then a captain, and Judge Charles D. Wallace of the municipal court were among those attempting to find a solution. They felt that a minimum security area for minor offenders to live and work would be a practical answer. Long Beach newspapers, Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce, city council and city manager supported the idea.

On March 21, 1954, Rancho Esperanza (Hope Ranch), the Long Beach Police Department's honor farm, was completed just east of the San Gabriel River on the south side of Carson Street.

RANCHO ESPERANZA has facilities for 125 men. It consists of four basic buildings: barracks, mess hall and galley, chapel and recreation room, and a gate house. All are constructed of concrete blocks with mission tile roofs and are painted to blend harmoniously with the area. Large, well-kept lawns and careful landscaping help create the impression that here is some type of school rather than a penal institution.

Two paid civilian chiefs supervise the sparkling clean galley and mess hall which seats 120 persons. The food served provides each working prisoner with at least 4,000 calories daily.

The barracks are constructed on the "wagon wheel" plan. A guard cage is located at the "hut." From 5:30 p. m. until 7 o'clock the following morning a guard is locked inside while the prisoners are free to move about within the building. From this location, he has a clear view of each of the four wings of the barracks and the rows of single beds provided for the prisoners. Communication facilities, light switches and temperature controls can be operated from within the cage. An additional officer, on outside patrol and inspection, can be called by a signal system.

THE GATE HOUSE has two visiting areas—one at each end of the building. Supervised visiting is permitted for two hours on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Nonsectarian church services are held every Sunday in the chapel. Accommodations are provided for 156 persons, which enables some visitors of the inmates to attend.

Alcohol is the principal cause of the inmates' presence here. Each man has an excuse; for instance, one insists that once he breaks the surface of a martini, he's off like a race horse at the sound of the bell. Another claims that he only drinks for health reasons—just enough to keep his blood vessels dilated.

Every inmate at Rancho Esperanza has been carefully screened. Only misdemeanor prisoners physically able to work and who have no record of sex or narcotic offenses are eligible. During the week the men arise at 5:45 a. m., have breakfast, and work in the farm's large truck gardens until 11:45 a. m. The afternoon shift begins at 1 o'clock and ends at 3 o'clock.

A PRISONER may draw limited amounts of his own money to purchase certain toilet items and stationery from the storeroom or to obtain candy and cigarettes from available automatic vending machines. Those without funds are supplied with tobacco and safety razors.

"The men get along reasonably well and few try to escape," said Sgt. E. E. Wolthausen, farm supervisor since 1957. "To escape is a felony and the seriousness of this charge has a restraining effect on most of the men."

A daily average of 90 men have been confined at the farm since it was established. Sixty per cent are constant repeaters.

Supervision of Rancho Esperanza is under the jail division. The custodial officials consist of one police sergeant, two police officers and 10 correctional officers—men who have been hired and specially trained for this type of work.

"In my opinion," said Sgt. Wolthausen, "the farm is well serving its purpose and the food produced holds down the cost of operation. It was never designed as a rehabilitation center. The alcoholic will probably continue to return, but in many instances the confinement and hard work has had a sobering effect on the occasional drunk driver."

Barracks fan out in spoke fashion from a central hub at the farm. A central guard can maintain watch along barracks corridors. Men assigned to farm work outdoors, growing food, raising chickens used on tables there.

Ch. Barmere's Mighty Man, a Brussels griffon owned by Mrs. W. Z. Breed and shown by Evonne Chashoudian, was best in show in 1963 Harbor Cities Kennel Club show.

Dogs to Have Their Biggest Day

By Eleanor Avery Price

AMERICA'S largest dog show—this year expected to be also the most exciting and spectacular event of any similar program ever shown in this country—will be presented next Saturday and Sunday by Harbor Cities Kennel Club at Veterans Memorial Stadium on Clark Avenue south of Carson Street. A bench show and an obedience trial are scheduled.

Approximately 15 large level rings are being erected on the grassy turf, with special tented rings for breeds which cannot be judged in sunlight. Large tents will serve as the benching area. All tents will be highlighted with hundreds of colorful flags, banners, and decorative motifs specially designed for the more than 50 participating specialty dog clubs. Flowers will be prominently displayed.

In all, $50,000 in elaborate silver trophies will be at stake, America's richest prize list ever.

Hounds, toys, and non-sporting dogs will be shown and judged on Saturday; sporting, working and terrier breeds on Sunday. Obedience trials take place both days, in charge of Long Beach Dog Obedience Club. There will be champion parades and junior showmanship classes for children over eight and under 16 years. Special prizes for the winning boy and girl include tours of Disneyland.

Twenty-seven internationally-known judges from all parts of the country will preside over the large show rings. M. B. Godsell from Dixon, Calif., will have the difficult task of selecting Best Dog In Show Sunday evening.

Poodles, due to current wide favor, were prominent in last year's show and this one. Palmares Kennels' Ch. Palmares Janve Glace, a standard, was best non-sporting dog.

Speedsters With Fins

By Walter Finch

Fish swimming at speeds near 50 m.p.h. have been recorded by Dr. Vladimir Walters with this electronic gear.

THAT FISH that got away could have really been moving out!

That's what a unique scientific study of fish swimming speeds by UCLA zoologist Dr. Vladimir Walters would indicate.

Dr. Walters, using a fishing pole rigged as a speedometer, learned that two common oceanic fish, the wahoo and the yellowfin tuna, are real speedsters.

He clocked both at speeds in excess of 45 miles per hour.

MANY EXPERTS had held the opinion that fish could not swim faster than 25 to 30 miles per hour because of their body design and muscular structure.

The Southland scientist undertook the research project for the U.S. Navy. The Navy wants to learn more about the swimming secrets of fish for possible use in future ship design work.

Dr. Walters used a speedometer with a magnetic field and a line marked with powdered iron at fixed intervals to clock the fish.

HE CLOCKED one, a wahoo at 48 miles per hour and the top speed for five tuna hooked was 46 miles per hour.

Dr. Walters believes these fish could swim even faster without dragging a line.

The UCLA educator said he plans to time the marlin, sailfish and swordfish this summer.

He believes the marlin—the dream fish of the big game fishermen—can hit 90 miles per hour.

Fun-Living Beside a Canal

Venetian flavor is lent to the living room of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gay on Rivo Alto Canal. In keeping with their name, the Gays have kept their dwelling happy and attractive.

By Stella George

MR. AND MRS. W. J. Gay, 61 Rivo Alto Canal, have made their waterfront home as happy and attractive as their own last name. The house was one of the first in the area, and withstood the 193 earthquake as if nothing had happened. The Gays have in no way modernized the Spanish styled home, and the few important alterations they have made have been done so well that they blend with the structure as if they were included in the original plans.

Specific changes include the addition of a terrace overlooking the canal; opening up the front of the home with outsize windows; and widening an archway to the width of one of the front rooms. The planning of the terrace was done with the help of an architect, Richard Prior, who suggested, among other things, extending the roof of the house over a portion of the terrace. On the roof of the house are several potted plants, adding a decorative touch.

PERSONS familiar with the area know that only a sidewalk and a small patch of grass separate the homesites from the canal. The Gays have made their home attractive right down to the sidewalk. First, there are two long, narrow planters filled with cactus. In back of these, and directly below the terrace, are rows of small lemon trees. Three steps lead to a white wrought iron gate that opens into the terrace, and a white wrought iron fence lends privacy. The flooring is blue, with mosaic tiles here and there adding to a charming "old" look which fits with the architecture of the home. Winter and summer, day and night, the terrace is one of the most important "rooms" of the home, with its wonderful view of the canal and homes across the way.

The living area of the house which faces the canal consists of two rooms, divided by a partial wall and two archways. In the living room side, Mrs. Gay has maintained a Venetian feeling by placing an appropriate mural on the far wall. The sofa in front of the mural is peacock blue and green, facing another sofa across the room done in the green. In front of the latter is a long chowder table made of solid mahogany which can be opened up for informal dining, with guests seated around the table on cushions.

Dining-family room is large enough to serve both its purposes adequately and equally well. Console-TV-radio cabinet is at left, a game table stands before a large window.

White wrought iron leads up stairs and surrounds the terrace of the Gay residence, which borders the canal.

THE FIREPLACE is of flagstone painted white. Drapes are natural matchstick flanked on either side with green matchstick. There is an International flavor to the whole decor in furniture accessories: hand-carved tables from the Orient; a delicate ornamental mirror (above the fireplace) from Mexico; a Bible holder made of hand-carved wood; a brass horse from the front of a gondola; and two carved "nearsighted" Monks" with a tall candle nearby, to name only a few. Blue tile in front of the white fireplace adds still another decorative touch.

The dining and game area adjoins the living room. A game table is directly in front of one of the large windows. An Italian dining table and chairs are near the shutter doors which lead to the kitchen. A console cabinet holds the TV and radio. Above this is a small hanging shelf upon which Mrs. Gay has a collection of tiny religious figures. To keep them dust free, she has placed a large, stemmed glass over each figure. The effect is unique and attractive, and the glasses can still be used for their functional purpose when needed.

AT THE FAR end of the compact kitchen the wall is papered in a pattern which depicts a small ice cream table and two chairs with a bird cage nearby. The dinette set matches and there are a small round table, two chairs and a bird cage nearby. The kitchen has built-ins which only those found in older homes can boast, including a glassed-in cabinet for glassware.

The home has two bedrooms and a bath. Closets are ample (again a trademark of older houses). White is predominant in these rooms adding to an illusion of space.

In the rear of the dwelling is a large and livable combination family room and work room, a complete change of atmosphere from the front area. The family cats consider the room their own private quarters, but cordially invite their owners to be guests if occasion demands.

With a swimming pool of unlimited size in the front yard, a boat handy on its own private dock ready for fishing excursions, the Gay home has everything to be desired for fun living.

Tasty Veal Steak With Plums

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

DRESSING up a dinner menu with Veal Steak with Plums will give the whole family a meat treat to anticipate. Frozen chopped veal steaks are topped with mounds of seasoned bread crumb dressing, canned purple plums are nested in the dressing and a tangy sauce is poured over the top—then the rest of the culinary magic is left to the oven.

The extra heavy syrup from a can of purple plums is used in making the mustard-flavored sauce.

Veal Steak With Plums

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 6 frozen chopped veal steaks (4 oz. each)
- Salt
- Pepper
- 3 cups soft bread crumbs
- ¼ cup finely chopped onion
- 1 tblsp. chopped parsley
- ¼ cup chopped celery
- ½ tsp. thyme
- 1 egg
- 1 can (1 lb., 1 oz.) purple plums in extra heavy syrup
- 2 tsps. cornstarch
- ½ tsp. dry mustard
- 1 tblsp. brown sugar
- ⅛ tsp. allspice
- 1 tblsp. vinegar

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in skillet. Add steaks and brown quickly. Place steaks in shallow baking dish; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Combine crumbs, onion, parsley, celery, thyme and ½ teaspoon salt. Melt remaining butter in skillet; pour over crumb mixture. Add egg; mix well. With ¼-cup measure, mound dressing on steaks. Drain plum syrup into saucepan. Pit plums; place on top of dressing. Combine remaining ingredients; stir into plum syrup. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Pour over dressing. Bake in 350-degree (moderate) oven 30 to 35 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Chopped veal steaks from the frozen food counter are topped with crumb dressing, plums, sauce, and baked.

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif., 90812, for origin and meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give the origin of BAYERSDORF.—D. P., Bellflower.

D. P.: BAYERSDORF, meaning "wild-boar village," was the name of a north German town. This family's progenitor used the town name for his surname when he moved away to another locality.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy on YBARRONDO.—D. Y., Santa Ana.

D. Y.: YBARRONDO is a Spanish Basque name representing a home location in the Basque region of northwestern Spain. "Ybarrondo" describes "from the good valley."

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have the shield and data on BEALE.—W. B., Compton.

W. B.: BEALE traces to the old French word "beal" meaning "handsome," which was brought to England from Picardy in northwest France. The Beale lineage are on 12th century English records. William Beall was a Yorkshire land owner in 1379. The family shield is black, emblazoned with a gold chevron between three gold wolf heads, each head with three black clover leaves on it.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give the source of ELIAS.—Mrs. E., Long Beach.

MRS. E.: ELIAS is German. In its inception this surname was a Biblical-origin baptismal name meaning "Jehovah is my God." The usual English form of Elias is Elijah.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please identify MANN.—L. M., Long Beach.

L. M.: MANN can be English, German or Irish. In Germany and England, Mann was a baptismal name meaning "hero." In Ireland the Gaelic clan name MacMathghamhna meaning "sons of the bear," was modernized as Mann in the 1500s.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish the source of DEUL.—L. D., Long Beach.

L. D.: DEUL, when traced back eight centuries in Germany, is revealed as being formed from two archaic hero-warrior names. These were "Thiet-Dilo" meaning "destroyer of people," extolling the ancestor's prowess against the enemy in battle.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze the surname JOB.—S. C., Pasadena.

S. C.: JOB is an English lineage descended from a remote forefather, baptized

"Job." This name was used to honor the Biblical patriarch whose descriptive Hebrew name Iyyobh meant "persecuted one." English ancestors include Elyas Jobbe of Suffolk and John, Son-of-Job, of Cambridge, in 1273. No shield is recorded for Job.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give data on SCHMIDT.—C. S., Long Beach.

C. S.: SCHMIDT has a German origin, translating as "Smith." This is one of the oldest German words that was designated to workers in metals. Schmidt is a short form of an occupational title such as ironsmith, goldsmith or coppersmith. There were more than 100 different "smith" trade names in medieval Germany. The Schmidt shield, granted in 1735 is silver, crossed by a red band in the center.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform on PUTNAM.—D.I., Long Beach

D.I., PUTNAM began as the early English town-name Putten-Ham, in Surrey. This depicted "Home at a pit or excavation." The Putnam shield is black, emblazoned with a gold bird between three gold crosses. John Putnam, born in England in 1579, settled in Massachusetts; a later descendant was General Israel Putnam of our Civil War.

They Hunt the King Crab

Big and barnacled, this ferocious looking King crab will make a fine fisherman's dinner. King crab fishing is now a year-around occupation, with exception of two months, bringing this seafood to table in quantity for demand.

ALASKA KING crabs are captured in huge crab pots at an ocean depth averaging 300 feet. These pots, which replace the great trawling nets formerly used, vary in design, but the one most commonly used is the 7-foot rectangular type measuring about 30 inches in height. It is constructed of steel rods, with stainless steel wire or nylon webbing.

The U. S. King crab fishery is today exclusively a pot fishery. Dropping pots has always been, and still is, the best way to harvest crabs. Improvements in design and in operation and handling have made the crab pot better for the crabs, and probably more efficient than either tangle nets or trawl, the earlier methods.

Not long ago, 30 crabs to the pot was considered an excellent showing. Today, 130 is common. Each pot can hold as much as a ton of live crabs when full. Crabs from pots are larger, cleaner and livelier, and the small males and females can be more easily returned to the sea, with less damage, for preservation of the species. The average size is about 11 pounds, but these northern crabs often come bigger. Fishermen get a $50 bonus for every 6-foot King they bring in.

The pot is usually baited with frozen herring, and is held on the ocean bottom by its own weight. A rope to a float on the surface permits easy recovery, when the vessel returns to pick up the catch. Once aboard, the crabs are taken from the pot one by one and sorted. Legal size males are dropped into a "live" tank of circulating sea water.

Live tanking of the crabs is really an adaptation of an ancient technique. It dates back beyond the first Danish lugger, who kept his catch swimming and fresh all the way to Copenhagen by boring holes in the bottom of his boat, to primitive tribes who kept fish and shellfish alive in floating wicker creels.

The meat of the crab is in the claws, legs, and shoulder, and none of the rest of the crab is used. These sections are placed in wire baskets and lowered into stainless steel tanks of boiling sea water, where they are cooked 18 to 25 minutes. They are then chilled, washed again and trimmed, and put through the regular processing and inspection procedures that ready the crab for market.

King crab fishing, once a seasonal occupation, has become a year-round pursuit. There are only two slack months: November, because "the weather is so horrible and everybody needs a rest"; and May, because "the weather is so good and everybody needs a rest." This emphasis on winter fishing has resulted in heavy loss of life and vessels in the vicious storms that often blow straight in from the polar ice cap.

Wakefield Seafoods, Inc., is the largest Alaska-owned and operated fishing company, and packs more crab meat than any other single company, domestic or foreign.

Home Workshop

It's not a beginner's project, but for fanciers of early American this hutch is a home shop challenge.

By Bill Meyerriecks

IF YOU'RE in the mood for a worthwhile workshop project, here is one that will challenge you—and your family will end up with a piece of Colonial furniture to last a lifetime.

The Colonial Hutch, design plan S-164 is not a beginner's project. It is one that should be in your workshop files as a plan to work on over a period of time. For instance, the buffet section could be started now and used in your dining room until the hutch or top section is made, finished and placed on top of the buffet. Working on it in this fashion or another to fit your schedule and spare hours is a practical way to complete the beautiful hutch without strain.

IT IS A BEAUTY. Made in traditional pine, or you can do it in any harder wood you want to match or begin a dining room or family room set, it affords plenty of storage and display space. The buffet section includes four drawers and four cabinets big enough for large service pieces as well as special occasion appliances. The drawers are deep enough for boxed silver as well as table linens.

The hutch section adds an ideal background for display of your best china as shown in the illustration. If this piece is used in a combined living-room area the open shelves could also serve other display purposes.

The Sketchbook design plan provides complete material and parts lists. All shaped parts are shown in scale squared outlines to give you accurate cutting guides. Detail diagrams make perfectly clear all construction and assembly, particularly on close fitting such as doors and drawers.

Hutch width, over-all, is just over 5 feet; height about 7 feet.

TO OBTAIN plans, specify S-164 and send 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif., 90812.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Tahoe's Blue Beauty May Fade

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

LAKE TAHOE is in danger of losing its beautiful sky-blue color, a Berkeley physician says.

The threat: that highly treated domestic-sewage, rich in dissolved nutrients, will turn the lake into a dull-gray, highly mineralized body of water.

Highly treated domestic sewage contains nutrients such as nitrates, phosphates and perhaps vitamins and hormones, says Dr. Harold M. Erickson, deputy director of the California State Department of Health.

Some large Swiss lakes already have been turned from blue to dull gray as a result of sewage discharge, Dr. Erickson reports.

THE MYSTERIOUS case of the golfer whose skin broke out with a rash whenever he played golf has been solved.

The victim, a 51-year-old man, proved to be sensitive to a fungicide called thiram, used to spray the course's greens.

Dr. Walter B. Shelley, Philadelphia dermatologist, reports in the AMA Journal that the victim's right hand always was more extensively afflicted with an eczematous itchy eruption than was the rest of his body. Explanation: The man used his right hand to pick up the golf ball.

The patient improved after treatment with a cortisone-like drug but didn't completely recover until he stopped going to the golf course.

RESEARCHERS may have found a new way to detect stomach cancer: increased activity of an anzyme in gastric juice.

The enzyme is b-glucuronidase.

New York investigators found increased activity of the enzyme in 30 of 32 patients with stomach cancer. But in persons without stomach cancer, comparable enzyme activity was noted in only four of 81.

SOUND WAVES near ultrasonic frequencies can relieve certain sight defects when carefully applied to the eyes, a Japanese eye doctor has found.

The waves cause a slight heating in the retinal circulation, to lead to a more normal tension of the eye's accommodation muscle. This muscle, the cillary, shows abnormal tension in some forms of nearsightedness and farsightedness.

SUDDEN, excruciating headache—so severe it mimics a stroke—has turned up as a side effect of the anti-depression drug Nardil in at least five persons. Two University of Pennsylvania psychiatrists say the headaches were followed by nausea, sweating and sensitivity to light.

USE OF A medicated cleansing pad can help in the daytime treatment of acne, a California doctor says.

Dr. Harry L. Roth, Daly City, reporting in California Medicine, says the pads step up the speed of response to standard acne treatment.

The pads, trade-named Therapads, do away with the inconvenience of frequently using medicated soaps at school or at work. The pads are impregnated with a lotion that cleanses excess oiliness from the skin and exerts a mild drying effect.

CAPSULES: Smoking and poor oral hygiene may contribute to the development of trench mouth in young adults, a study of Harvard students indicates. . . . An anti-arthritis drug 75 times more powerful than cortisone is being tested, New Jersey researchers disclose. . . . British researchers are experimenting with two new drugs to control high blood pressure: Envacar and Vatensol. . . .

A new experimental drug known only by the code name MJ 1997 has fear-reducing properties. . . . A new sulfa drug—Sonilyn—is proving effective in the treatment of chronic urinary tract infections, two doctors report in Western Medicine. . . . A new oral antibiotic—cloxacillin—appears to be superior to the older drug oxacillin for the treatment of penicillin-resistant staph germs, University of Washington doctors report in Clinical Pharmacology and Therapeutics.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

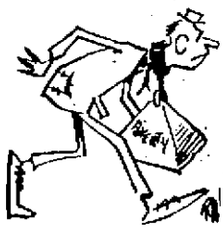

The College Look

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Are today's college graduates doing better than those of yesterday?

ANSWER: Ward Stewart of the U. S. Office of Education sought the opinions of 15 major companies which year after year recruit college graduates.

Spokesmen for these companies agreed that recent graduates have a better education than those of 10 and 20 years ago, but are less mature and less self-confident—and less willing to work hard to get ahead.

QUESTION: To what extent are poverty and lack of education related?

ANSWER: James N. Morgan, professor of economics, recently wrote a report, "Poverty in America," which was presented to the House Education and Labor Committee by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center.

He reported that the heaviest millstone about the neck of the poor is their lack of formal education.

"If the head of the family never went beyond eighth grade and the family also lives in the South," said Professor Morgan, "the chances are as high as six out of 10 that the family will be poor."

QUESTION: Should a high school senior be discouraged because his application for admission to Harvard has been turned down?

ANSWER: A student who has made at least average grades in high school is always welcome at many good colleges.

If you're having trouble placing your youngster in a college or university, contact College Admissions Center, 610 Church St., Evanston, Ill., a nonprofit organization which specializes in solving exactly this problem.

BLANCHE R. BROWN, art historian, who lectures at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, is author of "FIVE CITIES: AN ART GUIDE TO ATHENS, ROME, FLORENCE, PARIS, LONDON" (Doubleday, $6.95).

IT WASN'T empty rhetoric when Horace Greeley said "Go West, young man." The great newspaper editor journeyed from New York to San Francisco in the summer of 1859 and knew whereof he spoke in his advice to the lads of his day. "AN OVERLAND JOURNEY" (Knopf, $5.95) is a lively account of his trip across the continent.

Greeley was not only a sprightly reporter; he observed places and people with a sharp eye; he let little about the morals and mores of settlers, gamblers, miners, Chinese laborers and Indians escape his notice. He makes readers feel both the breathtaking beauty of the untamed west and the agonies of traveling in the overland stage. Bleeding Kansas and its internal strife over the slavery issue; the Mormon settlements of Utah; the gold camps in Colorado; our own California felt the presence of the giant of journalism and he has much to say about them all.

He visits Osawatomie, Kan., John Brown's home town; there, to be known as a free-state man (anti-slavery) "was to live in nightly and well-grounded apprehension of robbery, arson and murder. The pro-slavery settlements in the neighborhood were strong and malignant."

He describes the slaughter of the buffalo in the heart of the buffalo region; "the stages from the west that met us here . . . reports the sight of millions . . . A company of Poke's Peakers killed 13 at this point . . . eight were killed yesterday by simply stampeding a herd and driving them over a high creek bank where so many broke their necks." The "flesh of this wild ox" is not to his liking; it is "tough and not juicy."

He pays tribute "to the marvelous bounty and beauty of the forests of this whole mountain region" at Yosemite. To him the Sierra Nevadas "far surpass" the Alps "in the wealth and grace of their trees."

And would you like to know where our modern-day Chambers of Commerce got their inspiration? Listen to Greeley on nature's bounty in the Sacramento Valley: "Indian corn not less than 20 feet high; squashes like brass kettles, and watermelons of the size of buckets are but average samples."

RESTIF de la Bretonne's "LES NUITS DE PARIS" (Random House, $5.95) gives us a series of short vignettes of the ever-fascinating French capital on the eve of the French Revolution and in its early stages. Restif, more noted for novels with a pornographic tinge, presents portraits of people with a pen much in the manner of Hogarth with a brush. It is not the governing class, so soon to be overthrown, that interests Restif as much as the common people, kind but rough, oppressed but vibrant with vitality.

Restif writes of juvenile delinquents of the 1790s, who will soon grow into the mobs that insinuated themselves into the Revolution; excesses do not prevent Restif from understanding the need for overthrow of the oppressive ruling class. Streetwalkers, laundresses, ragwomen, grave robbers, blind men, mad dogs and billiard players, all are grist for Restif's mill. Murders and executions, these were a major part of Paris life in Restif's day, and in snapshot style he makes them read like today's newspaper.

The Many Faces of Liz Taylor

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

AT 32, Elizabeth Taylor has become one of history's most controversial glamour girls, despised and reviled by many and admired and adored by still countless others.

It seems only yesterday that this raven - tressed beauty wore knee-length stockings, bows and lace as the epitome of adolescent innocence in such wholesome films as "National Velvet" and "Lassie."

She seemed to grow up over night and did a heap of living, and, in her case, made a heap of headlines in the time most women are just finding out what life's all about.

The many faces and many lives of this unusual woman and celebrity are revealed in "ELIZABETH TAYLOR (Her Life, Her Loves, Her Future)" by Ruth Waterbury (Appleton-Century, $4.95).

Author Waterbury, long-time newshen and member of Louella Parson's staff since World War II, has known Elizabeth Taylor since she made her movie debut in 1945.

In straightforward, but sympathetic language she details Liz's five marriages, her many romances, the tragedies of her young life and delves deeply into the woman's inner personality.

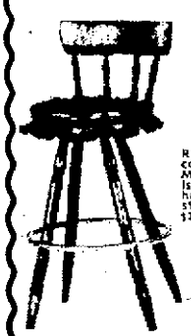

This book contains all the glamour of a Hollywood premiere and is a searching testimony of the agony of living eternally in the limelight.

New Lasting Finish

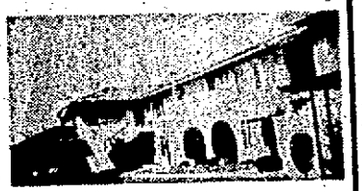

Flexon is an extremely tough and flexible spray-on coating that applies to any exterior surface—wood, masonry, concrete, metal and other common building surfaces. Applied rapidly with special, high-pressure spray equipment by highly-skilled craftsmen, Flexon presents a uniform sand-finish texture that covers surface defects and enhances the appearance of structures, new and old. Flexon is 20 times thicker than paint, yet costs little more than a good paint job.

Insulates and Weatherproofs!

Flexon contains Fiberglas, asbestos, perlite, polyester and mica which provide a substantial amount of thermal insulation. As a result, Flexon is a more effective fire retardant than most surface finishes. It is equal to four inches of rock wool between walls, thereby keeping temperatures uniform throughout the year. Flexon contains properties which prevent cracking, corrosion, dry rot and dampness. It is extremely adhesive, durable and water repellent.

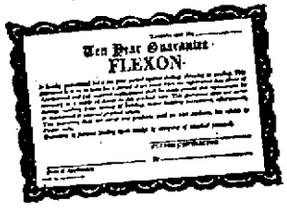

WISEST OF ALL IMPROVEMENT INVESTMENTS

This Long Beach apartment house will withstand the sun and salt air for years. You may spend hundreds of dollars for an ordinary exterior paint job . . . yet in 2 or 3 years the work has to be done again, with all its expense, confusion, mess. A Flexon exterior will last for 10 to 15 years . . . yet is applied with a minimum of fuss and trouble. Your building stays lovely, year after year.

Magic Touch of a Brilliant Button

By Ruth C. Ikerman

WHEN a beautiful modern washing machine and drier came into the home, the housewife put aside the big hamper in which she had formerly stored her dirty clothes.

She instructed the family to drop dirty clothes directly into the gleaming white mechanical whirling box in which she would soon have the clothes clean again, by the magic touch of a brilliant button.

Soon the clothes were clean and dry, But she still needed that big clothes hamper. Now she had to have a place to store the clean clothes, waiting for her to find time to iron them. Officially the dirty clothes box now became the clean clothes box. For wash day progress had just brought the inevitable day of ironing a little closer.

DEEP IN her heart the housewife knows wash day is wash day in whatever generation, but it is a joy to see the new things which make it easier. Each month brings word of some new fabric which doesn't require much ironing.

Or the housewife hears of a new development in irons which decreases the time necessary to spend on pressing fabrics. All of this contributes to the happiness of the housewife, and the ultimate freedom of the hamper.

For when the old-clothes hamper is permanently free of both dirty clothes and clean clothes, it can be used for more interesting adventures. Think of what a good place it is to store books until the book cases can be built in the new den.

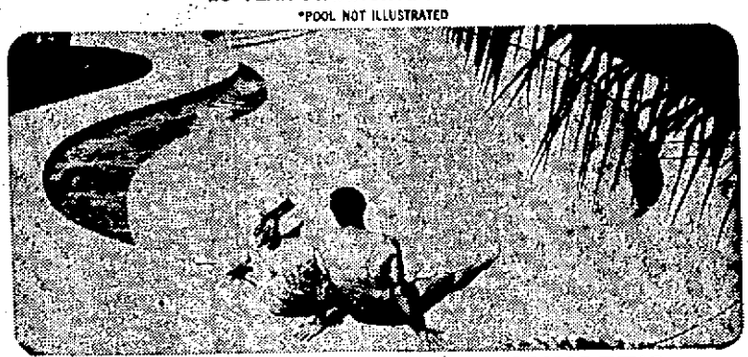

A HAMPER makes an ideal place to store the children's toys, teaching them neatness by making it easy to lift the lid and put them inside when they are through playing with them.

Covered with a serape from a trip to Mexico or a linen cloth showing vacation area bought as a souvenir it makes a wonderful place to hide the rocks and maps picked up on a motor trip.

Wash day progress is bound to bring not only more freedom to the housewife, but new avenues of interest and pleasure for the trusty old standby, the wash-day hamper.

You Ask We Answer

By Hastin

Q. Why is the ocean called "Davey Jones's locker?" M.V.

A. "Davy Jones" is a sailor's term for the supposed evil spirit of the sea; the locker is his seaman's chest, the place where he keeps things. To go to Davy Jones's locker therefore means to drown or to be buried at sea or to go to the bottom of the sea. Many guesses have been made about the origin of the name. "Jones" may be a corruption of Jonah, name of the prophet who was thrown into the sea. "Davy" may have evolved from "duffy" or "duppy," names used by some Negroes for a ghost and especially for a "haunting spirit" of the dead.

Q. Who decides what particular pronunciation of a word is given first choice in a dictionary? C.T.

A. A dictionary publisher usually sends out questionaires to selected lists of people, such as college presidents, teachers of speech and of English, lawyers, public speakers, and linguists, asking their preferences. Sometimes there may prove to be several different pronunciations of a word in use in different parts of the country. The editorial board makes the final choice as to which pronunciation is listed first.

Q. Where was the zero (symbol 0) first used? H.M.

A. The Babylonians were the first to invent a symbol for zero (about 500 B.C.) but the symbol we use was apparently invented by the Hindus about twelve or fifteen hundred years ago. The word zero comes from the Arabic sifr, the Arabian translation of the Hindu word sunya, meaning void or empty. A sign for nothingness was also invented by the Mayas of Guatemala and Yucatan.

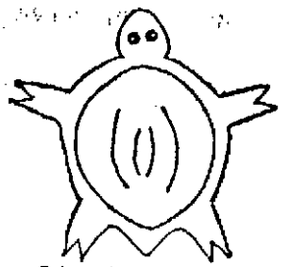

Q. How many years does it take for wood to become petrified?—J. P.

A. The amount of time varies, for there are other important factors such as the type of wood and the type of chemical solution permeating it. Wood that has been saturated by mineralizing solutions for a few decades may become somewhat petrified, while logs that have lain in the ground for greater lengths of time may hardly change.

Q. How far away can the lights on top of the Empire State Building be seen? A.J.

A. The four revolving beacons on the 90th floor cast beams of light that are visible 85 to 95 miles away in seven Atlantic Coast states. Each beacon produces 150-million candlepower.

Felt turtles can march in a parade at children's party.

Turtles Go to a Party

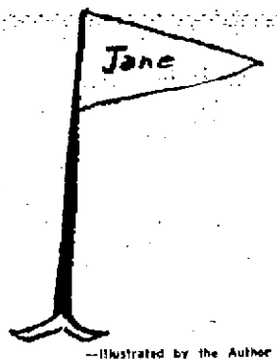

By Elsa DeBra

EVEN turtles will come out of hibernation to join in the frivolity of a children's party. Let them come, lots of them. Let them parade down the center of the table while the little guests eat their refreshments, or make a slow dash to hide in an exotic jungle greenery arrangement placed at the center.

And you may well be proud, because you've made these turtles yourself, from colored felt, cut by pattern (see illustration) and decorated with sequin eyes. You've glued half an English walnut shell to their backs and taped an up-right tooth-pick banner bearing a child's name onto the hard shell.

The felt pieces should be slightly larger than the walnut shell, to make gluing easy.

For rattling interest you could encase a tiny marble or a few beads under the hard shell.

—Illustrated by the Author

California's Sword of Damocles

Earthquake danger is constant in California and the damage that can be wrought in seconds may be seen in 1933 photo of Long Beach Jefferson Junior High School.

By Vera Williams

IF YOU LIVE in California, you can't escape the danger of earthquakes. Temblors are the Golden State's sword of Damocles.

Earthquakes are caused by the very forces responsible for this state's magnificent scenery.

These facts are emphasized in "Earthquake Country" by Robert Iacopi (Sunset Book by Lane Book Co., $5.95), believed to be the most complete book on the subject available to the layman. In his foreword, Dr. Charles F. Richter, Caltech seismologist, calls it "a factually sober—and sobering—book."

IACOPI points out that California is part of the circum-Pacific seismic belt responsible for 80 per cent of the world's earthquakes. All parts of this belt are jolted annually by major and minor shocks. Other spots around the Pacific Basin—such as the Aleutian Islands and Japan—may have more earthquakes than California, but the West Coast is hit by thousands of shocks each year—500 of which are large enough to be felt by many people. Earthquakes of destructive magnitude have occurred in California on an average of once a year for the past 50 years.

Despite public attention concentrated on recent earthquakes, California has had only three "monster" earthquakes during recorded history—1857, in Southern California; 1872, in Owens Valley and 1906, along the Northern California coast. During the past 50 years, only the 1952 Kern County quake has approached these in size. The Santa Barbara 1925 earthquake and the Long Beach 1933 earthquake were relatively small, according to the author, but because they were in population centers they caused heavy loss of life and property damage.

THE HISTORY of California earthquakes started in 1769, when the expedition of Gaspar de Portola, camped on the Santa Ana River near the present town of Olive, was shaken by a huge earthquake. The river was thrown out of its channel, and men and horses were knocked to the ground.

The state is broken into a series of crustal blocks separated by faults—great fractures that form lines of weakness in the masses of rock at the earth's surface. Due to pressures that build up from below the surface, these blocks are elevated, tilted, folded and depressed along the fault lines until they resemble the pattern of an old brick street. And every time two of these blocks suddenly shift past each other along a fault, California has an earthquake.

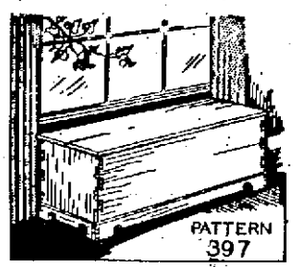

LONGEST AND most publicized is the 650-mile San Andreas Fault which extends from midway between San Francisco and Eureka to south of El Centro. However there are many others: Hayward, Sierra Nevada, White Wolf, Garlock, Santa Ynez, Newport-Inglewood, Elsinore, San Jacinto and Imperial Faults.

The volume is well illustrated with photographs, maps, diagrams. Photographs include Jefferson Junior High School, Long Beach, after being wrecked in the 1933 quake.

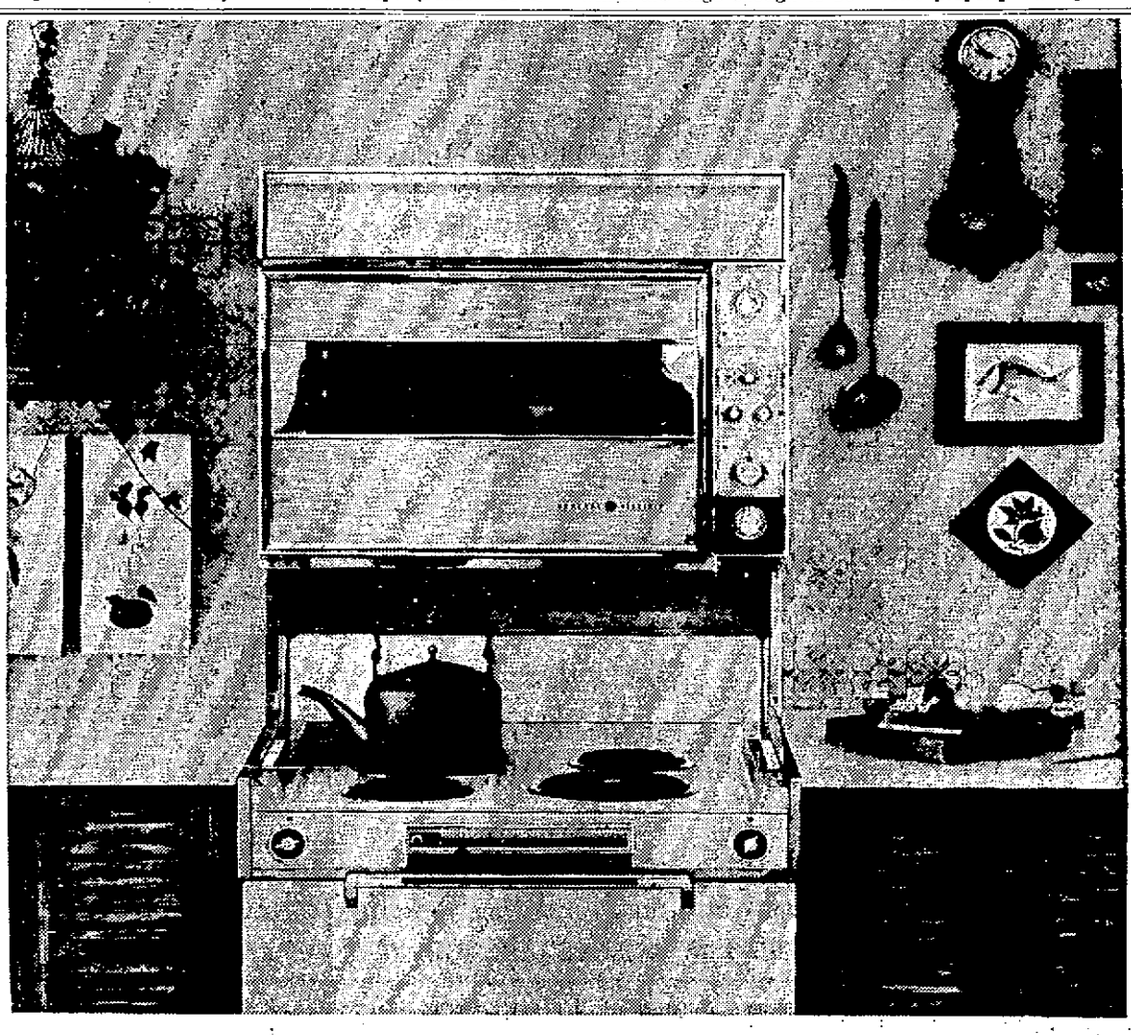

To Install

Long Beach Camera Guild will install new officers Wednesday evening at Jones Restaurant, 120 E. 5th St. Dinner at 6:30 p.m. will precede the installation. Reservations may be made with Lillian Garton, telephone GA 2-9312.

You Make It

This blanket chest, of pine or cedar, has a removable top tray for storing linens. It is a copy of an old dower chest later called a hope chest. Pattern No. 397, which gives material list, actual-size cutting guides and directions, is 35c. There is even a guide for making the big dove-tail corner joints. This pattern also is one of four in the Simple Furniture Propect Packet No. 62 for $1. Send orders to: Pattern Dept., Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, Bedford Hills, N.Y.

When you remodel, why go half-way? The bright ideas are All-Electric.

An oven that cleans itself! Yes, there really is one today. And of course, it's electric—designed with a special, ultra-high heat setting that literally dissolves every bit of soil no matter how baked-on. Can you imagine a more welcome work-saver!

All the really new, exciting ideas are electric. It seems old-fashioned to remodel any other way, especially with today's low cost of electricity.

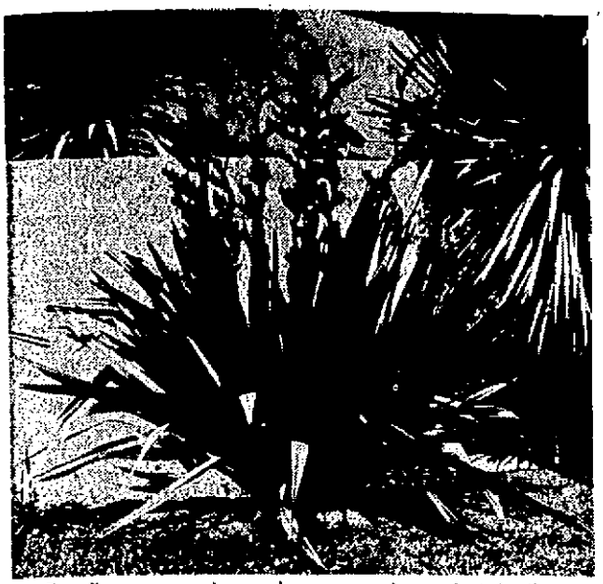

Clean, flameless all-electric improvements can make your present home as modern and comfortable as a new Medallion Home, the symbol of better living now and lasting value in the all-electric future.

New Zealand Flax for Foliage

For flower arranging and as a specimen plant in the garden, New Zealand flax fills a need for foliage.

By Joe Littlefield

FLORAL arrangers find New Zealand flax foliage excellent for background uses and the wide leaves hold up well.

This tropical effect plant has no branches, or small leaves. The foliage grows up from base of plant. This plant must not be set too deep in the ground and its soil area must not be continually moist or fatal rot may develop in the crown. In planting, be sure to set the top of root ball level or even slightly above the level of the surrounding soil to avoid such trouble.

The mass of stiff foliage sets this plant in a specimen class which means that it may be used singly, such as in front of a picture window, or one plant may be set out among different kinds of tropical effect shrubs.

WHEN IT HAS been in the ground five years or longer, it will surprise you and reward you with tall branched spikes, containing very small red blossoms at the tip end of the side branches. When dry, they become a very useful dry decoration arrangement material for church, or public hall, or the tall spikes may be cut shorter to fit a room of your home.

For best start and growth, prepare the soil before planting. Mix two parts of coarse mulch material such as premoistened peat moss, leaf mold or planter mix, with two parts of soil dug to make the hole for the plant.

Once the plant becomes established, water deeply but don't keep the soil damp.

GARDEN CLUBS

Patios and outdoor living will be the subject of J. Paul Walker, horticulturist with Long Beach Unified School District for a number of years, at a meeting of Dominguez-Lincoln Village Garden Club at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Dominguez Building, 21156 S. Santa Fe Ave. Hostesses will be Marge Wallace and Helen Angspurger. Refreshments and a plant table are planned.

"Begonia Care" will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. Jean Kerlin of Altadena at a meeting of Long Beach Parent Chapter, American Begonia Society, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Linden Hall, 208 Linden Ave. A plant table is planned. The public is invited.

Growing of shade plants will be discussed at a meeting of North Long Beach Branch, American Begonia Society, at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the social room of Community Savings & Loan Association, 3901 N. Atlantic Ave. A plant table will be provided. Visitors are welcome.

Glad Show

Southern California Gladiolus Society will present its 18th annual Gladiolus Show next Saturday and Sunday at Los Angeles State and County Arboretum, 301 N. Baldwin Ave., Arcadia. Hours will be from 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. Stanley Foote of Alhambra, show chairman, pointed out that all growers, whether or not they are members of the society, are invited to enter show-worthy gladiolus blooms. Entries will be accepted on Friday until 6:30 p.m. and from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday.

Commercial growers will exhibit in the show and demonstrations of corsage-making and flower arranging will be offered. There is no admission charge.

TRAVEL—RESORTS

Hawaii Rolls Out Summer Aloha Mat

By Dorothy Gale

THE ALOHA MAT is out for California visitors in Hawaii this summer. Many will be Hawaii first-timers.

Fortunatey, low-cost travelers can now book budget accommodations on Waikiki Beach, in the nearby Ala Moana section or out on Windward Oahu.

For example, there's the new Pagoda Hotel and Floating Restaurant just a short stroll from Ala Moana Park, with its inviting long stretch of sands, free tennis courts and banyan-shaded picnic grounds.

This is the same park where for less than $1 you can enter and spend half a day at Ulu Mau, a reconstructed Hawaiian village with poi-pounding, lauhala-weaving and lei-making demonstrated by natives. Lectures are also given on Polynesian customs and culture and you see taro and other Hawaiian plants growing by the lagoon hemmed with hala trees.

SHOULD YOU be staying at the Pagoda Hotel, in one of the attractive $7.50-per-day completely-equipped studio housekeeping apartments, you might even catch your own fish at Ala Moana and then cook it yourself afterwards on your electric range.

Breadfruit, papayas, mangoes and coconuts are also available in this attractive oceanside park, but for purely decorative reasons. You'll be able to forage for same, however, in the nearby giant Ala Moana Shopping Center which stocks everything from Hawaiian, Oriental and Mainland type fruits, vegetables, meats and fish to fascinating merchandise and fashions from around the world.

Another good bet for economy-minded vacationers is one of the completely equipped housekeeping cottages at the new Sacred Falls Resort on Windward Oahu. This is located in one of the most lushly tropical and peaceful areas on the whole island, just 45 minutes from Honolulu and 10 minutes from the big new Polynesian Cultural Center at Laie.

SACRED FALLS itself provides magnificent hiking into country where you can pick your own guavas and mountain apples.

Therefore, if it's an unspoiled "native Hawaiian" atmosphere you're after, still close to grocery stores and a couple of good, modestly priced restaurants, you might want to write the Sacred Falls Resort at P. O. Box 2217, Honolulu, for the lowdown on accommodations.

Singles start at $7 daily and doubles begin at $9. You can comfortably get three into a cottage for $10.50 daily, four for $13, and some family units for five are to be had for $15 daily.

There's a swimming pool, not to mention terrific ocean swimming and surf casting with a private right of way to the beach.

OUTDOOR barbecues, daily maid service and a completely informal atmosphere which allows you to live in your beachwear or dungarees and muumuus from sunrise to sunset are also big draws for Californians bent on casual, outdoor enjoyment.

Riding stables and a golf course are just minutes away.

But if it's round-the-clock action you want, Waikiki Beach has it. Something's doing from the first early morning catamaran sail to the noonday free outdoor hula shows to the evening Hawaiian cocktail serenades and Polynesian style happy hours under the palms.

RIGHT IN THIS booming and cosmopolitan three-mile section, you can choose from 150 resort hotels and apartment-hotels, many of them from $7 to $9 per day.

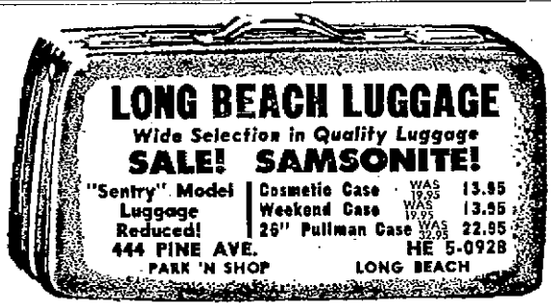

There are luaus twice a week, free Polynesian shows every night at 7 o'clock in the International Market Place, and scores of restaurants and nightclubs specializing in Hawaiian, Oriental and European foods and entertainment.

All in all, The Aloha State never looked better or easier for Californians to reach than it does this summer!

—Hawaii Visitors Bureau Photo

Waimea Bay on windward Oahu is site of Captain Cook's third landing in Hawaii. Nearby is an old Hawaiian temple. Sacred Falls resort is only a few miles away.

Travel by the Book

HERE are some important new books on travel:

The 1964 Mobil Travel Guide, just published, lists 16,616 hotels, motels, restaurants, cafeterias and resorts, an increase of 1,246 establishments over last year's edition.

The guide, completely revised, comes in six regional volumes: for the Northwestern States, Middle Atlantic States, Great Lakes area, Southwest and South Central area, Northwest and Great Plains States, and California and the West. Published by Simon and Schuster, it is available at most book and paperbook outlets and Mobil service stations at $1.50 per volume.

One of the best guides for travelers planning to visit the Orient is "Seeing Japan," published by Japan's Mainichi Newspapers and distributed by Japan Air Lines.

The 1964 edition's 208 pages contain 50 chapters. There are hundreds of illustrations, many in full color. To obtain the book, send $1 (which includes postage and handling) to Japan Air Lines, Box 2721, San Francisco, Calif.

Flower Cruise

Thousands of flowers, including an exotic variety of South Seas blooms and greenery, will comprise a veritable floating greenhouse aboard the SS Monterey when the Matson liner sails on a South Pacific flower arranging cruise this summer.

More than 5,000 flowers will be placed on the ship for the 12-day cruise which sails from Los Angeles Aug. 7.

The flower arranging course will be the third of its kind in the past three years.

Passenger "students" will receive personal and group instruction in basic flower arranging.

Canada Booklets

Four "slim-jim" booklets describing Canadian national parks in the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia are available free to vacationers planning a trip to western Canada. Illustrations show the sparkling glaciers and emerald-green lakes of the Rockies and forest-rimmed lakes of prairie parks.

A fifth folder, "Canada's Icefield Highway," supplies maps and points of interest on the spectacular "high-road" through Banff and Jasper National Parks. For copies, write the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada, asking for the western national parks "slim-jims five."

Don't tell the people who are going earlier,

but September is the month for Scandinavia.

It's the golden month. The fjords lie mirror-still. Danish villages drowse in the sun. Swedish lakes and forests glow with color.

In Copenhagen, Oslo and Stockholm the curtain goes up on a new season. Plays, concerts, the Royal Danish Ballet. The Scandinavian Design Festival shows you what the artists and craftsmen have been doing all year.

The carefree way to enjoy it all is to take an SAS tour. There's a dozen to choose from.

For example, in three weeks you can visit Bergen, and see the fjord country by motorcoach and steamer. Then on to Oslo, Stockholm, Copenhagen. Stopping off to see a hundred interesting places on the way. With plenty of time for your own activities, or just to take it easy.

A trip like that costs as little as $1198 from Los Angeles. Complete. Transpolar air fare, hotels, meals and sightseeing all taken care of.

Talk to your SAS travel agent. Or mail the coupon for full details. Come to Scandinavia in September. You'll never forget it.

Can't get away until later? Try one of these.

The S. S. Hanseatic 4-Continent Cruise sails from New York on Oct. 17th, or from Port Everglades on Oct. 20th. It takes you to the Canary Islands, Casablanca, and all around the Mediterranean. Fly back on SAS, with stopovers in Paris and Copenhagen. Or add on a special land tour. 37 days from only $1246 from Los Angeles. A real bargain.

Or how about The Middle East? In 21 days you can see Cairo, Beirut, Damascus, Jerusalem, Bethlehem, Haifa, plus Istanbul, Athens and Rome. You'll come back steeped in history and warm Mediterranean sun. With baggage bulging with loot from the bazaars. Monthly departures, $1536 inclusive from Los Angeles.

Or go Round The World, and top every other travel experience. Cairo, New Delhi, Agra, Benares, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Tokyo are only a few of the fascinating places you'll see, SAS arranges everything. Choice of many itineraries, with year-round departures, from a 66-day tour for $5082 to a 23-day trip (yes, it's possible) for $1818, inclusive from Los Angeles.

TRAVEL WORLD

Hawaii: Many Ways to Get There

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

EVERYONE knows that it's easy to hop a Pan American or United Airlines plane, or book passage on the Matson liner Lurline (if it isn't already full) for a vacation in Hawaii.

LISA KARSON (left), queen of Scottsdale's Parada del Sol, takes a break while riding through desert near Phoenix.

Hawaii is called "the Crossroads of the Pacific" for very good reason: it is also an important port of call for most luxury liners sailing out of Los Angeles for the South Seas or around the world.

You name the time you wish to go.

For instance: Matson's liners Monterey and Mariposa sail regularly out of Los Angeles. Beginning in August, a number of "special interest" cruises have been set up that will have appeal to those with specific hobbies, and each calls for a stop in Honolulu.

THESE "SPECIALS" include: Monterey, starting Aug. 7, flower arranging; Mariposa, Aug. 31, photography; Monterey, Sept. 21, golf; Mariposa, Oct. 16, bridge; Monterey Nov. 6, navigation; and Mariposa, Nov. 30, art.

P & O Orient Lines has six cruises during the remainder of the year out of Los Angeles whose itineraries include Hawaii; Oronsay, July 5; Arcadia, Aug. 23; Oriana, Sept. 9; Iberia, Sept. 26; Orsova, Oct. 21; and Oronsay, Nov. 10.

American President Lines' President Cleveland puts out of Los Angeles Harbor Oct. 25, the President Roosevelt, Nov. 8, and the President Wilson, Nov. 22, with Honolulu the first port of call.

THE LUXURY ships of other lines also call here frequently. One of these is the Statendam, 24,000-ton transatlantic cruise ship of the Holland-American Line, which puts out of Los Angeles Harbor Oct. 6 and will make Honolulu its first port of call on a cruise through the South Seas and the Orient.

Many travelers whose favorite destination is Hawaii already are talking about Matson's Makahiki Festival cruise which leaves San Francisco Oct. 30 and returns to Los Angeles Nov. 13. Southern Californians wishing to make the trip may leave Los Angeles at 8:15 a.m. Oct. 30 aboard the Southern Pacific's crack Daylight and arrive in the Bay City in time to make connections — compliments of Matson.

VANCOUVER'S International Festival, scheduled throughout July, will have a French accent.

From an opening burst of symphonic music under the baton of a French conductor to the bounce of "Zizi and Her 40 Parisians," the influence of France will add new zest to the popular British Columbia vacation city.

Among other Festival events will be a French version of "The Merchant of Venice" July 9-11.

A FORMER Southland newsman, Dutch Kannegieter, has been appointed public relations officer, Pacific states, for British Overseas Airways Corp. He will be responsible for BOAC's public relations activities in the 11 western states, including Hawaii and Alaska, and will be based at 237 Post St. in San Francisco.

Kannegieter, 28, was formerly a reporter for the Santa Ana Register, the Anaheim Daily Bulletin, and the Pasadena Independent Star-News. His wife and child, now residing in Burbank, shortly will join him in San Francisco.

WEEKEND GADABOUTS:

Auto fanciers who have preserved or restored their Model A Fords with loving care will exhibit them at Fallbrook, in San Diego County's avocado country, on June 14 —All-California Model A Day. The 30 best cars will get trophies.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"In traveling through Europe and the Near East, will I have trouble plugging in American travel irons, radios, electric razors, etc?"

PLENTY of trouble. There are travel irons that take all currents. But radios need converters and razors can be a problem. I send the pressing out. Carry a transistor radio. And advise friends to get battery-powered razors.

"Do we need special car insurance if we drive into Mexico? If so, how much?"

YOU DO. Your U.S. insurance doesn't cover you in Mexico. You want the usual fire, theft and public liability. The U.S. side of every border town is loaded with insurance agents. Insurance costs something between $1 and $2 per day. You can buy in advance by mail by writing Dan Sanborn, McAllen, Tex.—they also send you an excellent travel package on Mexico free.

". . . the cheapest way to fly to Europe."

THE ONLY cut-rate airline on the Atlantic routes that I know of is Icelandic Airlines. Another cost-cutter is to take a cross-country bus to Boston and fly out of there.

"Are there any islands in the South Pacific that are relatively unspoiled? No tourists. And how could you get there?"

THERE must be a hundred or more that don't get tourists. The Marquesas. The Cook group. The Tonga Islands. The Australs. The Gambierms. These are all Polynesian people—same as Tahiti and Hawaii. Besides the high islands there are low-lying atolls by the hundreds, many of them with people.

I'd base on Tahiti and get passage on one of the schooners that go to these places to pick up copra. There is one local airline out of Tahiti that goes into one of the atolls on the Tuamotus. Other than that, there are only the copra boats.

"Traveling on a freighter (Norwegian) what would you tip? To whom?"

I WOULD TIP 50 cents a day to the table steward and the same to the room steward for one person. For a couple, 75 cents. Tip at the end of the trip unless it's 30 days or more. For that long, tip about halfway through — just before you make a port where the stewards may need some walk around money.

"Can you suggest a hotel in Manila?"

THE MANILA HOTEL. Not luxurious but the best there is.

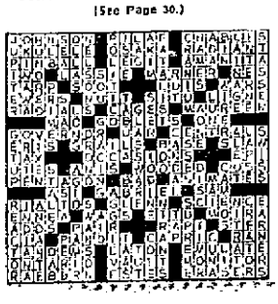

"We plan to ride Vespas through Europe and would like to know the cost of gas."

VARIES in different countries. But average is 70 to 80 cents U.S. per gallon. But on a scooter that shouldn't bother you.

"Is the Caribbean too hot in August? We would like it for a honeymoon."

TEMPERATURES are in the eighties. I didn't find it too hot in summer. And that is the time the hotels offer very good rates. Particularly in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands for honeymoon couples. Write Caneel Bay Plantation, St. John, Virgin Islands for special rates.

It's Work, but It's Rewarding

Stanley Holloway, the highly successful British comedian, declares making people laugh is hard work, but rewarding.

STANLEY HOLLOWAY, the wry-faced British comic, has devoted his professional life to laughter. "It's hard work to make people laugh," he says, "but it's more rewarding than anything else an actor can do."

Holloway is currently employing his laugh-evoking talents in the role of Alfred P. Doolittle, the London dustman who can't afford morals because he is one of the undeserving poor. Doolittle is one of George Bernard Shaw's favorite characters, and he appears in "My Fair Lady," the Warner Bros. film production of the famous Broadway show.

Doolittle's daughter is played by Audrey Hepburn, while Professor Henry Higgins, the man from whom Doolittle so craftily extorts a five-pound note on behalf of Eliza, is played by Rex Harrison.

HOLLOWAY'S portrayal of Doolittle is a happy reprise of the part he created on Broadway and then repeated in the London production of "My Fair Lady" at the Drury Lane Theatre. Recently he appeared with notable effect in the television series "Our Man Higgins."

Holloway started his career as a seaside concert artist, learning timing and comedy tact by playing to rough and tumble audiences.

"If they liked you, they loved you. If they didn't, they threw things at you — and their aim was uncomfortably accurate."

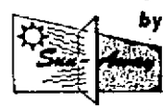

THE COMEDIAN made his London debut in 1919 as Captain Wentworth in "Kissing Time," then appeared in Vincent Youman's musical "Hit the Deck," and became a household name throughout the British Empire as the star of "Coo-Ee."

In "My Fair Lady," Holloway sings and dances two show-stoppers—both by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe. They are "With a Little Bit of Luck" and "Get Me to the Church on Time."

CHRIS KARAMANOS
A New Career

FROM CRIME and crooks to cod and crabs. . . . That, briefly, is the story of Chris Karamanos, youthful assistant manager at Sam's Sea Food restaurant in Surfside.

While in college Chris studied to be a criminologist—a specialist in the scientific detection of crime. During his career as a first lieutenant in the Army, he was attached to its criminal division and helped assemble evidence that convicted lawbreakers. After leaving the Army, Chris decided a restaurant career might be more rewarding, and that's why he's now on the executive staff at Sam's, owned by his uncle, aunt and cousin—Nick, Ruth and Richard Katsaris.

Part of Chris' numerous duties includes escorting arriving guests to the restaurant's large new combined waiting room and cocktail lounge. Called the Hawaiian Village Room, the new facility contains such tropical decorations as waterfalls and grass huts, providing interesting views for children and adults alike.

With its many dining rooms, gift shop, fashion shows and fish market, Sam's Sea Food is a $1 million organization which serves thousands of guests daily and Sunday. A landmark at 16278 Pacific Coast Hwy. since 1923, the restaurant is noted for its generous sea food dinners, priced from $2.35 (rock cod or grilled yellowtail). Among the numerous popular entrees are superb broiled swordfish with amandine sauce, fresh sea bass with lemon butter, fresh halibut meuniere and fresh rainbow trout. A fine new item is the New York steak-Australian lobster combination ($5.25). All include rich clam chowder, impressively large salad, potato, beverage and dessert.

(See Story Inside)

NOMINATED BY HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW

Bernie Stinton Father of Year

Bernie Stinton, of 4509 Briercrest Ave., Lakewood, is an all-around good guy—even his mother-in-law is all for him—and he's been named "Father of the Year."

Even without the high score he got from his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ula Atchinson of 4602 E. 15th St., Long Beach, Bernie, who works for Bell Petroleum, got enough high marks to get the nod for dad of the year.

But Mrs. Atchinson's letter boosting him for the Father's Day choice was the clincher.

"He's one of the best individuals I've ever met in my life, she said.

* * * *

STINTON, similarly gets nothing but accolades from his wife, Genie, and his two children, son, Bernard (Butch), 12, and daughter Teddi, 11.

Aside from the family circle, Stinton has been proving himself a good citizen in the community. For four years, he's been a regular at the MacArthur Elementary School PTA where he serves on the board.

At the Lakewood YMCA where he is a volunteer worker, the staff can't say enough for him.

A Y spokesman said Stinton has introduced programs at the Lakewood Y that have become standard there.

* * * *

FOR INSTANCE, the Bicycle Club. The kids like to ride their bicycles but there's the problem of getting out and cycling in the various spots of interest.

About two years ago Stinton decided the way to handle it was to get a trailer. He donated the trailer so the bikes could be loaded aboard and carried out to the areas where bicycling could be more fun. What's more for two years he's been transporting the kids—boys and girls—out to the open spaces.

Mrs. Maybelle Clark, office manager at the Lakewood Y, said it's "a way Mr. Stinton has with the older people and the youngsters. He suggests a program and wins people over, with his kindness and sense of humor. He has a quiet, calm way of doing things and the kids just love him. His only idea is to do things that are good for the kids."

* * * *

IT WAS THAT WAY with the All Night New Year's Eve party at the Y.

"Some people thought the idea was crazy," said Mrs. Clark. "But he convinced us that we ought to try it and it was so well-supervised and organized that we had large numbers of calls from parents who insisted that we ought to make it an annual event. We did."

The New Year's Eve all-night party was started two years ago and it was the first time some of the youngsters got to stay up all night.

* * * *

STINTON, in addition to his other attributes, is a first class magician and he kept the party going with his magic acts and his patter. "You know, you've got to be quick with some of those youngsters."

The Y has been just one of his activities. "For years he has been in church work, PTA, Indian Guide, Cub and Boy Scout work, too," said Mrs. Atchinson.

"He has been a chaplain, a counselor, a truck-driver, financier and handyman for all these organizations. No grandmother could ask for a son-in-law that great."

He is also interested in what goes on in the city. He attends city council meetings and studies the issues to be acted upon. He stands up and talks on these issues.

* * * *

AT HOME, says his wife, he is a "loving and attractive husband who is understanding and helpful."

Mrs. Stinton also is active in the Lakewood Y and "my husband has been forced to put up with a messy house, dirty dishes and unmade beds on occasion—but he has never complained.

"He often gets his and the children's meals and 'batches' when I have to go to the YWCA camp or out of town with a group."

And said Genie:

"I can't begin to tell you what a tremendous individual he is. He centainly is the father of the year."

THE COVER

A man who has given long hours to youth work, civic and church duties is Bernie Stinton, 4509 Briercrest Ave., Lakewood, named "Father of the Year" in the Long Beach trade area. He is pictured on the cover with his family, son Bernard, 12; Mrs. Stinton and daughter, Teddi, 11.

THANKS, MOM!
Bernie Stinton, Father of the Year, shows his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ula Atchinson, his thanks for the honor. It was Mrs. Atchinson's letter of nomination that gave the Lakewood man the nod from judges.

HELPS WITH COOKING
When Mrs. Bernie Stinton is busy with civic affairs, her husband, the Father of the Year, prepares some of the meals. Here they both are in the kitchen, this time cooking breakfast.

BIG WHEEL AMONG WHEELS
Bernie Stinton, the Father of the Year, devotes much time to youth work. He organizes bicycle trips for youngsters, as shown here.

FOR CASUAL WEAR

Phil Hahn Men's Wear, 5211 E. Second St., for years has been noted for outstanding casual wear. Here is a sample outfit which Dad should appreciate for weekends or after office hours.

THE PERFECT GIFT

Here's a Father's Day gift that Day will appreciate and use all year. Mary Downen of Downen's Lawn & Garden Equipment, 11835 E. Carson St., Artesia, is pointing to the new mower with 18" cut, 2½ H.P. engine, 6 blade reel and all steel construction.

CALLING ALL EGOTISTS

Dad will look mighty trim in this new lightweight worsted, woven in England but fashioned by Louis Roth in California. It will give his ego a field day. This is shown exclusively in Long Beach by Howard Amos, Better Men's Apparel, 120 E. Broadway.

Keep Dad Smartly Dressed

With the "dog days" in the offing, a gift of business wear on Father's Day will please Dad or Grandad the whole summer through. Keyed to comfort as well as to good looks, the updated suits, shirts, ties and hats are smart, light in weight and they incorporate the plus factor of maintaining their crisp look even on the muggiest days.

Take the new business shirts, for instance. Colored and striped shirts have really moved in on the fashion scene in a big way. The stripes vary in width from hairlines to big broad British-type tape stripes.

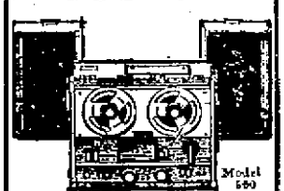

Select the colors he likes grays, tans and yellows to vibrant hues of the same plus burgundies, olives and black stripes.

• • • •

THE SAME assortments are also available in the smart solid colored shirtings with, of course, the exception of black. Other smart solids are soft shades of linen, bamboo and off-white.

Each year there are more half-sleeved business shirts worn and the range of collar styles is even greater than that found in fall shirts due to the increased numbers of low band and bandless collars offered for summer.

Tool Set Ideal for Handyman

If your Dad or Granddad is a putterer, spare time handyman, amateur builder or furniture maker, you can hit the nail on the head with a Father's Day gift of tools.

Putterers and handymen find outlets for their skills in many directions. Some enjoy tinkering with the family car, others may devote their efforts to carpentry, while some spend happy hours repairing or improving boats, cabinets and sundry household items. In any event, few dedicated putterers have all the tools they would like to own.

Amateur car mechanics have a special penchant for wrenches. Wrenches come in full kits complete with carrying cases and in more modest assortments to meet general or specific needs.

SETS OF screwdrivers, ball-pein hammers, pliers and metal working tools are also welcomed by Dads who are happiest when well greased with car lubricants.

All handymen need varied sizes of hammers, screwdrivers, saws, planes, levels, squares, mitre boxes, chisels, mallets, putty knives, sturdy pocket knives and rules.

Probably the most versatile and most popular of all power tools is the quarter-inch drill. These small electric drills can be used for boring holes, sanding, grinding, sawing and polishing. These also do a fine job of car polishing and take much of the arm work out of a "wax job."

MARION WYATT
Overcome Quake, Depression

the old Long Beach Mattress Factory. After four years he felt sufficiently competent to strike out on his own. Wyatt established his Acme Mattress Factory on Anaheim Street in 1932—right where it is today.

The tradition of Horatio Alger reflects a living example in Wyatt; a father who stood on his own feet at 25, the age reached by his son, Curtis Wyatt, today.

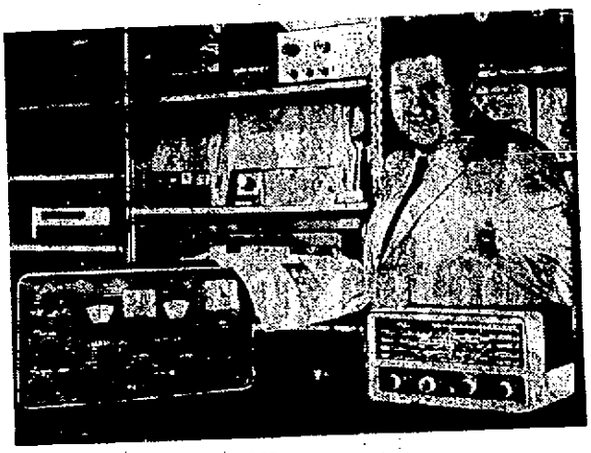

* * * *

IN 1963, the father and son management team stimulated The Acme Mattress Factory to become the largest custom-order mattress business in California, a success which provides employment to 50 people, and boosts the economy by purchasing many hundreds of thousands of dollars in raw materials from suppliers throughout America.

Curtis Wyatt continues in the family business. Between attendance at Occidental College, Curtis spent a semester at Grenoble College in France, living with a French family amid a totally French environment where no English was spoken. He is active in all phases of the Acme enterprise from production to promotion, maintaining an aggressive drive which keeps the business on its toes.

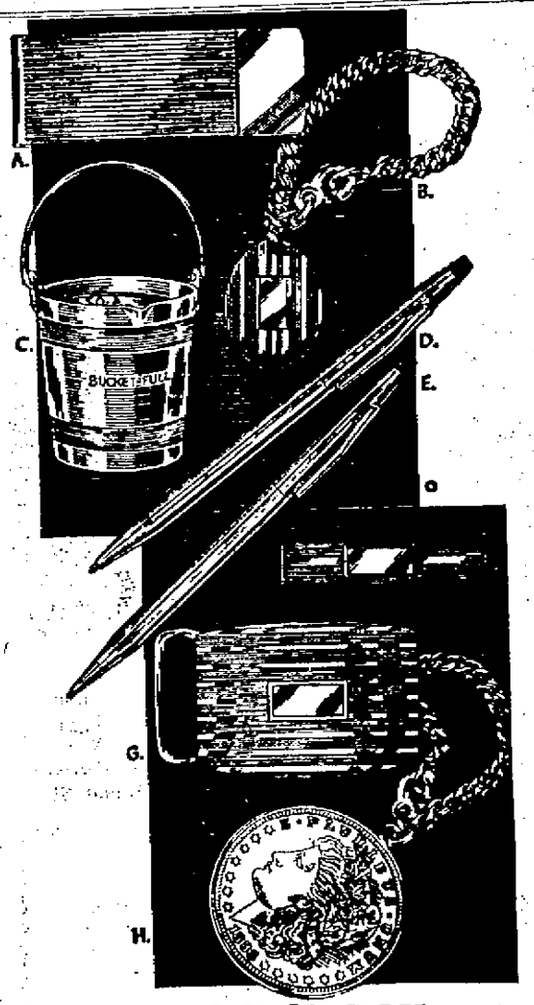

Fine Gifts

Ash trays, smoker's stands, humidors and lighters make fine Father's Day gifts. A box of his favorite cigars hits the spot, too.

LET HIM BE HAM!

Ray Furlong, manager of Acron Arrow's ham and C.B. department, 4686 Long Beach Blvd., suggests that most any father would appreciate a citizen's band radio or some ham equipment.

Right Shoes Put Pep in Dad's Steps

All Dads dig comfortable shoes for Father's Day. No matter where they stand on fancy gadgets and hand-painted ties, on cool leather casuals they stand firm and fashion-right.

The summer crop of leather casual styles is more varied and distinctive than ever, reports Shoe Fashion Service of Leather Industries of America. New styling ideas worked on the moccasin, slipon and tie shoe are interpreted in the most advanced lightweight leather tannages, including smooth, waxy, grained and brushed.

Stylish sires and snappy slipons make a happy hot-weather combination from Dad's Day on. Many of the smartest styles in this category feature strictly-for-show straps or tassel ties. Two colors or textures of leather are used in various ways—as contrasting binding, tassels, or plug (vamp inset).

* * * *

FOR FATHERS who like a foot-hugging shoe, choose a slipon with elasticized side gores.

Through both his lazy and lively hours, the leather moccasin will move with freedom and style. This long-time favorite is available conventionally fashioned of soft glove leather, or in the new waxed leather that adds a dash of difference to the moc's traditional lines.

Hand-stitched moccasin bluchers and mocs with saddle straps of contrasting leather texture or color are other noteworthy variations.

If Dad is an outdoor type who prefers hiking to the hammock and industry to indolence, give him a pair of high-risers or ankle-covering desert boots. In rugged grained and brushed leather textures, as well as soft glove leather, this lightweight footgear will give him comfort, style and protection through the most strenuous summer and winter activities.

* * * *

DAD WILL BE CORRECT color-wise if his gift shoes are in one of the rich brown tones favored this season. Other popular shades include charcoal tan, sand and the natural tannage range of colors.

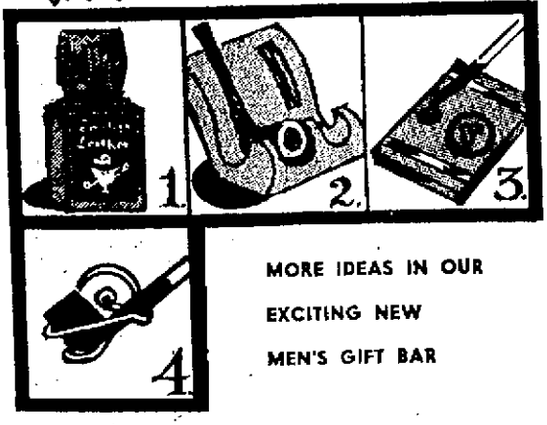

Not sure of Dad's shoe size? One easy answer is to copy the figures inside his latest pair of shoes. The shoe clerk will be happy to decipher them for you. Or—even easier—present Pop with a shoe gift certificate, and give him the added pleasure of choosing his own favorite style.

Sportswear Delights Dads

Dad or Granddad may be an active athlete or a placid porch sitter or he may combine the pleasures of each. In any case, he will enjoy a gift of sportswear this Father's Day.

Styled with cool comfort, smart good looks and practicality in mind, the 1964 array of men's casuals comes in two distinct categories, active sportswear and spectator sportswear.

This year the active sportswear has the "look of the pro." The garments designed for wear while playing golf or tennis, or worn for swimming, surfing, fishing and boating are largely devoid of meaningless gimmicks and strong on practical details that aid the sportsman in his game.

TAKE GOLF CLOTHES, for instance. Golf slacks and shorts, while retaining their slim, trim good looks, have plenty of built-in room for comfort in the seat and at the waist. They also have such added conveniences as tailored-in tee holders and towel straps.

Both knitted and woven golf shirts have expansion swing backs that provide complete freedom of movement. The fabrics also have the benefits of absorptive fibers that soak up perspiration as well as many with easy care washwear factors.

Featherweight golf jackets that can be stowed in the ball pocket of a golf bag also have action-free tailoring and fend off chilly breezes as well as summer showers. Even golf hose have new comfort factors via cushioned soles.

Gifts of He'll Like Leather

From little leathers grow great ideas for Father's Day.

Leather wallets, smoking and bar accessories, sporting equipment, belts, grooming aids and other leather goods —all are elegant items for Dad and easily obtainable, reports Leather Industries of America.

Wafer-thin yet roomy enough for all of Dad's essentials, leather wallets are available in fine-grained or smooth cowhide, steerhide and calfskin. Other favored textures with men are pinseal, pigskin and alligator. In all leathers, there is a color choice of black or brown, with some olive, mahogany and tan. Many leather billfolds boast removable card and photo cases, secret bill compartments and credit card sections.

FOR AN impressive tandem gift, present him with a matching keycase in the same leather as his new wallet. Other useful pocket totables for Pop include glass cases, pocket secretaries, money clips and card cases.

If Dad is a bit of a dandy, he'll appreciate good grooming aids in leather. Fine examples are toilet kits (either zipper or button models compact shoe-shine kits, leather-backed hair and clothes brushes, and handsome jewelry boxes.

Leather tobacco pouches and leather-covered humidors make a thoughtful gift for the father who smokes cigars or a pipe.

Father's Day 1964 occurs, appropriately enough, on June 21, the summer solstice and the longest day of the year. It can also be the happiest day of the year for our Dads and Granddads if they are appropriately honored by their sons and daughters, grandsons and granddaughters.

According to the Father's Day Council, the official slogan of this year's Father's Day will be, "Thanks, Dad—Granddad, Too." Although, at first glance, that phrase may seem terse and trite, what else can be said to these men who have labored so long and hard, sacrificed so much and devoted their thoughts and hours to the maintenance and betterment of their families?

Especially in this Olympic year, youngsters have their current heroes—athletes who are justly honored for triumphs they have worked hard and trained conscientiously to achieve. Dad's and Granddad's victories, though they may seem less spectacular, are none the less great and, in the long run, far more important to the life and success of our country.

No medals or laurelwreaths are presented to American fathers for providing good homes for their children, for clothing them better than any others, for giving them increasingly wonderful educational opportunities, for devoting their leisure hours to their children's companionship, for guiding them in the paths of good faith, good citizenship and self-reliance.

* * * *

MOST DADS consider themselves sufficiently rewarded for their unstinting efforts when they see their children healthy, happy and growing up to and achieving useful and wholesome adult life of their own.

The theme of Father's Day, "Juvenile Integrity Starts in the Home," indicates the responsibility of Dads and Granddads to inculcate their children with the highest standards of ethics and deportment.

Few, of course, hold formal seminars with their boys and girls to discuss these matters. Most, however, employ a more subtle, less self-conscious and more effective way of imparting those ideals. They set the examples by their own conduct, words and deeds.

* * * *

WHILE WE can't honor our Dads and Granddads with medals, cheers and anthems, we can express our gratitude, especially on "His Day" of the year — not only with a "Thanks, Dad!" — but also with some more concrete tokens of our appreciation.

Honor Dad on Father's Day with a dinner of the official menu of soup, chicken, cranberry sauce, ice cream, cake and the trimmings. Pile his place with gifts that will not only bring him joy but which will make him proud.

Wear a rose (the official flower) on Father's Day—a red rose for the living, a white rose for the departed.

Show your Dad and Granddad that he's your champion, your hero.

He'll Like Portrait of Family

Give Dad the perfect Father's Day gift this year — a photographic portrait of his family. And if you really want to make him feel like a king—make sure it's in color and at least three feet tall.

An estimated two-and-a-half million fathers will receive family portraits this Father's Day, according to the Professional Photographers of America, Inc. Most will be framed blow-ups destined for exhibit on a wall in father's office or den.

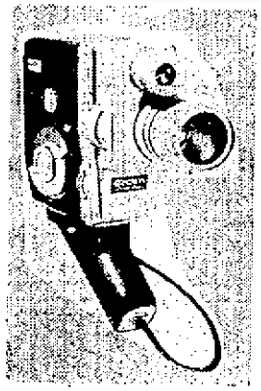

If you're planning to give a family portrait, here are several important guidelines:

* * * *

PICK YOUR SPOT. If you know where the photograph will be hung, it can be tailor-made. The professional photographer will suggest the family pose in their Sunday best if the portrait is for office or living room.

Don't be old-fashioned. A portrait can be taken of the family playing outdoors, relaxing in the recreation room —or any activity familiar to Dad. It isn't necessary to limit yourself to studio poses —the professional will take pictures anywhere you choose.

If Dad is a man-on-the-go, the blow-up should be hung at home and wallet prints made for Dad to carry. The smaller "accordian-type" picture frames (for four by five prints) are still popular for desk tops.

CAN'T MISS

Pictured is the new Crown 507 fully automatic zoom reflex camera. With this, Dad can take perfect pictures every time. Many cameras and photographic equipment, ideal as gifts, will be seen on display at Lakewood Camera Center in Lakewood Center.

MOVIE CAMERA MAKES IDEAL GIFT

From the big selection of movie cameras in Dooley's Hardware Mart, 5075 Long Beach Blvd., there is certain to be one that will please Dad and they are offered to fit any budget. A saleslady is holding one of the 8mm Kodak Brownie movie cameras.

Dad Likes Ring, Too

Because rings have always been masculine symbols of authority, they are especially fitting for fathers. Of late, more and more men have been wearing various kinds of rings.

Jewelry stores carry attractive rings symbolizing schools, colleges or fraternal groups, as well as distinguished signet rings. Cameos and intaglios, as well as engraved tiger's eyes, are among the new rings that are extremely popular, says the Jewelry Industry Council.

THE BLOOD BANK

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Did you know that in many American cities a skid row derelict, sapped by malnutrition and sodden with alcohol, can sell a pint of his blood for $5 or $6, enough for several more bottles of cheap wine? Do you realize that his blood, given to you or a loved one during an emergency transfusion, may not save but cost a life or cause serious illness?

I don't mean to sound lurid, but the American people need to be shocked into an awareness of a health scandal that is rapidly assuming perilous proportions. Nothing is more vital in modern medicine than the blood transfusion.

Yet a group of Russian doctors, specialists in blood disorders, recently toured American blood banks and commented that "the Russian system is much better organized." It would be easy to put this down to Soviet bragging. Unfortunately, when I began to probe, I found to my horror that those Russian doctors had spoken the truth.

In its 25 years of existence, blood banking in this country has become not only a lifesaving service but a lucrative business. Nearly 6 million units of blood, or 750,000 gallons, are used every year—enough human blood to fill a large oil tanker.

This is collected and distributed by some 6,000 blood banks. They range from huge organizations like the Red Cross to hole-in-the-wall "leeches" which collect blood for the cash it brings: blood money in the truest sense.

With some variations, blood banks fall into two categories: (1) nonprofit community banks which get most of their blood freely from volunteers and (2) privately owned commercial blood banks which draw their blood from paid, often professional, donors.

The skid row bum, willing to exchange his blood for wine, can pick up $5 for a pint of blood, an extra buck or two for rarer types. According to type and need, the blood can be processed and resold to doctors and hospitals at $12 to $60 a pint.

MINIMAL PRECAUTIONS

It must be said, of course, that many private banks are highly reputable. They are scrupulous in keeping records and checking on their donors. But others take blood with only a minimum of medical precaution. Apart from a perfunctory blood pressure check, the donor may have no test for his fitness to give blood.

Yet it is vital to know how much alcohol a donor has consumed, whether he has ever suffered from jaundice, hepatitis, malaria, syphilis or any other infectious disease that might still lurk in his blood stream.

The worst problem has been hepatitis, an always serious, sometimes fatal liver disease, which in some

Example of a well-run blood bank is spanking new Red Cross center in New York. Here, technician checks blood in storage refrigerator before sending it to hospitals. Complete records are kept of blood groups, types, expiration dates.

SCANDAL

by EDWARD V. LONG
U.S. SENATOR (D.), MISSOURI

areas is transmitted in 1 of every 150 to 200 transfusions. Since 2.5 million Americans receive transfusions every year, an alarming number—running into the thousands—are infected with hepatitis.

Most contaminated blood comes from the commercial blood banks, which supply approximately one-fifth of all blood used in transfusions. For a commercial bank, with a quick market for blood, is inclined to ask fewer questions of its donors.

Yet, despite this danger, a federal agency—an agency created to protect the public—is threatening to force the nonprofit blood banks out of business and to place all blood on the market to be sold like castor oil or mouthwash. This agency is the Federal Trade Commission, which, acting on the complaints of two small but reputable commercial blood banks, charged the Kansas City Community Blood Bank with unfair competition.

The case has been dragging on for years, and legal bills have already cost this nonprofit institution more than $100,000. Incredibly, the first FTC rulings have gone against the Kansas City Community Blood Bank. If these rulings become final, then not only will a fine blood bank go out of existence, or at least be seriously restricted, but hundreds of other nonprofit community blood banks will share the same fate.

AN END TO CHAOS

Not the least of these will be the great New York City Blood Center, now being readied to handle the transfusion needs of 18 million people. It was founded to end anarchy in the collection, processing and distribution of blood in the nation's largest city.

Because there were no central records, nobody knew how much blood was stored in the city, or of what kind, on any particular day. Frequently, operations had to be delayed until blood could be found in distant cities and brought to New York. In an emergency, doctors sometimes had to use blood that didn't exactly match that of the patient and hope for the best. There was undue reliance on professional donors and their dubious medical histories. In short, there was never any certainty that the right type of blood, in the right quantity, would be available to save a human life!

The new Blood Center will knit together all nonprofit blood banks and, in co-operation with the Red Cross, will supply the blood needs of the entire metropolitan area. An IBM computer will keep a central inventory of every pint of blood stored not only in the Center itself, but in all co-operating hospitals. The computer will respond to emergency requests for blood with a list of places where it is available or a list of certified donors—all in roughly two minutes.

Yet this great service, like the Kansas City Community Blood Bank, now stands in danger of liquidation by the FTC.

Not long ago, it was revealed that people in a Tokyo slum were selling their blood, half a pint at a time, as often as 25 times a month. They kept up their strength between donations by drinking such exotic stimulants as chicken blood and iron filings mixed with salt water. Their blood money averaged $22.50 a month, more than they could make by working.

After our ambassador to Japan, Edwin Reischauer, received an emergency transfusion, he developed a dangerous case of hepatitis. Many indignant newspapers in this country criticized the Japanese blood program. "It would never have happened if he had been given American blood," they implied. No? Consider these cases.

FOR THE RECORD

- In New York, a federal grand jury charged a commercial blood bank with changing the dates on containers—a serious offense since whole blood, kept longer than the maximum 21 days, may produce ill effects in a recipient.
- A commercial bank in New Jersey was investigated following an outbreak of hepatitis. It was found that people had been transfused with blood (more than 200 pints) taken from donors who were known to be narcotics addicts.
- A parole violator who was a heavy drinker confessed that in one month he gave five pints of blood in five different cities while working as a bargehand on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. None of the banks gave him a medical examination.
- Last year, a New Yorker was given an open-heart operation which required 23 pints of blood to keep him alive. The operation was successful, but he came down with malignant malaria. This was traced to blood that had come from a commercial bank. The donor, who had transmitted the disease and was himself in danger, could not be located. He was one of three who had given assumed names and addresses to the bank.

Investigation of this bank uncovered that it collected 75 pints of blood every day, more than half from Bowery bums. The derelicts themselves boasted it was the only way they knew of picking up a few dollars for lying down. Their word was accepted when they were asked if they had ever suffered from an infectious disease.

We must act to clean up the trade in human blood. The last thing we should do is aid the blood profiteers by forcing the closure of community blood banks. I cannot believe that the authors of our antitrust laws ever intended that they should apply to nonprofit organizations providing a vital medical service. You will never persuade me that human blood was meant to to be an item of commerce.

Sen. Long has introduced bill to save community blood banks:"We must clean up the trade in human blood."

The Federal Trade Commission, in its strained and obtuse approach to the problem, should consider the precedent it would be setting. As medical science progresses and new techniques of transplanting are perfected, there will be no item of human tissue that will not be put on the auction block to the highest bidder. Eyes, teeth, skin, kidneys, hearts, livers, sinews, bones—all will be for sale. A father or mother who wants to give an eye for a child, much less a pint or two of blood, might find himself in the middle of an antitrust suit.

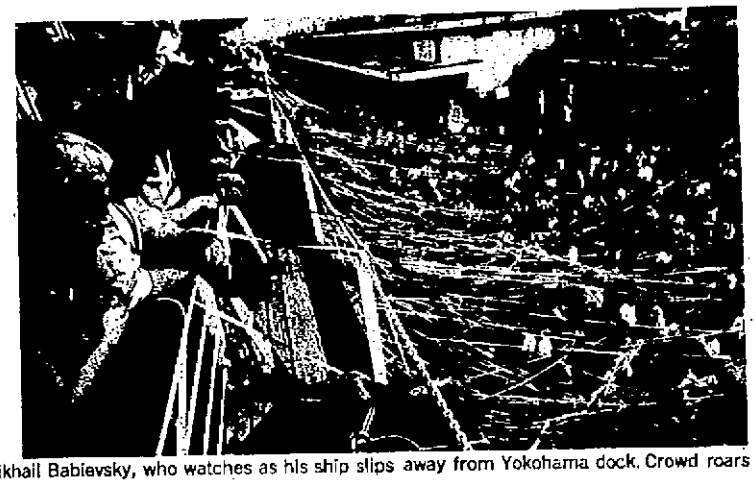

I cannot believe the American people will allow such a travesty of humanity to take place. With the support of other senators, I have introduced a bill—S2560—to save our community blood banks and set a proper precedent. It must not fail.

Here's how you can help.

Write to your congressman and ask him to act on my bill this year, not to shelve it for the indefinite future.

Get in touch with local authorities and insist that regulations be enforced or, where necessary, new ones adopted to safeguard against those private blood banks that do not keep records or check donors.

Top man on Grigory Ordzhonikidze is Capt. Mikhail Babievsky, who watches as his ship slips away from Yokohama dock. Crowd roars good-by amid ticker tape strewn from dock to ship.

How can you teach your child the value of money?

New free booklet helps solve an age-old problem.

Children quickly learn the importance of money—but teaching them its value is a long, slow process. So says child expert Suzanne Strait. And to help parents guide their youngsters towards this worthwhile goal, she has written a booklet especially for New York Life. "Teaching Your Child the Value of Money" is packed with informative, practical suggestions . . . and it's yours free!

LET THEM LEARN BY DOING. The author, mother of four, and a respected writer on child matters, points out there's no educational device like an allowance: "Let children handle money for themselves, make their own mistakes, and learn for themselves. Do not use money as a punishment or a reward, but rather as a practical lesson in getting, choosing and spending."

EXAMPLES AND PRACTICAL ADVICE. There are numerous examples throughout this booklet, illustrating how youngsters at various ages often react to money and the problems it poses. In addition, Suzanne Strait offers tips to help parents set a good financial model. Above all, trust your children, she says, and give them leeway. Just as in learning to sew or saw, they'll make mistakes, but they will learn in the long run.

SHOWBOAT TO SIBERIA

EDITOR OF PARADE

Line on map indicates 906-mile route the showboat takes between Japan and Siberia.

ABOARD THE GRIGORY ORDZHONIKIDZE.

Capt. Mikhail L. Babievsky would like to take you to Siberia on his ship. Despite your destination, you'll have an unforgettable voyage—but a pleasant one.

Capt. Babievsky is skipper of the Grigory Ordzhonikidze, a new diesel engine Russian cruise ship which plies the 906 miles from Yokohama, Japan, to the Far East Siberian port of Nakhodka. It is the only way a tourist can get from Japan to Siberia.

If you decide to sail the seas to Siberia on Capt. Babievsky's ship, you can enjoy the 52-hour cruise singing and dancing or playing chess, ping-pong and shuffleboard. If none of these strike your fancy, you can view the scenery, see a movie or watch the other passengers—who may be judo wrestling, frozen in a Yoga trance or boning up on how many rubles you can get for 100 yen. And don't fret about what's going on at home while you indulge yourself. Just pick up the Ordzhonikidze's radio-telephone and call your relatives or friends—or even your stockbroker.

WARM WELCOME ABOARD

To board this Russian-style showboat at Yokohama, you walk up a ramp through a shower of confetti and ticker tape to be greeted by an officer who checks your ticket and passport. He then gives you a card which indicates your cabin or stateroom number and the hours of your four meals. Yes, four—breakfast, lunch, tea and dinner. Also printed on the card in both Russian and English are these words of welcome:

"We are happy to greet you aboard our ship. We hope that this journey will be a fascinating one and will leave unforgettable impressions."

The characters you expect to find on a cruise ship are even more so on the voyage to Siberia. On my trip there are two Czech explorers traveling around the world, who plan to do the Siberian portion in a jeep; bearded French students returning home after a tour of Japan; a Finnish woman who is a convert to Buddhism en route to Helsinki for a visit with relatives; ubiquitous Russian chess players; a New Zealand rancher hankering for his first look at Siberia; a Japanese movie star; an American doctor who has ministered to famous patients all over the world; and an Australian student brushing up on his Russian but not yet advanced much beyond da (yes) and nyet (no).

INTERNATIONAL SET

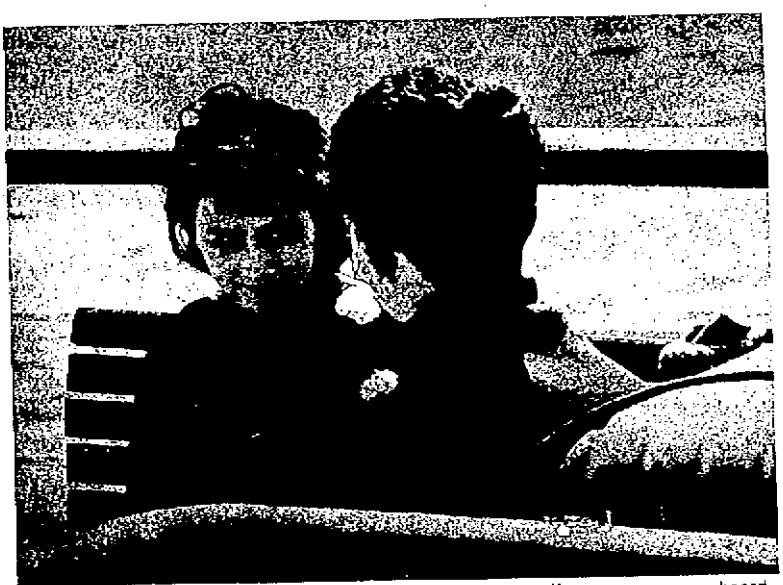

Sixty per cent of the passengers are Japanese, but the Ordzhonikidze is also very popular with New Zealanders and Australians. The rest of the passenger roster includes Russians, British, French, West Germans, Belgians, Czechs and Scandinavians. PARADE's photographer Larry Fried, the doctor and I are the only Americans on board.

Capt. Babievsky's "classless" ship actually has 4 different kinds of accommodations for 312 passengers, consisting of 64 first class, 64 second class, 182 third class and 2 de luxe berths. Fare ranges from $55 to approximately $118 per person.

only Jockey T-shirts are Power-Knit to keep their fit

Weekly bouts with the washing machine won't faze these Jockey Power-Knit T-shirts. They're knit from extra yarn into a fabric that's specially processed to prevent length shrinkage. From their nylon reinforced Seamfree® collar to the extra long tail, they're man-tailored to stay smooth and neat. No bagging! No sagging! Only Jockey Power-Knit T-shirts are made like this to keep their fit. The extra value is knit right in. $1.50, three for $4.39 in the 3-pack.

'Classless' ship with a capitalist touch: de luxe berths, 4 meals & welcome band

Trans Siberian Railroad and air, is the most economical as well as the most adventurous way to travel between these two continents.

After you disembark at Nakhodka—if any prominent people are on board you can expect to be greeted by a Russian band—you are whisked away to the Trans Siberian Railroad station and a 19-hour ride to Khabarovsk. Then you can proceed by train or air to Moscow, visiting several Siberian cities in transit.

During 1964, the Ordzhonikidze's third season, she will make a record number of 16 round trips because of the Olympic Games in Tokyo.

This year's service began May 12, and the final cruise will be October 24. You can travel in either direction—Yokohama-Nakhodka or Nakhodka-Yokohama. The American travel agency, Cosmos, 45 West 45th St., New York City, has bought a block of 50 berths for the October 7 departure from Nakhodka and the October 24 sailing from Yokohama for Americans who plan to attend the Olympic Games.

Capt. Babievsky says he would like to have more Americans travel on his ship. He was a merchant seaman during World War II and fondly remembers his visits to Portland, Seattle, San Francisco and other West Coast cities.

"We hope to have many American tourists on the Ordzhonikidze this year," he says. "We will do everything possible to make their voyage pleasant."

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

CATHOLICS MULTIPLY. The Roman Catholic population of the U.S. is growing three times as fast as the Protestant population. There are now 44,874,000 Catholics in this country, compared to 64,930,000 Protestants and 5,500,000 Jews. Last year 124,000 converts entered the Catholic Church, lowest convert figure in 10 years.

CALIFORNIA AHEAD. Executives pondering locations for new factories favor California sites. The results of a recent Business Week survey show that after California (26%) the executives are thinking of erecting plants in Illinois (16%), New Jersey (14%), Texas (14%), North Carolina (13%), Ohio (12%), Pennsylvania (12%), Florida (11%).

JAPANESE TOURISTS. Last year approximately 100,000 Japanese went abroad. This year that number will double. Half the Japanese tourists visit Hawaii and the U.S. mainland. Recently Japanese tycoon Kenji Osano bought three hotels on Waikiki Beach in Honolulu, which are being run for him by the Sheraton chain.

WOMEN DENTISTS. Is it unladylike for a woman to become a dentist? Less than 2% of American dentists are women. In Soviet Russia 75% of all dentists are females. To no one's surprise they are particularly adept with children.

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS. After May 8, 1965, it will be legally impossible to prosecute any German Nazis on charges of wartime murder unless their cases have previously come up in court. All Nazi-era murders are treated as if they were committed on May 8, 1945, last day of the Hitler regime, when Adm. Karl Doenitz signed the German surrender. Under the German statute of limitations, prosecution of murder ends 20 years after the crime.

MUSICIANS & LONGEVITY. Why do many musicians and composers live to a ripe old age? Stravinsky, Casals, Stokowski and Monteux are all over 80. Sibelius and Charpentier were past 80 when death came. Dr. S. J. London, medical director of a pharmaceutical house, claims that a musician's work permits him to air his conflicts, give vent to his aggressions, dispose of his frustrations, suffer relatively little of the so-called stress diseases. In short, "Music hath charms."

ASTHMA TREATMENT. A new research study reveals that 70% of asthmatic children stop wheezing one week after they get away from their parents into new surroundings. The report was made at the annual meeting of the American College of Allergists by Dr. Armond Mascia of Tarrytown, N.Y.

DEATH RATE. The U.S. death rate in 1963 was the highest since 1951. Provisional figures by the Public Health Service show a rate of 9.62 deaths per 1,000, reflecting the serious influenza epidemic last year.

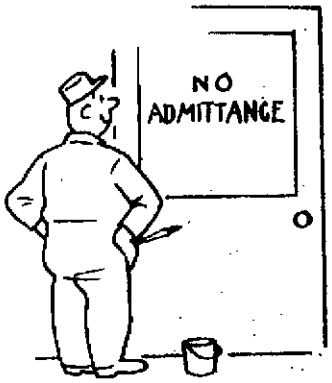

ANALYSTS' PATIENTS. Ever wonder what type of people go in for psychoanalysis? Most of the 11,000 who consult analysts each year are highly educated professional persons -- doctors, lawyers, teachers and artists.

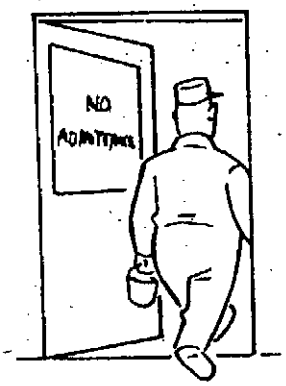

TAKE OFF THE GLOVES. More newspapers throughout the country are revising their policy of not printing the names of juvenile delinquents. One of the latest is the Sacramento Bee, which plans to publish the names of juvenile offenders "whenever their acts are deemed sufficiently serious to warrant such action." Says Sacramento police chief James Hicks: "We believe if parents know that the names of their sons or daughters are to be publicized when they commit a crime, this will be a deterrent factor."

Grilled ham gets new spicy peanut sauce

Here's a wonderful new flavor for charcoal-grilled ham steaks. Brush them with spicy new barbecue sauce made with peanut butter, honey and spicy seasonings. Serve extra sauce with the sizzling steaks. Frosty tomato juice with hot buttered popcorn is a good way to start your meal. Serve French fried potatoes with the ham, add crisp raw relishes and dream up a cooling dessert.

Ham Slices with Peanut Butter Barbecue Sauce

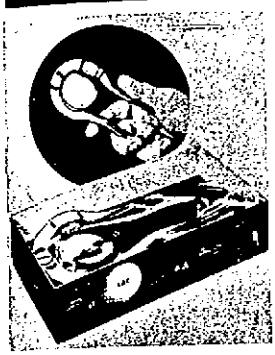

½ cup peanut butter
¼ cup honey
2 teaspoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon Kitchen Bouquet
1 onion, grated
1 garlic clove, chopped fine
1 cup chicken broth
¼ teaspoon fresh ground black pepper
2 fully cooked center ham slices, about 1½ inches thick

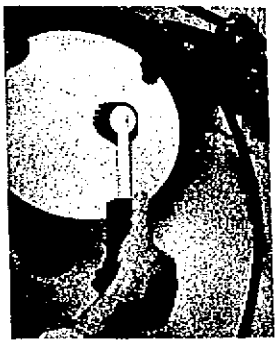

Combine peanut butter, honey, soy sauce, Kitchen Bouquet, onion, garlic, broth and pepper; stir to blend. Place ham slices in flat pan and spread with half the sauce. Let stand several hours in refrigerator. Place on grill. Cook over glowing charcoal for 30 to 40 minutes. Baste with sauce. Cut in inch-wide slices. Serves 8 to 10. FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN my favorite jokes

by Robert Orben

EDITOR'S NOTE: Robert Orben, 36, of Baldwin Harbor, N.Y., is the most prolific humorist of the age. Author of 40 books which have sold half a million copies, Orben heads a comedy service which supplies monthly jokes to 1,300 subscribers in 32 different countries. A tall, bearded jokesmith who estimates that he's written 30,000 gags in 18 years, Orben is a native New Yorker who got his start working in a Bronx magic shop, selling props to magicians who suggested they could also use an occasional funny line in their routines. Today the Orben joke factory employs four assistants who help serve the nation's top comedians and several hundred disk jockeys who burn up the material as fast as they get it. Herewith some of Orben's latest favorite funnies.

You've got to say this for Jayne Mansfield—she's not just a pretty face.

It's infuriating! Every morning for the last 18 years, my wife has gotten up with a Beatle haircut—and I never realized there was any money in it. Not that I blame the Beatles for wearing hair that covers their ears—I've heard them sing!

• • •

I'll have you know my wife happens to be 40-22-36. Unfortunately, not in that order.

• • •

The way I see this war on poverty—it's me and President Johnson against my wife and her charge accounts.

Do you realize that, as a result of the report on smoking, our next President may be chosen in a candy-filled room?

• • •

In three years of buying sports cars, not once have I ever received an answer to one simple question: "Who ever said sitting in a bucket was comfortable?"

• • •

Incidentally, I just found out how to get 73 shaves from the same blade—wince!

• • •

Say, that Zip Code is really working! Now, any letter posted before noon is delivered the following morning—give or take a few weeks.

• • •

Did you see where some sneak named Shakespeare rewrote West Side Story, set it in Italy and called it Romeo and Juliet?

• • •

Vacations are sure educational—no doubt about it! Like spending two weeks in a trailer with the ones you thought you loved the most.

• • •

I think it's wonderful the way the monster in those Frankenstein pictures is carrying on after all these years. In the latest one, he's not only clutching the girl, but a social security check, too!

• • •

Maybe it's just as well that Navy lieutenant and Lynda Bird decided not to get married. I mean, how would it feel to be the only 22-year-old admiral in the fleet?

Anecdote of the Week

Lady Astor, who died recently in England, was no admirer of Winston Churchill. "There are two things I don't like about you," she told him years ago.

"What are they?" Churchill asked.

"Your politics and your moustache," she answered.

"Dear Madam," Churchill replied, "don't disturb yourself. You are not likely to come in contact with either."
